Consultants will re-write & re-map ...

New zoning law planned

The Village of Madoc will go ahead with plans to enact a new zoning by-law, bringing local regulations more in line with those of Hastings County and creating an easier-to-use document, council decided last Tuesday.

Bob Clarke of Totten, Simms, Hubicki, the village's consulting engineers, was on hand at the regular council meeting to explain the procedures for re-writing and modernizing the law.

He posted a map of the village showing a large number of areas that are in variance with the County plan. Such variances make it difficult for real estate to be purchased and developed without special by-laws being passed. This 'red tape' may discourage business or residential construction.

The consulting firm will look at property use, compare it with the official plan and then re-draw the map for inclusion in the new by-law.

As part of the same package, they will re-write the by-law, making the written text a more easily understood and practical document. It will also incorporate amendments that have been made to the existing by-law since its original enactment in the early 1970's.

Revisions to the Hastings County official plan in 1985 are the main reason for the variances and the village's plan has fallen behind over the years. The result is that some parts of the village are zoned one way in the official plan and another way in the village's zoning by-law.

Before a land owner can begin construction, or use his land for a certain purpose, the discrepancy must be settled. This can turn out to be a time-consuming and costly process, with no guarantee that the owner's wishes will be fulfilled.

The municipality is not required by law to conform with the official plan. If the local government wishes to keep a parcel of land zoned differently to prevent development permitted under the official plan, it may do so, but these are usually special cases.

There is also a new option available, called 'deferred zoning', that allows the village to put an area aside for one purpose, but not declare it as zoned and available for

Police to converge on Madoc

In a month's time the village of Madoc will be swarming with Ontario Provincial Police officers. This would be sobering news if it weren't for the fact that they will be accompanied by wives and families coming to Madoc for a good time.

Many will be retired from the force, but all of them will have one thing in common: they were once stationed at the Madoc detachment and they've returned for a festive reunion.

The Madoc Detachment reunion will take place on May 2, 3 and 4, starting with a welcoming reception at the Kiwanis Centre on Friday the 2nd. There will be a dinner and dance on Saturday night for guests and friends and a pancake breakfast on Sunday morning.

Invitations have been sent out to over 70 former staff members and officers and replies are starting to come in. Organizers are hoping to have at least 50 ex-Madoc O.P.P. at the reunion, including such familiar faces as Floyd Shanks, Mel Shultz and Larry Calnan.

Most of the guests will be staying with old friends in the O.P.P. Constable Robin Russell and his police dog "Thunder" came to visit the Madoc Cubs and Beavers last week. Russell told the children about "Thunder's" feats of skill and courage in sniffing out criminals and contraband. The dog was just a cuddly friend off-duty though.

'Thunder' visits cubs

Madoc Cubs and Beavers were visited by the four-legged police officer named Thunder last Tuesday evening at the Madoc Public School.

The Police Service Dog and his master, trainer Constable Robin Russell of the Ontario Provincial Police were on hand to show the children how intelligent, fierce...and how friendly and cuddly the big German Sheppard could be.

"He's not afraid of guns or sticks, but he can be gentle at times, too," said Constable Russell.

He told of one experience when Thunder pinned an escaped prisoner down and ended up licking the terrified man's face.

Thunder's main work with the O.P.P. involves his sensitive nose. "We all have

Hall and is looking forward to some ambitious projects. New members, with any or no background in photography, are welcome.

Spring sprung...

Spring sprung last week.

Almost overnight the village filled with motorcycles and tight jeans and loose shirts. Loud-spattered trucks came in from the arms and dust swirled in the wind down St. Lawrence Street.

Garden hoses came out and young men in shirts washed the salt stains from their cars. Others sat on the side steps with beer and watched. Old people stood chatting on the street corner, still wearing coats as if they could not believe another winter was gone again so soon.

It is the time of renewal. Optimistic thoughts turn to starting new things, new rups for the fields, new stock on the shelves, new homes to construct, new clothes to wear, new ideas, new ventures.

It is a shame that we make resolutions for self-improvement on January 1st. They would have such better chances of survival if they could be made on April 1st.

Now is the time to look forward. Of all times of the year, this is the one to plan for the future and act on those plans, for they have the best chances of success.

So let's go at it. The birds are singing and the grass is greening, the whole world is starting something new.

MARCH 11, 1986

A delegation from the Ministry of Natural Resources met with council to discuss the adoption of The Millbridge Deer Yards into a Comprehensive Zoning By-law for the Township.

The delegation included Mr. Mike Williams (Environmental Supervisor, Tweed), Mr. Kerry Coleman (District Biologist, Tweed) and Ms. Susanne Bryson (Regional Planner for The Ministry, Kemptville, Ont.). Mrs. Jean Rixon from Hastings County Planning Advisory Committee also attended council to inform them of the position of the County with respect to the deer yards.

The council was informed that site restrictions with respect to building use might affect only 10 or 15 per cent of all landowners in the area, and that the Ministry would inspect the proposed severance or building site with the owners prior to application being rendered to the County.

Mr. Williams also indicated that any landowner within the Yards could trade their property for equal value within the Yards Holdings, anywhere outside the Deer Yards area. The zoning would not prevent sale of property but might affect property value, either up or down, depending on the value esteemed by the buyer.

The Ministry indicated that they would like to control cutting of certain species of trees within the area, but only through agreements with the property holders. A letter of 'Policy' is forthcoming from the Ministry with respect to the above.

The council extends their appreciation to the Ministry and the County for their consideration of the matter.

The council viewed a registered plan of a parcel of land within the Deer Yards. The plan, presented by Mr. Gordon Stewart of Brighton, Ont., indicated two parcels of approximately 1.1 acres each.

Motion...Donaldson - Phillips: That the registered plan of part lot 18, Conc. 7 of Tudor Township, and the lots described therein do meet with the Township requirements for building use. Plan No. 21R 5258.

Motion...Phillips - Donaldson: That the council resolve that the County of Hastings undertake a study of the need for Extended Care Facilities for Senior Citizens in the County and that the County act on the findings of the study.

Motion...Glenn - Donaldson: That the council approve of land severance No. B66/68 regarding part lot 16, Conc. 15 and 16, Tudor Township.

Motion...Cooney - Phillips: That the Township hire Costuch Engineers to oversee the completion of the surfacing of part of Weslemkoon Lake Rd. to the Pine Ridge Road.

development. When the new map and regulations are drawn up there will be at least one public meeting held to give taxpayers a chance to comment or object to the zoning before the new by-law goes into effect. Council will be encouraging village citizens to make their wishes known so that changes do not have to be made later.

The creation of the new zoning by-law will cost about $12,000, half of which will be paid by a grant from the Ministry of Municipal Affairs, if approved.

Reeve Tom Deline and the council members appeared satisfied with the presentation made by Clarke and voted to go ahead with the planning. 'This will be the most important document you're going to look at this year,' Deline said.

Village Clerk-Treasurer Doug Parks is 'really pleased' with the proposed by-law. 'It sets the trend for the future,' he said. 'It will always have to be updated from time to time, but it will be much easier to use and change in the future.'

Clapp-Heagle wedding

In Trinity United Church, Madoc, on Saturday, March 1, at 4 in the afternoon, Beverley Anne Clapp, daughter of Mrs. Florence Clapp of Trenton and the late Everett Clapp, became the bride of Robert Paul Heagle, son of Mrs. Leafa Heagle of R. R. 1, Stirling and the late Burton Heagle.

The ceremony was conducted by Rev. Annette Reinhardt, who was assisted by Rev. Wilbur Cox of Peterborough.

The church was decorated with bouquets of Red Carnations mixed with white gladiolus and mums.

Mrs. Evelyn Bailey played the wedding music.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, Edward Clapp, wore a floor length candelight satin gown with matching hat. It featured a cowl neckline with an applique insert. Her bouquet was of red roses with baby's breath.

Mrs. Eleanor Paul, sister of the bride was her matron of Honour and only attendant, Eleanor wore a floor length, red, pleated jacquard satin dress with matching hat.

She carried a nosegay of white carnations with a single red rose and baby's breath.

Frank Bailey of R.R. 3, Stirling was the groomsmen and the ushers were Glenn Heagle, brother of the groom and Frank Paul, brother-in-law of the bride.

The bride's mother wore a jacket dress of royal blue lace over satin with a corsage of pink carnations.

The groom's mother wore a navy blue crepe georgette jacket dress with a corsage of pink carnations.

A dinner reception and dance was held in the Woodland Family Restaurant.

For travelling the bride chose a two piece green wool dress with a corsage of yellow roses when the happy couple left for a wedding trip to British Columbia. They are now residing at R.R. 1, Stirling.

Out of town guests were from Toronto, Whitby, Oshawa, Peterborough, Campbellford, Ottawa, Almonte, Lyndhurst, Belleville and Trenton.

CHSS girls senior volleyball has outstanding season

This year the CHSS Senior Girls Volleyball team had an outstanding season both in regular season games and Invitational Tournaments.

December saw the girls place 2nd to Renfrew at the Invitational.

In January CHSS hosted a 12 team Invitational at which they placed first.

On February 15th, they travelled to London for a 16 team 'AAA' tournament at Saunders Secondary School in which the girls placed 3rd overall.

The Bay of Quinte Championship was held in Brighton on February 18th. CHSS played Brighton to win in the finals.

The Central Ontario Secondary School finals (COSSA) Championship was held and once again Brighton was faced in a very tough match to win the championship.

This win was to put the girls in the much sought-after 'OFSAA' competition which is considered the inaugural 'AA'

Championship. OFSSA was held in Brockville March 5th-7th. After opening ceremonies and a banquet the girls faced their opposition in two days of play. They finished 10th in All Ontario, an admirable finish and the culmination of great team work, talent and hard work.

And from the

News from Bill Vankoughnet

BY BILL VANKOUGHNET, MP

'Canadians deserve to know more about the myriad of programs and services they pay for.' With that statement, Deputy Prime Minister Erik Nielsen tabled the Task Force on Program Review in the House of Commons on March 11, 1986. The Task Force was established as a direct result of this government's commitment to provide better management of government service to the public, and bring about economic renewal in our country.

The Task Force's report is a unique document. It is the first time that representatives outside of government were invited to examine and comment on government programs. Two hundred and twenty-one individuals - half of which came from the private sector - were divided up into 20 study teams. They examined almost 1,000 government programs that represented $92 billion of government spending. This is the first time that a government actually took the opportunity to undertake an independent analysis in co-operation with the private sector to examine government spending. Even more important, the results of the study are published and available to the public.

In November, 1984, the Hon. Erik Nielsen established the Private Sector Advisory Committee that was a key part of this review process. Mr. Phillip Aspinall was appointed Chairman of the Committee. Other members were nominated by the 12 participating groups that represented the Labour, Professional organizations and Business.

Mr. Darcy McKough, a former Ontario cabinet minister, was appointed as the Private Sector Liaison Advisory to the Task Force. While presenting the report to the media with Mr. Aspinall, Mr. McKough said, 'But let's be clear that groups of people brought together for a few weeks to brainstorm the management of $92 billion worth of public services were not restrained by neither the burden of political responsibility nor the intimate program knowledge of the public administrators.' The analysis was carried out by study teams composed equally of private sector volunteers and public servants. Each study team prepared options for change, where they felt change was warranted, to each program assessed.

The study teams worked sequentially throughout the year and in three months each did their best to suggest rational proposals and options to deal with an often times confusing and contradictory array of programs and services. The mandate also provided that the study groups should make an overall assessment of the program groupings. There are four major themes divided into subsections for the reviewing process. Management of Government was separated into: Procurement; Regulatory Programs; Regulatory Agencies; Real Property and; Major Surveys. Under Service to the public there were five areas of study: Canada Assistance Plan; Veterans; Education and Research; Job Creation, Training and Employment Services and; Housing. The Improved Program Delivery section covered: Citizenship, Labour and Immigration; Health and Sports; Justice System; Environment and Indian and Native Programs. The final theme, Economic Growth, included: Agriculture; Services and Subsidies to Business; Transportation; Culture and Communications and; Natural Resources.

Each study team stuck to their deadline and this enabled the final Report of the Task Force to be tabled by the one-year target date. It also helped to keep the teams fixed on their review priorities and not be sidetracked. The final result was 21 reports, a total of 15,000 pages, in both official languages.

The Private Sector Advisory Committee met every Monday throughout the year-long course of program review and acted as a further review mechanism to the work coming to it from the 19 individual study teams.

A central conclusion of the study teams, and one with potentially profound implications, is the degree to which there has developed a vast array of government programs that are designed to subsidize activity rather than results, effort rather than success. The options, outlined by the study teams are just that, options. The Hon. Erik Nielsen announced that the reports will be dealt with by the respective Standing Committees on Parliament. This will enable, and encourage, public debate on the results.

Also among the general conclusions of the Task Force is that Canadians need to know more about the programs and services they pay for. In fact, Canadians have a right to know.

We also have a right to expect that government will manage our funds responsibly. The Task Force has given this government a clear overview of the programs we spend our money on, and how to better manage those funds so as to get the most for our money.

It should be noted that in making decisions the federal government has not, and will not, be bound just to the options put forward by study teams. A close reading of these reports will show that independent study teams, working with in their particular terms of reference, and examining the same programs can come to different and sometimes contradictory conclusions. While the government will be taking the options presented by these mixed study teams into account, it must and will make its decisions from a perspective that is broader than that of any individual study team.

This Task Force and its report is part of this government's program for bringing our country back to responsible and responsive governing. As the Hon. Erik Nielsen said in his conclusion, 'The government has been asking Canadians to join our commitment to the reform of government, as part of the mandate for economic renewal given by the people of Canada in September 1984. The tabling of these documents shows beyond any reasonable doubt that this government remains committed to policies of economic renewal in a climate of openness and public dialogue.'

Highlights of Huntingdon minutes

The regular meeting of the Council of the Township of Huntingdon was held at the Township Hall in Ivanhoe on Monday March 3, 1986 at 7:30 p.m.

Correspondence was received from O. Gregory Anderson, Solicitor, with comments on the request of Mr. Makson and Mr. Best to hold 4x4 races within the Township. It was noted that the zoning of Lot 7 in Concessions 7&8 are largely zoned for Rural or Prime Agriculture use which does not permit the use thereof for a meet of this sort.

Mr. & Mrs. Bob Renshaw and Mr. Walton Reid attended the meeting to address Council on the issue of land use and specifically, the proposed 4x4 races.

Moved by Ted Pollock, Seconded by Ken Yarrow.

THAT the correspondence from the solicitor be received and THAT, upon his advice, Mr. Makson and Mr. Best be advised that Council will take no action on their request to hold 4x4 races within the Township. Carried.

A proposal was received from Ron Treverton for a 20,000 grain fully automatic water conditioner and a reverse osmosis system providing 30 gallons per day. The total cost, including pipe, fittings and installation would be $2,034.21.

Moved by Ken Yarrow, Seconded by Bill Allen.

THAT M.T.C. be advised of the three proposals received for water purification systems for the existing well and confirm that they would be suitable for funding. Carried.

John Hall attended the Council meeting to outline the Block Parent Program and how it operated in a rural community.

The first step in initiating a program is to appoint a chairman, then contact Mr. Hall who will arrange a public meeting.

Frank Downey, representing Frank Cowan Company limited, attended the meeting to answer questions on the insurance proposal which was presented to Council. Mr. Paul Dorman from O.M.E. Insurance was originally scheduled to attend but cancelled due to sickness.

The total premium for insurance proposals as presented were:

O.M.E. - $14,930.00

Cowan - $14,072.00

NOTE: O.M.E. proposal did not include environmental liability which presently costs approximately $2,500. through their company.

The following changes needed to be incorporated in the Cowan proposal to conform to present coverages:

1. 1969 fire pumper included with a guarantee amount of $90,000.

2. Councillor's accident increased to $50,000.

3. Fireman's accident increased to $50,000.

Additional premium $825.

The following recommendations were also made:

1. Increase deductible from $500. to $1,000. at a premium savings of $725.

2. Increase liability from $5,000,000. to $7,000,000. at an additional premium of $792.

Moved by Owen Ketcheson, Seconded by Ken Yarrow.

THAT the proposal from Frank Cowan Company Limited be accepted, including the four amendments and recommendations; increasing the deductible to $1,000. and liability to $7,000,000. for a total premium amount of $14,964. Carried.

The Village of Madoc forwards a copy of the 1986 Waste Disposal Site budget. It was noted that the Township share of the cost was $8,322.27 compared to $12,848. in 1985.

Moved by Owen Ketcheson, Seconded by Bill Allen.

THAT Council approves the budget figures as presented by the Village of Madoc and THAT the Township share of the Waste Disposal Site budget. It was noted that the Township share of the cost was $8,322.27 compared to $12,848. in 1985.

Moved by Owen Ketcheson, Seconded by Bill Allen.

THAT Council approves the budget figures as presented by the Village of Madoc and THAT the Township share of the Waste Disposal Site be included in 1986 expenditures and further, THAT payment be made in two installments - 50% July 15th and 50% December 15th. Carried.

The Village of Madoc advised of a tri-council meeting to be held on Thursday March 20th at 8:30 p.m. All members of Council are planning to attend.

Correspondence was received from the Madoc and District Recreation Centre including minutes of their meeting held February 24, 1986 and copies of the 1986 proposed budget. It was noted that the expenditure to the Township was the same as in 1985 $4,571.33.

Moved by Owen Ketcheson, Seconded

by Bill Allen.

THAT Council approves the proposed budget figures as presented and THAT approval be dealt with at the next tri-council meeting. Carried.

A copy of correspondence from O. Gregory Anderson to Niall Carney regarding Kramp re-zoning was read to Council.

Moved by Ken Yarrow, Seconded by Ted Poock.

THAT correspondence regarding the Kramp re-zoning be received and filed. Carried.

Two pieces of correspondence were received from Elsie and Dave Schulz: 1. wishing to be advised of any hearings and passing of any by-laws as a result of Kramp application to re-zone Pt. Lot 10, Con. 13. 2. notice that they will address Council at the March 17th meeting regarding other options available to develop property at the Lke.

Moved by Owen Ketcheson, Seconded by Ted Pollock.

THAT a copy of Schulz's correspondence regarding Kramp re-zoning be forwarded to the Solicitor and THAT Mr. & Mrs. Schulz be scheduled as a delegation at the next regular meeting March 17th. to discuss their property at the Lake. Carried.

Correspondence was received from the Ministry of Natural Resources requesting comments on an application for approval for the location of a dam on part lot 20, Concession 8.

Moved by Ted Pollock, Seconded by Ken Yarrow.

THAT M.N.R. be advised that Council has no objection to the proposed location of a dam on Part Lot 20, Concession 8. Carried.

Correspondence was received from the Crowe Valley Snowbirds requesting support of Council in acquiring abandoned rail lines for purposes of a recreation. Cont'd on page 7

NOTICE

Under The Forest Fires Prevention Act

The period from April 1 to October 31 of each year is a fire season.

During the fire season, fire permits are required in a fire region.

- for all outdoor fires except fires for cooking or obtaining warmth
- to ignite fireworks in or within 300 metres of a forest or woodland

A work permit is required to conduct any operation which is liable to cause an accumulation of slash or debris within 300 metres of a forest or woodland.

No person shall throw or drop live coals, smoking material or hot ashes in or within 300 metres of a forest or woodland.

No person shall smoke while walking or working in a forest or woodland during the fire season.

The regulations under the Act provide, in part, that every person who starts a fire out of doors shall:

- take all reasonable steps to keep the fire under control,
- ensure that a responsible person tends the fire, and
- extinguish the fire before quitting the site.

Fire permits may be obtained from local Ministry offices or township fire wardens.

Madoc O.P.P. report

During the period of March 21-27, 1986, officers of the Madoc Detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police investigated 50 general occurrences and three traffic accidents. General

Occurrences: As a result of a high speed chase on Saturday, Mar. 22, 1986, at 2:20 a.m., on Highway 37, Brian N. O'Coin, 33, of Burlington, Ontario, has been charged with impaired driving, speeding and failing to stop for police. O'Coin is scheduled to appear in Madoc Court on April 14, 1986.

On Monday, Mar. 24, 1986, at approximately 1 a.m., thieves broke into the Stirling Legion. Entry was gained by prying open a side door. Nothing was reported stolen and the thieves were apparently scared off by the burglar alarm.

On Tuesday, Mar. 24, 1986, Arthur Martin of Concession 3, Rawdon Township, reported the theft of a Jonsered, Model 325 chainsaw and a John Deer 295 amp portable welder. The items were removed from a shed beside Martin's house.

Traffic Accidents: On Saturday, Mar. 22, 1986, at approximately 2:20 a.m., Patrick G. Deline, 23, of RR 2, Madoc, Ontario, was driving a 1983 Chev pickup truck east on Highway 7 at an unknown speed. Deline failed to negotiate a turn onto County Road 23. He struck the traffic island and then proceeded into the south ditch rolling over. Deline and his two passengers, Leslie A. Barr, 24, and Jimmy D. Jensen, 26, both of Eldorado, Ontario, were taken to Belleville General Hospital. Deline has been charged with careless driving.

Crime of the week...

Rawdon thefts continue

Madoc OPP are taking this opportunity to, once again remind residents of Rawdon Township to be on the alert for out-of-the-ordinary happenings around them.

We encourage residents to be aware of their neighbors and unusual occurrences involving them.

This does not mean you have to be nosy, but in the event a moving van backed up to your neighbor's door when you were not aware of any plans by your neighbor to move, a call to our office could be of great value.

In 1985 there were 34 break-ins and thefts in Rawdon Township. Thousands of dollars worth of chainsaws, lawnmowers, welders, pump systems, etc. remain unrecovered and investigation to date has failed to result in the apprehension of persons responsible.

Since January 1st, 1986, there have been six reported break-ins of a similar nature in Rawdon Township. All six remain unsolved.

Investigators continue to make vigorous inquiries, but are also requesting the assistance of the public.

You are the eyes and ears of your law enforcement agency. Anyone having any information can contact PC Garrow or Bonter at 473-4234. Information received will be held in confidence.

Obituaries...

CLARENCE MCCOY

A descendent of a pioneer Marmora Township family and a life-long resident of this area, Clarence McCoy died suddenly at his home on Tuesday March 18, 1986.

In his 72nd year, he was the youngest son of the late David and Sarah McCoy.

Before his early retirement for health reasons, Mr. McCoy was an employee of the Marmora Mining Company, for 21 years.

He was a member of St. Paul's Anglican Church, Marmora.

He is survived by his wife, the former Ruby Leach, daughter Kathy (Mrs. Jeff O'Neill) of Arnprior, and son Tim, of Fort Murray Alta.

One brother, John of Stirling and one sister Mabel Clarke of Marmora also survive. He was predeceased by David, Marshall, Roy, Ethel, Toth and Mary Holme.

The funeral at the McConnell Funeral Home, Marmora, on Friday March 21, was conducted by Rev. Stan Riley of St. Paul's Church.

Interment will take place in the spring at Zion Church Cemetery, Marmora Township.

BARBARA WINNIFRED (SANDFORD) WOOD

Barbara Winnifred (Sandford) Wood of RR1 Eldorado passed away at Belleville General Hospital on March 19th, 1986. She was aged 51 years.

She was born at Bannockburn, Ontario, the daughter of Alice Sandford and the late Burton Sandford and she was the wife of Roy Wood. She leaves two children, Stephen Wood of Eldorado and Pam Wilson of Eldorado, and grandchildren Elicia and Jason.

She also leaves brothers Tom Sandford of Bannockburn, Wilfred Sandford of Bannockburn, Harold Sandford of Oshawa and sister Betty Jones of Brighton. She was predeceased by sister Annie Ramsey.

She was a housewife, educated at Bannockburn School and Madoc High School and belonged to the Pentecostal Tabernacle where she was superintendent and a Sunday School teacher and treasurer. She was also a member of Federal and Provincial P.C. organizations.

Trinity U.C.W. Unit 1

BY VIOLA WANNAMAKER

The Trinity UCW Unit 1 held their meeting in the Church Hall, March 29th, at 2 o'clock with 15 members present. The meeting was opened with a poem on Lent, followed by Hymn. 'When I Survey The Wondrous Cross', with Viola Wannamaker at the piano.

The roll call was answered by all using a verse in the Bible with the word 'peace' in it.

The minutes were read by Verna Empey.

A card was received from Edna Hawley, who is living at the Richmond Retirement Home in Belleville. Edna was a valued member of the UCW. A letter was received from the IOOF Lodge, thanking us for a supper.

Eva Brownson gave the overall Treasurer's Report and Ruby Brady gave the Unit Report. The card report was given by Reta Alore.

The Ladies' Night opens with a potluck supper on April 14th. The Easter lilies, after the church service, will go to Florence Love and Lizzie Embury. It was decided we should buy more bowls for the kitchen.

The worship was led by Viola Wannamaker, opening with Hymn 85, 'Ride On Ride On In Majesty', followed by prayer. The rendition was entitled 'The Difference' and 'If Jesus Came to Your House'. The scripture was taken from St. Luke, Chapter 24, verses 4-8, and Philippians, 2nd Chapter, verses 5-11. The meeting closed with prayer and the offering was taken and dedicated.

The program was conducted by Reta Alore. Lou Parks had a reading on 'Easter'. Reta read

"The Symbol of Peace"

by Rebecca Best
Grade 6, age 11

While the waves roared, the doves soared up. Up in the sky so very high into the sunset without any fret. A beautiful sight to one's delight as I saw them fly and heard them cry. I thought of the magnificent grace that no one can trace. I hope that people will care to keep the world at peace!

 different fingerprints. Russell told the 30 assembled cubs and parents, 'and each one of us has a different smell to a dog as well.' This helps the canine handler to locate 'bad guys', lost people in the bush and illicit drugs. Thunder had a chance to show off - finding two small denim bags scented with marijuana hidden in the school gym.

Thunder lives at home with his master and his family. 'He plays with my kids,' said the policeman, 'and when I go to work, he goes to work with me.'

Thunder is credited with saving several lives already. He has located armed criminals before they got the chance to injure policemen taking part in a manhunt, and he has located lost children on numerous occasions.

Thunder got his name from the crashing noise the 100 pound dog made when he charged into the bush during training sessions.

Back a Fighter with Easter Seals

The Society provides ongoing support services for children which range from the direct provision of a piece of prescribed equipment (such as wheelchairs, artificial limbs, braces, etc.) to transportation of children to and from hospitals, clinics, treatment centres, and camps. Families receive assistance for drugs, equipment used in the home, the costs for the growing demand for home renovations, and much more.

Too many cooks didn't spoil the pasta at the official opening of FOOD at the Ontario Science Centre. With Premier David Peterson offering some encouragement, Agriculture and Food Minister Jack Riddell poured some good Ontario eggs into a food processor to make pasta. Later, Premier Peterson snipped a ribbon of freshly-made pasta to officially open the exhibition, which continues until November 2, 1986, in the Great Hall. The Ministry of Agriculture and Food's outdoor exhibit - The Farm - opens on May 14. It features farm animals and other exhibits on modern-day agriculture. Let's play ball!

With the snow disappearing, and the spring sun drying up the ground and warming the temperatures, it is time for young and old alike to turn their thoughts to the game of softball.

Most leagues have had initial meetings and all are looking forward to an entertaining season of softball. With this in mind, the Madoc Township Minor Ball Executive met recently and made plans for the season.

A date to remember is the evening of Monday, Apr. 7, when Minor Ball registration will be held. It will be held at the Madoc Township School from 7:30 to 9 p.m. Registration fee this year will be $12 per player.

Please register if you are interested as we need to know the number in order to form teams and leagues. See you there on April 7, at the Township School at 7:30.

Irving heads Ducks Unlimited Canada

Arthur Irving, president and chairman of Irving Oil Limited of Saint John has been named president of Ducks Unlimited Canada, the nation's largest waterfowl conservation organization.

Irving was selected to head up the Canadian partner of the international group at the annual meeting held Saturday, March 8 in Winnipeg. He succeeds W.J. McKeag of Winnipeg for a two-year term of office. McKeag becomes chairman of the board succeeding Dr. Herb Cowburn of Saskatoon.

Directors of the private waterfowl group approved a waterfowl habitat conservation program for 1986 amounting to $36.6 million. Almost 80 per cent of the total will finance direct construction of engineering works to control water levels on a proposed 365 marshes from coast to coast. The balance of the approved budget will be used for administration and wetlands education programs.

Over $5 million of the total will be obtained from Canadian waterfowl conservationists with the balance being provided through Ducks Unlimited Inc., the American sister organization to Ducks Unlimited Canada.

Completion of the planned 365 wetland restoration projects will result in an estimated 44,000 acres of wetland habitat being improved for waterfowl production. The program is a reduction from the 1984 construction activity that resulted in 474 marshes being renovated for a total of 51,000 acres.

Over half the projects will be located in the three Prairie provinces where about 55 per cent of North America's duck population is hatched. In an effort to restore declining duck populations in the region because of high losses of habitat, Ducks Unlimited will design and build projects as 90 marsh sites in Alberta, 60 in Saskatchewan and 65 in Manitoba.

In central and eastern Canada, 105 marshes will be improved with 46 of these in Ontario, 34 in Quebec and 33 in the Atlantic provinces. Much of the work in the eastern half of Canada will concentrate on small productive wetlands, many of them ideal sites for black duck broods. Large marshes on the shores of the lower Great Lakes, slated for construction works are inaccessible this year because of unusually high water levels. Only Wye Marsh, a popular Great Lakes wetland attraction located near Midland, Ontario will be subject to major construction.

Among the main targets of work planned in British Columbia will be

Marmora Tykes runners up

March 24, 1986

Marmora Tykes came home from the Havelock Tyke Tournament with the 'A' Runner-up trophy. These little tykes have shown an astounding improvement this year.

In their first game of the day, they scored the only goal of the match with Lakefield and moved into the 'A' category. Marmora's goal went to Lucas Nerling unassisted. Dwayne Bateman won Most Valuable Player award.

Moving into the champ side of the tournament, Marmora was paired against Havelock, and took the game 5-2.

Marmora goals by: Matt Forbes, unassisted. Brian Bertrand unassisted. Lucas Nerling assisted by Byron Meiklejohn. Lucas Nerling assisted by Matt Forbes. Lucas Nerling for a hat trick (unassisted). Lucas Nerling was awarded Most Valuable Player award.

In their third and final game of the tournament, Marmora lost to Campbellford 5-1 and came away with the 'A' Runner-up trophy. Lucas Nerling scored Marmora's lone goal. Most Valuable Player was won by Char-maine Neuman.

Madoc Novices end season

Game one in Frankford was all in the host team's favor with the winning goal being scored at 7:25 of the first. Frankford scored three times in the first, added one in the second and two more in the third.

Game two in Madoc was a different story, however, with Madoc having the better of the play forcing the Frankford goalie to make numerous saves. Gerry Brownson, playing in goal for Madoc, also played an outstanding game in goal. He made several stops on sure goals to force the teams into overtime.

Frankford broke the scoreless tie at 5:47 of the overtime and Madoc were unable to score. An excellent game of hockey and one that was very entertaining to fans.

The Novices end their season with a 14 wins, 16 losses and five ties record in their 35 games.

The Madoc Novices gave a valiant effort in their series with Frankford but came out on the losing end of the scoreboard. In both games, Madoc was held scoreless but after a 6-0 loss in the opening game it took until 5:47 of the overtime period before Frankford found the mark.

Stirling's Atom Blues are Central Ontario Champions!!

The Atoms steamrolled over their Pickering Village opposition last Thursday even-them convincingly, 4-2. The Stirling victory forced an extra game.

The Bantams took it to Beeton, on the 26th, but despite an early lead in the game, were cheated out of a victory when Beeton came back to take the game 5-4. The Bantam A team are to be congratulated on a fine effort.

Stirling's Bantam A's took it to the wire but were denied the right to travel to Milverton to battle for the All-Ontario Championship.

Beeton claimed the playoff spot after defeating Stirling in a best-of-five semi-finals series, 7-5.

Beeton had travelled to Stirling, a week ago last Monday, leading the series 5-3, only to be denied an early victory when the Bantams defeated

Novices

The Novice A's are leading their best-of-five series against Lakefield by 2-1 in their bid for the Trent Valley League Novice 'C' division championship.

Lakefield took the first game of the series with a 3-2 overtime victory in Stirling, March 22, but Stirling rebounded to tie up the series on Lakefield's home ice with a 2-1 victory in Lakefield.

The Novices took the lead in the series with a 1-0 shutout victory at home, last Friday evening at 5:00 p.m.

Smut diseases...

Common bunt or Stinking smut

Description: Bunt can be recognized as soon as the wheat is headed out but is more easily seen when the heads begin to ripen. At the time of heading, smutted heads are bluish green in color and remain green longer than healthy heads. As they ripen, smutted heads tend to stand more erect, are paler in color than healthy ones and tend to have a loose or open appearance. (Figure 1)

The bunt balls resemble wheat kernels in general shape but are usually stouter at maturity, causing the glumes to be spread apart, hence the open appearance of smutted heads. Mature bunt balls are dark brown to almost black in color and contain a mass of soot-like spores. When crushed between the fingers these spores usually have a strong, fetid or fishy odor, hence the name, 'stinking smut'. When smutted wheat is threshed, many of these bunt balls are broken open and the spores spread to contaminate sound grain.

Cause: Common bunt is caused by one of two fungi, Tilletia caries and Tilletia foetida, depending on geographical location. T. caries is more common in the northwestern regions; T. foetida in the southeastern regions, but both can be found in most wheat-growing regions of Canada.

The cycle of development is the same for both species of the fungus. The seedling infection occurs largely from spores carried on the seed but soil-borne spores can be involved if winter wheat is planted soon after smutted wheat has been harvested. Normally, spores which fall to the ground during harvest germinate within a few weeks and perish if no susceptible plant material is available for them to infect. Greatest infection occurs at soil temperatures of 5 to 15 deg C with soil moisture ranging from 15 to 60 per cent of field capacity. Infection occurs when fungal spores germinate in contact with or very near the germinating seed. The germinated spores produce structures known as infection hyphae which penetrate the young and tender tissues of the seedling and colonize the region of the growing point. The fungus develops within the plant and at flowering it invades the young ovaries where it prevents the formation of normal kernels. The kernel is replaced by a small ball which is a mass of smut spores enclosed by the ovary wall. During harvest, these smut balls are ruptured and the spores scattered among the healthy seeds where they remain dormant until these seeds are sown and the whole sequence of events repeated.

Control: The fungi which cause this disease are carried over primarily in the form of spores on the surface of wheat kernels. Chemical seed treatment which kills these spores is the most effective method of control. (See Chemical Seed Treatment) For best results the seed used should first be cleaned thoroughly to remove bunt balls, weed seeds, light and shriveled kernels and other impurities.

The use of resistant varieties is highly desirable but cannot be depended upon to the exclusion of other measures because no variety is resistant to all forms of bunt.

DWARF BUNT OF WINTER WHEAT

Description: Diseased heads are similar to those of common bunt. The big difference is in plant height. While plants suffering from common bunt may be a few inches shorter than healthy plants, those suffering from dwarf bunt are about one-half the height or less (Figure 2). Diseased plants also tend to tiller excessively but the dwarfed character is the main identifying feature in the field. Positive diagnosis can be made only by microscopic examination of the spores, which are distinctly different from those of common bunt.

Cause: Dwarf bunt is caused by the fungus Tilletia contraversa.

The cycle of development is similar to that of the fungi which cause common bunt but a very important difference is that, whereas common bunt spores survive in the soil for only a few weeks, spores of the dwarf bunt fungus survive in the soil for several years.

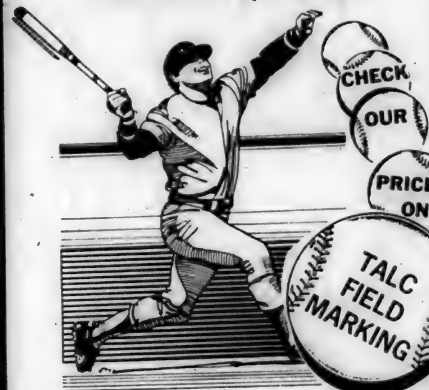

These spores must be exposed to low temperatures and light before they will germinate. Spores that are buried in the soil will not germinate but remain viable in a dormant condition for up to seven years. When they are turned up and exposed to light they will germinate and produce the seedling type of infection in a manner similar to that produced by the common bunt fungus.

Control: The use of resistant varieties is the only feasible approach to control of dwarf bunt but there is no suitable dwarf bunt resistant variety available for Ontario.

Chemical seed treatment, especially with the chlorobenzenes, will kill the spores adhering to wheat seeds and prevent spread of the disease in this manner, but seed treatment is ineffective against spores in the soil. Some control has been achieved by applying fungicidal

Vitamins are the building blocks to better health

By Barry Phillips, Community Pharmacist

The food we eat is the natural source of vitamins and minerals which work together with proteins, carbohydrates and fats to build and repair body tissue.

Three, well-balanced meals a day usually supply us with enough vitamins and minerals. But many people don't have the time to follow this plan, so it's important to know what vitamins and minerals do for us, in case we need supplements.

Because all nutrients work together, too little - or too much - of any one can cause trouble. If you don't think you're getting a balanced diet, consult your doctor or a nutritionist and ask your neighbourhood pharmacist to help you follow through on their recommendations.

Here are some of the better known vitamins and what they do:

Vitamin A: Builds skeleton and teeth; essential for normal vision and healthy skin.

Vitamin B complex: All together, the B vitamins maintain energy and protect against stress.

B-1 Thiamine: Used in processing carbohydrates; maintains normal growth, appetite and functioning of heart and nervous system.

B-2 Riboflavin: For normal growth and cell formation; prevents sensitivity of eyes to light.

B-3 Niacinamide: For appetite and digestion; for conversion of food into protein.

B-5 Pantothenic Acid: For production of hormones and antibodies; maintenance of energy levels and healthy nervous system.

B-6: Used in processing proteins and fat; prevents nervous and skin disorders; alleviates nausea.

B-12: Maintains health of blood and nervous systems; promotes growth and increase of appetite in children.

Folic acid: Promotes healthy looking skin; helps ward off anemia.

Vitamin C: Helps strengthen the 'cement' which holds body cells together, and all tissues such as gums, and blood vessels; helps prevent many types of viral and bacterial infection.

Vitamin D: Used in processing calcium and phosphorus which build strong teeth and bones.

Vitamin E: Protects body's supply of vitamins A and D; maintains red blood cells and strength of tissues; assists with processing of oxygen by cells.

Vitamin H Biotin: For health of cardiovascular system and red blood cells; maintenance of skin and mucous membranes.

Vitamin K: Essential for proper clotting of blood.

Vitamin P: For maintenance of small blood vessels.

Inositol, Choline, Serine: Are together called phosphatides and are essential for the normal processing of fat and cholesterol.

Polyunsaturated Fatty Acids: Essential to energy production; most important is Linoleic acid, which controls deposits of saturated fatty acids on artery walls.

Leucithin: Contains both phosphatides and polyunsaturated acids, as listed above.

Dwarf bunt management

Cont'd from page 3A chemicals to the soil experimentally, but such practice is far too expensive for field use.

Where dwarf bunt is established in a field the field should be taken out of winter wheat for at least four to five years and planted to other cultivated crops. During this time, if the soil is cultivated a number of times, most of the spores will be brought to the surface at one time or another and will perish for lack of a crop to infect.

In order to avoid introducing dwarf bunt to a clean farm, the following precautions are recommended: 1) Use registered or certified seed. Such seed is carefully inspected and a certificate issued only when it is free from dwarf bunt. 2) Make certain that seed brought from outside sources is properly treated with recommended fungicidal seed dressing, preferably one of the chlorobenzene preparations.

Methods of smut control

An extremely important fact in the consideration of resistant varieties for the control of any plant disease is that resistance does not mean immunity.

Some varieties are completely susceptible, some moderately resistant, others highly resistant, but even the highly resistant ones may become diseased to some degree under certain conditions.

A further consideration is that some show differential reactions, being resistant to some forms of the pathogen and susceptible to other forms. Consequently, varietal resistance, as a means of smut control, is effective within definite limits and cannot be depended upon to the exclusion of other measures.

Furthermore, the usefulness of a particular variety may change with time depending upon possible changes in the form of pathogen, and also on availability of other, better varieties.

Recommendation must, therefore, be based on the most current information available such as that found in OMAF Publication 296, Field Crop Recommendation-tions, which is revised annually.

CHEMICAL SEED TREATMENT

Seed treatment with chemicals, to destroy the smut fungus on the seed and to protect the young seedling from infection, has been the principal means of controlling most of our grain smuts.

Until very recently, chemical seed treatment was applicable to the control of surface-borne smuts of the seedling-infection type only. Attempts to control internally-borne smuts of the flower-infection type with chemicals were unsuccessful because the casual fungus is protected by the seed coat and outer tissues. Any chemical which was applied in such a way as to penetrate to the embryo where the fungus is found, was invariably toxic to the embryo as well.

In recent years materials and techniques have been developed whereby this internally-borne fungus can be controlled with special 'systemic' chemicals. 'Systemics' are chemicals which are absorbed by the living tissues of the seed or plant.

In the case of seed treatment for smut control these chemicals destroy the fungus within the seed embryo without injury to the seed.

Seed treatment chemicals are supplied in several forms:

1. Powders are applied dry. This is the form used in drill-box treatments where a carefully-measured amount of chemicals is spread over a measured amount of seed in the drill-box and the lot thoroughly mixed with a small paddle or similar device.

2. Liquids (a) Suspensions (or flowables) which consist of the chemical in fine powder form suspended in a liquid. These are generally more effective than dry powders applied in the drill box because they are applied by means of mechanical seed treaters and thus are more uniformly distributed throughout the seed lot. This form of chemical also tends to adhere to seed better than the dry powder. However, some suspensions settle out with prolonged storage.

Care should be taken that all the material in the container is in suspension before use. If this is not achieved active ingredients will be lost in the sediment and the treatment may not be effective.

(b) True solutions, where the active chemicals are in solution and do not settle out. Some of these are dissolved in an oil base and are marketed as emulsifiable concentrates

(EC) with an emulsifier added to facilitate mixing with water.

Regardless of which form of chemical is used thorough coverage of the seed is important. The object of this treatment is to disinfect the surface of the seed or, in the case of systemics, to destroy the fungus within the seed embryo. To achieve this objective, each individual seed must get a dose of the chemical. Uniform seed coverage is particularly important with the non-volatile systemics. Uniformity of treatment can be determined by observing the distribution of the dye on treated seed.

Give gardens an uncommon appeal

Make your garden the envy of the neighborhood by adding some out-of-the-ordinary flowering plants.

"In many cases, these rather obscure plants are simply unknown to the average gardener, who is willing to risk disaster by choosing unfamiliar plants," says Horticulturist Bob Hamersma of the Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food's Horticultural Research Institute of Ontario, Vineland.

At the same time, those gardeners who do seek the unusual, may be unable to find them in garden outlets because the demand simply is not there.

"Gleaning them from accommodating friends or growing them from seed or from cuttings or divisions in the case of herbaceous perennials" may be the only alternatives available," Hamersma says.

But whatever the source the following unconventional flowering plants should give this year's garden an "uncommon" appeal.

Pasque-flower (Pulsatilla vulgaris) is a hardy perennial which displays showy rich violet cup-shaped flowers in early April and May. It displays furry fern-like foliage and is easily grown from seed.

Heartleaf Bergenia (or Bergenia cordifolia) is also very hardy and grows well in semi-shaded locations.

It blooms early in spring with a showy head of waxy bell-like flowers on a stout flower stalk. Since its leaves are semi-evergreen, the plant is a showpiece year-round.

Other interesting (and unusual) perennials include purple coneflower with showy purplish 10-centimetre daisy-like blooms in August; and cardinal flower, a native plant that exhibits extremely bright scarlet florets along tall slender stems in mid-summer.

But please note that cardinal flower does require moist soil, Hamersma says.

Unusual annual flowering plants can be used very effectively in the garden as well.

Mexican sunflower for example, can grow to a height of 1.5 metres, making it suitable for the back of a border.

It brightens its surroundings with showy orange-scarlet blooms starting in mid-July.

A shorter, but no less showy plant is mealycup sage. It provides a summer-long display of violet-blue spikes and grows to 50 cm in height.

As a compact plant for the front of a border, the globe amaranth with its uniform ball shape and rich, purple blooms is ideal.

The globe amaranth is also suitable for dried-flower arrangements.

Creeping zinnia makes a fine hanging basket or window box plant.

The vines hang over the edge and are covered with small golden orange zinnia-like blooms with black centres. Creeping zinnia also tolerates dry, hot conditions.

If you wish to create an informal effect in the garden, try California poppies. These are available in a wide range of pastel colors which together with its bluish foliage create a soft color effect.

These plants also "self-seed" readily so you may have more than one year to enjoy them.

Many lesser-known annuals have relatively short blooming periods, lasting from three to six weeks depending on the cultivar.

Dry cleaning explained

Dry cleaning is a very ancient process, dating back to an inscription on Mycenaean clay tablets from 1,600 B.C. This reference to the occupation of dry cleaning probably refers to the method of removing greasy stains and dirt from cloth, using grease-absorbing sands and clays, sometimes called 'fullers' earth'. A fuller was a tradesman in the textile industry who performed finishing operations on newly woven cloth refers back to the ancient practice of cleaning with powders. Although certain natural organic solvents like turpentine have long been used as spot removers, it was not until 1845 that the first establishment for use of organic solvents in cleaning was opened. It was set up by J. Baptiste Joly in Paris. This development became possible because of the growth of the chemical industry and the invention of solvents as benzene, naphtha and kerosene. The use of kerosene-powered dry cleaning machinery started in Scotland in 1868. North America's first dry cleaning establishment appeared about 1870. The industry well established the First World War. Before the advent of inexpensive routine dry cleaning, clothes were frequently cleaned by hand. They often had to be unstitched, washed in hot water, blocked for dyes and reassembled. Since the war, and drying, faded colors, dyeing often necessary. It is how many establishments can advertise themselves as 'cleaners' and 'dyers', although dyeing is seldom done now.

The early cleaning solvents were highly flammable. In the 1920s, the first non-flammable solvent, trichloroethylene, was introduced. Germany. The little used trichloroethylene, however, because it was synthetic, fibre in the 1930's, and tetrachloride and tetrachloroethylene were introduced. The toxicity of the former has limited its use. Tetrachloroethylene is the most used solvent and fluorocarbons becoming more popular. In the dry cleaning process, clothes are checked for water soluble stains from food and are spotted and are not removed in dry cleaning. Clothes are then into a dry cleaning machine, which resembles a front-loading for soaking and tumbling in solvent and detergent at a temperature of about 10 minutes. The solvent is completely recirculated through the process. After cleaning, clothes are dried in a steam warm air to the last solvent, either the same machine or a separate dry cleaning process. The solvent is recycled.

Cholic discomfort in horses

Colic is a serious, non-infectious condition that indicates pain in the abdominal cavity. It is one of the major causes of death in horses.

There are two types of colic: spasmodic colic and gas colic. In spasmodic colic, excessive intestinal activity occurs and is characterized by loud sounds in the abdomen. In gas colic, reduced intestinal activity occurs with little or no intestinal sounds. Abdominal sounds can be heard by placing your ear against the horse's abdominal wall.

There are quite a few causes of colic. Parasites in the intestinal tract can irritate the intestines and cause spasms. Spoiled feed also causes intestinal irritation as do sudden changes in feed, over-eating, rapid or excessive drinking and improper chewing of food.

Symptoms of colic include sweating, restlessness (such as getting up and down), rolling, resting in odd positions and kicking at the abdomen.

An elevated heart rate of 80-100 beats or more each minute and severely congested, inner eyelids usually indicates a serious case of colic. Spasmodic colic may also be identified by diarrhea with a lot of intestinal rumbling.

Horses will be in a great deal of discomfort due to the abdominal pain. It is best to keep the animal quiet. Fifteen minute walks every hour might help relieve gas accumulation and, at the very least, can help distract the horse from the pain. There is no reason not to allow the horse to lie down and roll into a comfortable position provided that the horse is calm and quiet.

If there is no improvement after walking and observing the animal, a veterinarian should be brought in to examine the horse. If the pain rises to an acute level, a veterinarian should be notified immediately. Surgery might be needed to alleviate the colic, depending upon its cause. If colic is not treated it may lead to death.

A few ways in which colic can be prevented are throwing away spoiled feed, never feeding grain when the horse is exhausted and keeping the horse's teeth filed down so that food can be chewed properly. Regular deworming and checkups by a veterinarian can also help to catch colic in its early stages before it becomes a major problem. For more information, write to the Communications Officer, Canadian Veterinary Medical Association, c/o this newspaper.

Managing your money...

BY HARRY L. MARDON

Traditionally June was the favorite month for weddings. In recent years, however, December weddings have been very popular because a big tax advantage could be gained. The tax break has been abolished by the February 26 federal budget. Effective immediately, there is no tax benefit to be gained from marrying at any particular time of the year.

Under the federal Income Tax Act married individuals are entitled to a personal tax exemption for dependent spouses. For example, for the 1985 tax year, the married exemption is $3,630 - if the dependent spouse's net income for the year, while married, didn't exceed $510. If the dependent spouse's net income in 1985, while married, was over $510, but not over $4,140, the spouse claiming the married exemption has to do a bit of simple arithmetic.

The dependent spouse's 1985 net income while married is subtracted from the figures $4,140. Let's suppose the net income amount was $3,000. That would result in $1,140 being claimed by the other spouse as a married exemption.

Keep in mind that under the old rules the married exemption was reduced by the spouse's income earned after the date of the marriage.

Obviously, the later in the year a couple became married, the greater the tax advantage one spouse could enjoy.

Here's how the system worked up until the 1986 tax year. John Smith and Jane Martin are engaged to be married. They've decided the wedding should be held in 1985. John has calculated he will earn a total of $30,000 in 1985; Jane has figured she'll earn a total of $22,000.

It is clear that because John has the higher income, he should claim Jane in his 1985 income tax return as the dependent spouse. This has nothing to do with equality of the sexes. It's a matter of saving taxes.

If John and Jane had their wedding at the end of June, when the couple filled out their 1985 tax returns, John would be unable to make use of the married exemption. Jane's net income while married would be more than $4,140, which means there'd be nothing to claim by John in his tax return.

On the other hand, if John and Jane are very tax-conscious individuals and resent paying any more tax than they are forced to, they would have set their wedding for Tuesday, Dec. 31, 1985.

Although Jane would have earned $22,000 during 1985,

she could claim John as a straight dependent. She hadn't been married, so John would be entitled to the married exemption of $3,630. Jane's income would be considered and could tax refund.

Meanwhile, John doesn't get by becoming a dependent spouse. If when the tax was held would have taxes she $22,000, exemption tions she

The net proposes 1986, only married will be dependent income for year inst from the marriage been no protest as will married consist exemption dependent

RABIES

IT'S NO WAY FOR A FRIEND TO DIE.

Protect your family. Vaccinate and leash your pet. Avoid strays.

Last year in Ontario 2,150 people were treated for rabies exposure. As a result, the Ontario Ministry of Health is urging all residents to be extremely cautious. Since the disease is fatal to humans as well as pets, anyone who's been in contact with a rabid animal must take a series of shots.

You can protect your family by taking these simple precautions. First, vaccinate your pets against rabies. Second, keep them on a leash. Third, everyone, especially children, should be taught to avoid strays and wildlife that might carry rabies. Always wear gloves when handling a dead animal. Remember, farm animals can be infected too.

Protect your family and friends by protecting your pets from rabies. It's no way for a friend to die.

Ready to roll

This year, Mr. David Johns of Livingstone Street was disappointed when he could not get his driving licence renewed. It seems that he has a vision problem and it could be six months or more before he knows if anything can be done about it. He is philosophical about it and said that his doctor has told him that in all probability, he couldn't expect much improvement. After having said that, he added, "I've been driving since 1916, so I knew it had to come to an end sooner or later. I've had a fair time of it."

Mr. Johns is an active 86 year old and has difficulty walking. His biggest regret at not having a licence was that he could not get around the village to go shopping and visiting. But that has now changed. He has another vehicle - a battery-operated, three-wheel vehicle, designed specifically for people such as Mr. Johns. He is absolutely delighted with it, explaining how it works, how many speeds it has and how he now has to plan his routes carefully so that he can maneuver onto sidewalks where there are ramps. He has already been into the IGA where there is enough room for him to drive in through the doors. A basket attached to the back of the seat enables him to carry his shopping home without too much effort. With a range of about 15 miles and his six speeds, he can enjoy village life again. So, if you see him around the village, say "Hi, Mr. Johns!", and you'll be rewarded with a hearty "Hi!" and a big, warm smile.

Madoc Atoms Central Ontario Champs

The Mothers' Auxiliary Atoms returned home on Sunday from Little Britain carrying with them the title of Central Ontario Atom 'D' Champions for 1986.

They were met at the arena by the town fire truck and were escorted around town in a victory parade. They were then taken to Kramps' for a victory celebration. Here pizzas, doughnuts and pop were provided.

Thanks go to Harold Bailey, Kramps' Restaurant and the Madoc Fire Department for this victory celebration.

In game one, played in Little Britain, the locals skated away with a 3-0 decision. Robert Tokley opened the scoring at 3:43 of the first from Tim Bailey and this was the way the scoring was to remain until 5:32 of the third, when Tim Bailey was set up by Robert Tokley and Chad Bateman. At 3:06, Brad Phillips added an unassisted goal to sew up the scoring.

Game two was played at home in Madoc and, after a delay in the starting time, Madoc left no doubt as to who the better of the teams was.

Outshooting their opposition 29-5, they skated away with a 4-1 decision. Brad Phillips set the tone for the game when he opened the scoring at 9:09 of the first. This was his first of three for the game. Robert Tokley and Dave Hobson drew assists on the goal. At 5:10 of the period, Little Britain tied the score with their first of the series. Dave Hobson put Madoc into a one-goal lead at 1:29 of the first. Tim Bailey assisted.

Brad Phillips scored twice in the third, after a scoreless second to put Madoc into the driver's seat. Charlie

A new star is born?

BY DAVID HILL
On the 25th of March, 1986, Madoc's Hunter Ford Pee Wee B's played their last game of the 1985-86 season. This proved to be one of the toughest games of the season as the opposing team was made up of parents.

The parents' team, captained by Fires On 12 Barb Preston, soon showed that the parents could skate and opened up a 2-0 lead. Then it happened - a new 'Star' stepped on the ice. The dazzling beauty and skating ability of 'Wiggles Wiggins' (Earl Wiggins) helped the score to 4-0.

Not to be outdone, the younger legs of the Pee Wees began to tell and the score closed to 5-4 for the parents, the real winners being the participants, playing and watching.

The evening finished up with pizza and pop. Yet another successful season

Letter to the editor

Controlled burn for gypsy moth

Referring to a letter which I read recently in one of our local newspapers, in regards to the spraying of chemicals to get ahead of the gypsy moth.

Three years ago the Ministry of Natural Resources asked the Ontario Hydro not to spray along their right-of-ways due to the pollution of the local water areas. Now they are proposing to do the very same with little care about the water pollution or anything else that might be in their way.

I would like to know how they plan on protecting our water sources from the spraying. In 1982, they sprayed an area with sevin, which killed a lot of our smaller animals, birds and bees, but did very little to help combat the problem of the Gypsy Moth.

I would like to propose a far simpler, safer and surer way of destroying these menaces.

I have been fire

warden for 22 years and have seen a lot in our forest land, and I know from past experience that fire can be controlled to benefit nature.

The benefits of fire control burning are as follows:

(a) You can reach the Gypsy Moth at the most early stage, also kill the germs of rabies on the ground which is spreading fast in our area.

(b) It would make better pasture for our deer and better blueberry plants for our citizens.

(c) It would clean up the undergrowth in many of our forests.

(d) It would be far cheaper than spraying. The residents of Ontario will be spending millions of dollars on spraying of our forest, while control burning would be the cost of the Warden's wages only.

I propose that the men on unemployment and welfare be asked to help the fire warden in their municipality to combat the problem. These men are already being paid by the government, so let them earn some of their wages.

Controlled burning at the right time in the spring, will give the animals, birds, bees and even humans a better chance of surviving, than by deadly spraying with chemicals.

This is our forest and our lives we are talking about. Let's join hands and fight for a safer way of life.

Mr. Donald Freeburn, Flint, Ontario.

Huntingdon Recreation committee

A meeting of the Huntingdon Township Recreation Committee was held at the Township Hall at 7 p.m. on Sunday, Mar. 16, 1986. Present at the meeting were: Chairman Blake Reeves, Treasurer Winnifred Rollins, Councillors Bill Allen and Ted Pollock and member Jack Douglas. Also present were Bill Waugh, Doug Wood, Sandra Wood, Gloria Reid, Sheila Zajac, Lee Mitz and Blanche Douglas and Bonnie Jones.

The meeting was called to order by Chairman Blake Reeves and the committee then covered several items relating to administration.

Moved by Ted Pollock, Seconded by Winnifred Rollins, That Lee Mitz be named Vice-Chairman of the Canteen Committee; Chris Spencer Vice-Chairman of the Field Committee and Blanche Douglas Vice-Chairman of the Bingo Committee, with Sheila Zajac and Gloria Reid to be members at large and That Township By-Law No. 2135-85, Section 2(b) be amended to show a membership of at least five residents and not more than ten. Carried.

Chairman Blake Reeves will be attending a Recreation Seminar in May.

Moved by Bill Allen: Seconded by Jack Douglas: That Blake Reeves attend the Recreation Seminar and That registration, accommodation and mileage fees be paid by the Recreation Committee. Carried.

It was decided to schedule a fund-raising dance for April 26th, at the Township Hall. A letter is to be sent to the Health Unit requesting their approval.

Regarding the purchase of a new bingo machine, Sandra Wood has advised that the bingo machine has been cleaned and is in good working order; therefore, does not feel that this expenditure is required at the present time. It was her understanding that Mr. Waugh had cancelled the order.

Gloria Reid reported on the bingos which are held in Thurlow at the Quinte Bingo Hall. The Committee decided that they were not interested in reserving a spot for the monthly bingo at the present time.

The meeting adjourned at 10 p.m.

CPTA meeting

Sacred Heart CPTA is holding a general meeting on May 1st on The Problem of Pornography. According to CPTA President David Handley, a member of the Ontario Censor Board will be there to speak. Following that, we will view the acclaimed National Film Board (NFB) film Not a Love Story with a general discussion with teachers, parents, pastors and support personnel to follow the film.

Handley is justifiably proud of the format for this meeting but warns that the film should be viewed by an invited audience only, and by persons over the age of 18. Some of the material included is pornography and could be very disturbing to some viewers, he said. The film is about pornography and was produced by the NFB in 1981. It is the chronicle of two women who set out to explore the world of peep shows, strip joints and sex supermarkets. The film, which is 68 minutes long, is sometimes difficult and painful to watch.

Father and son team

John McCann and his partner, Lyndon, have taken over the Hulin's Garage and Farm Equipment business as of April 1, 1986. The business will continue to service the needs of the community as far as the sales of chain-saws, and repairs of small motors, chain-saws and what-have-you. Additionally, John is going to be offering a welding service from the premises so that he can better serve the needs of the farming community.

John and his wife,

Marlene, have three sons and two daughters, all of whom are grown up and on their own. They operate a beef farm locally, although in recent years they have cut back on the amount of livestock they carry.

The youngest son, Lyndon, will be joining John in the store in the very near future and is a partner in the new venture.

John is a busy man. Apart from helping his wife on the farm, he drives the school bus, runs a country band, is a licensed hand gun instructor, teaches welding courses for Loyalist at the local high school and manages the second. Little Britain was held scoreless until 1:56 of the third, when they scored (only their second of the series). Final score 2-1 for Madoc.

Congratulations boys on a job well done! The end of a very successful year. The road to victory included a 2-0 series over Colborne for league championship; 3-1 series over Warkworth; a 3-0 series over Wellington, and 3-0 series over Little Britain. In league play and play-off, the boys only lost three games this year.

Their newsletter of April 1st, describes the meeting as 'An armchair tour of historic North Hastings'. A slide presentation, conducted by Bob Lyons, a reporter for the Bancroft Times, will cover such places as Gilmour, Gunter, Coe Hill, Umphraville, Wallace and other places as well as taking a look at the routes of the Old Central Ontario Railway. Additionally, Bob will focus on the pioneer white settlers and the Indians of those times.

The meeting is to be held in the auditorium of the Quinte Living Centre, 370 Front St., Belleville, and starts at 7:30 with coffee and a social half hour.

More about gypsy moth spray program

Much has been written about the problem of the Gypsy Moth, and plans for spraying are well underway. Those private landowners who wish to participate in this spraying program, are reminded that the deadline for applications is April 15th. These application forms can be obtained from John Anstey, Co-ordinator Gypsy Moth Programme, at the County Administration Building in Belleville.

In a just-released press release, the Ministry has the following to say about the spray programme -

The Ministry of Natural Resources will be spraying the biological insecticide, Bacillus thuringiensis, to control the gypsy moth on certain tracts of crownland in Tweed District this spring.

All landowners whose private land lies adjacent to these crown tracts have been notified by mail of the spraying.

'We hope that anyone who has concerns about the crownland spraying program will notify us at the Tweed office,' said Alec Denys, Co-ordinator of the Ministry's Gypsy Moth Program.

'To ensure an effective program,' said Denys, 'we propose to spray up to the property line between crown and private land. This may result in some spray material drifting a short distance onto private land. The program, however, can be modified, if the private landowner so desires.'

Please address all concerns and questions to the Ministry of Natural Resources

Tweed District office at Box 70, Tweed, Ontario, K0K 3J0 or phone (613) 478-2330 before April 15, 1986.

Helmuth Dumbrowski, who has been seconded from the Land Department to the Ministry's Gypsy Moth Program, added the fact that the spray material used is not an instant killer of the pest.

'When a Gypsy Moth caterpillar eats a treated leaf, it stops eating in about four or five hours and can take up to five days before it expires. So be aware that if you have your property sprayed, don't look for immediate results.

Spraying could get under way about mid-May, depending on the development of egg masses. The program will not eradicate the problem entirely, but will cause a decrease in the infestation and so give the trees a better chance of recovery.

Examination of the egg masses in the Kaladar area, which was previously sprayed, seemed to show that this year's crop will be smaller in number.

Dental Health

'Dental Health - Good For Life' is the theme of the Canadian Dental Association's dental awareness program. It is also the theme of Dental Health Month in Canada - APRIL - and Dental Health Week in Ontario - April 12 to 19.

The 'Good For Life' theme was chosen to stress two essential and often misunderstood aspects of dental health:

1) Dental health is an important part of overall health.
 2) It is possible to keep teeth and gums healthy for a lifetime.

Health Unit Dental Services staff, in conjunction with dental hygienists and assistants from the Quinte area, will be focussing on dental health at their display booth at the Quinte Mall, Friday and Saturday, April 25 and 26.

Featured at this display will be:
 1) a visit from the infamous 'Murphy the Molar'
 2) a Toothbrush

Exchange, where old, frizzled toothbrushes can be exchanged free for a new toothbrush.

This being Dental Health Week in Ontario, the Hastings and Prince Edward Counties Health Unit have issued some interesting statistics.

OPP Report

During the period of March 28 to April 3, 1986, officers of the Madoc Detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police investigated 70 general occurrences and three traffic accidents.

On Friday, Mar. 28, 1986, Steven D. Barber of RR 5, Madoc, Ontario, reported his residence broken into. Entry was gained by forcing open the rear kitchen door. Thieves stole five rifles, two shotguns and other property valued at $5,000 from the residence. Const. G. Leaver is continuing his investigation.

On Friday, Mar. 28, 1986, William Milligan of Conc. 2, Rawdon Township, reported the theft of three saddles valued at $1,200 from his tack shop. Const. D. Creelman is investigating this theft.

On Friday, Mar. 28, 1986, James Hurst of Oshawa, Ontario, reported his cottage on Dickie Lake broken into. Entry was gained by forcing open the patio door. Thieves stole two shotguns, one rifle, a 20" color TV and a complete stereo component set. The property is valued at $3,500. Const. R. Bontor is investigating.

On Sunday, Mar. 30, 1986, William Emery of Springbrook, Ontario, reported his house broken into and anti AM/FM cassette, radio stereo stolen. The break-in was investigated by Const. R. Bontor. As a result of the investigation, Bruce Cooper, 18, of Springbrook, Ontario, has been charged with Break, Enter and Theft.

On Saturday, Mar. 29, 1986, David Heid of RR 1, Thomasburg, reported the theft of a 12-drawer tool box full of tools and a 1974 six HP Chrysler outboard motor from his residence. The items stolen are valued at $1,300.

On Tuesday, Apr. 1, 1986, Ronald A. Lipsett, formerly of Madoc, Ontario, appeared in District Court in Belleville, Ontario. Lipsett was convicted of the theft of a VCR from the Madoc Hotel and was sentenced to eight months in jail.

Good for life

In this school year over 9,000 students have received a dental screening examination in 41 schools, and over 12,600 students in 409 classrooms have received dental health education. Just over 80 per cent of the students had no decay and this is viewed as good news.

Despite these efforts, it seems that almost 50 per cent of the students had 'poor oral hygiene' and in 16,000 students, there were over 8,000 unfilled or decayed teeth. In the listing of the 20 best schools, in respect of dental health care, there was no mention of the local schools.

Perhaps as parents, we should bolster the efforts of the health services by taking a little extra time to ensure good oral hygiene in our children and family.

It costs nothing to let teeth deteriorate, but can be quite expensive to fix them up.

CHSS Martial Arts Club Report

In the last article, we focused on several Karate practise drills we perform in our Dojo, in particular to strengthen the legs. Allow me, this time, to concentrate on a further method of practise we do, referred to as 'San-bon Kumite' or Three Step Sparring.

Now, to someone watching, 'San-bon Kumite' would seem a fairly basic routine of punching or kicking versus blocking skills, one partner advancing, one partner retreating for three steps each.

Our 'San-bon Kumite' drills are usually divided into three parts. In the first part, both sides practise slowly, developing good form, proper distancing, and the smooth transfer of body weight from leg to leg, as one stance switches to the next. Of course, although performed slowly, this part is still good exercise, particularly if stances and hips are held low. However, no great speed and strength are applied to techniques. The emphasis here, as I've said, is on proper form.

Step two, drilled at average speed, develops flow of movements, with a little more muscle, stronger breathing methods, and a firm focus of power at the full extension of techniques. Here, we encourage students to remember to relax at the proper moments and to maintain a presence of mind and a control over the emotions. Many beginners are eager to thrust out with their new Karate techniques. The more experienced are better able to control their energy.

The third phase, introduces an all-out pace. This pace may be held for more than five minutes, non-stop. The workout is quite intense. Though the class is driven to work harder and harder with each step forward, students are still encouraged to maintain form and composure, not to let the emotions run rampant. In martial arts practice, prolonged repetition of movements at a fairly intense level eventually produces a state which is referred to as

'Zanshin' - a type of relaxed awareness.

When practising the great Kata drills - Bassai, Seisan, Chinto - there is a showing of 'Zanshin' at the beginning and end of the Kata drill where a pause is inserted into the rhythm. Repeated practise produces an abiding sense of dignity which is immediately apparent to an onlooker by the composure of the face and the erect posture of the back.

We teach, also through the vehicle of hard workouts, that good manners are a demonstration of strength. Therefore, all our drills, whether the 'San-bon Kumite' or the Kata drills, begin and end with a bow. As the great Karate master Funakoshi instructed: 'Without courtesy, the spirit of Karate is lost.'

music and dance on Friday April 11 and Saturday April 12.

When most folks were winding down from holiday festivities, warmed up to a good fire, TNT members were meeting to prepare this year's program. Pouring over scripts, reading plays and brainstorming resulted in an excellent selection of material for this year's show.

Featured will be the one act of Merrill Denison play "Brothers In Arms" light hearted look at the differences between city and country people. This year and its author have special meaning to Tweed and particularly the Tweed Playhouse. Over sixty years ago Denison's plays were performed at the Tweed Playhouse and the restored playhouse bears a dedication to the playwright. As a summer resident of the Mazinaw area, Denison reflected the character and characters of this area in his plays.

Spring Run-Off '86 will also treat you to a well known short play called "Sorry Wrong Number" by Lucille Fletcher. If you like a bit of suspense and mystery we've got it with this little number.

TNT has decided to include more song and dance in this year's program. Music director Ron Lavallee has been working diligently on a great selection of musical numbers.

If it seems winter is refusing to lift it's slushy grip from your weather-weary spirit TNT offers a helping hand. Reserve

Friday April 11 and Saturday April 12 at 8:00 p.m. for some of the springiest entertainment you could hope for. The cost of this fine spring tonic will be $4.00. Seniors and Students $3.00. For further information contact: Doug Peterson (613)-478-6883.

Justice Week

As part of Justice Week, April 13-19, Hastings and Prince Edward Legal Services will present an evening seminar on Tenants' Rights. The seminar, entitled "Know Your Rights! Stand Up For Your Rights!", will discuss the rights tenants have and how tenants can enforce those rights.

The seminar will take place at the Education Centre, 156 Ann Street (at Dundas), Belleville, Tuesday, Apr. 15th, at 7:30 p.m.

Managing your money

By Harry L. Mardon

The new federal budget contains some good news for Canada's senior citizens. They will be able to enjoy much greater freedom of choice over their sources of retirement income.

What the budget proposes is that effective for the 1986 taxation year, the rules governing what you may do with money you've accumulated in a Registered Retirement Savings Plan will be much more flexible.

At present you have a very limited set of options when it comes to withdrawal of your funds from an

RRSP. Firstly, you can take all or part of your RRSP money as cash, but you will have to include it as taxable income for the year. You'd probably pay a lot of needless tax.

Another option is for you to use all or part of your RRSP fund to purchase either a life annuity or a term certain annuity.

Annuities are issued by life insurance companies and although they provide certain retirement income benefits, they also have some big drawbacks. On the plus side, the average life annuity gives you a guaranteed level of income over the remainder of your lifetime.

However, there are several major disadvantages to an annuity. Firstly, often an annuity has no provision for income growth as a hedge against inflation. That means that the purchasing power of your annuity payments will decline over the years. Secondly, you have absolutely no control over your capital. You can't cancel an annuity and use what capital value is left for another investment. Termination of certain annuities are some-

AT THE MOVIES

with Rick Jackson

Gung Ho offers a lot of laughs

Directed by Ron Howard (COCOON), GUNG HO is a very funny movie. Michael Keaton is perfectly cast as Hunt Stevenson, the man who saves Hadleyville, Pa. from being a ghost town.

Inspired by a 60 Minutes segment, the screenplay by Lowell Ganz and Babaloo Mandel takes a serio-comic look at the Japanese influence in one of North America's biggest industries: car manufacturing.

Keaton, who made his film debut in Howard's 1982 smash hit, NIGHT SHIFT, carries the movie nicely. From the first time you see him, he is funny. His timing is impeccable, especially when the plot begins to wear a bit thin by the last reel.

In other roles, Gedde Watanabe plays Kazahiro, who establishes the first U.S. branch of his company, Assan Motors, in Hadleyville. Veteran Japanese actor Soh Yamamura stars as Mr. Sakamoto, the company's president. Mimi Rogers is Audrey, Keaton's love interest.

Of all the moments in the film, there are two which made me laugh. When the Japanese are greeted at the airport, the carpet the welcoming party rolls out comes from the Rivoli Theater. It's a nice comic touch, and a reminder of a far funnier scene in THE REAL DICTATOR (1940) where Chaplin satirized Mussolini's arrival by train.

My second favorite scene takes place in an office where the Japanese look at a model of a car. When it loses a wheel, the Japanese giggle and say, "American car."

Under Howard's direction, Gung Ho is well paced, and there are a lot of laughs.

Crime of the week...

Marmoraton mine thefts

Between November 1983 and March 1984, thieves removed a large quantity of No. 4 copper wire from the former Marmoraton Mine site. Culprits used chainsaws to cut down the hydro poles on the site and cut the wire into manageable lengths. The wire was then manhandled to the old mine road which is the extension of Mary St., Marmora, where it was loaded onto a vehicle of unknown description. All of these thefts occurred during daylight hours and a total of 3,000 feet of wire was stolen. Bus bars from the hydro sub station on the mine property were also stolen resulting in $70,000 damage to the sub station.

Investigations to date have failed to result in the apprehension of persons responsible. Madoc OPP are requesting the help of the public in solving this matter.

Anyone having information regarding these thefts are requested to contact PC R. Bonter or PC R. Garrow at 473-4234.

Mathematics contest

BY DAVID M. HANDLEY

The 8th Annual Quinte Region Mathematics Contest (which includes the 13th Annual BCIVS Math Contest for some of the schools involved) was written by almost 1,000 students from 43 schools across the Quinte area - from Picton to Bancroft, from Deseronto to Norwood.

This year's entry of 933 students is up by 10 per cent over last year and is a record number (for the third consecutive year). Almost half of the schools (21) and 51 per cent of the students are from schools within the jurisdiction of the Hastings County Board of Education; 11 schools and 22-1/2 per cent of students entered are from the Separate School Board; seven schools with 18 per cent of the students are from the Prince Edward Board; the remaining four schools are Albert College, the Belleville and Trenton Christian schools.

and Norwood P.S. - the first entry from outside the counties of Hastings and Prince Edward.

The contest consists of 30 multiple choice questions which the students (from Grades 4 to 8) have 75 minutes to answer. A correct answer to each of the first 20 questions is worth five marks, a question not attempted scores two marks, while a wrong answer scores NO marks. The final 10 questions score double the marks (10, 4, 0 respectively).

This marking scheme penalizes students who guess and also eliminates really low marks. The maximum mark remains the same as in previous years - 200; although this mark has never been achieved (yet!). A score of over 150 is rare.

Team scores are determined by adding up the best three individual scores, up to Grade 6 for the Junior Contests, up to Grade 8 for the Senior.

The contest will be

received and dedicated.

Thirteen members gathered at the home of Dora Palmer for the April UCW meeting. President Lois Blackburn welcomed everyone and asked all members to repeat the UCW Purpose in unison. The president read a poem entitled 'God's Great Love', followed by a humorous reading 'A Cure For The Common Cold'. We will keep the remedy in mind for next year or the next cold.

The minutes of the last meeting were read by assistant secretary Audrey Chambers. Treasurer's report was given by Edith Boyle. Roll call was answered by reporting on cards sent, and calls made to sick or shut-ins, also a donation of women's clothing to be sent to Scott Mission.

A short business meeting followed. Spring Fling will be held May 6, in Picton. Florence Blakely was in charge of the program and worship service. The worship service began with the singing of the hymn, 'The Church is Our Foundation'. Scripture reading was taken from St. Mark 16, verses 9-20. A short reading left us with this message:

'A Christian has the power to cope regardless of what we are asked to face'. A poem 'Faithful Few' was read and prayer closed the worship service.

The program began with a reading 'Giving Help to Those in Need' and 'Words That Hurt and Words that Help' making us more aware that how we speak to one another can either be a boost toward personal development or a real personal putdown. What a boost to everyone's moral if we all spoke with respect to one another. A poem 'All Pull Together' was read. A contest was enjoyed by all. Hostess Dora Palmer served a tasty lunch.

40 years is enough!

Hulin's Garage and Farm Equipment Supply has changed hands and is out of the family.

Mel Bronson decided that enough was enough After 40 years in business in the same location, it was time to ease up. Mel took over the business from his uncle on February 10th, 1946.

The business, which started operation in 1926, is essentially the same today as it was when it first opened. The original parts bins and counters have not been altered and Mel claims that he can walk into the store in the dark of the night, without a light and pick out a part that he needs.

Mel served in the army in World War Two and saw service in England and France. He arrived home on February 9th, 1946, and started work in his store February 10th.

Forty years of service to the community through his business is worthy of recognition, but there is another side to Mel and his sticking to the job. This year marks his 40th anniversary as a firefighter in Madoc. He says that though he is retiring from business, he's going to carry on his association as Deputy Fire Chief with the Madoc Fire Department. This and his duties as Vice President of the Madoc

Legion will keep him happy.

When asked what he was going to do now that he's retiring, he said 'Nothing' and followed it up with that well-known laugh of his. In 40 years you become something of an institution and when an institution retires, it is missed.

We wish Mel Bronson a happy and fulfilling retirement.

Mel Bronson

In the midst of taking care of all the paperwork involved in transferring a business and establishing relations with dealers and suppliers, he managed to find time to say that he and Lyndon are looking forward to serving old and new customers.

With his capacity for hard work and a wide range of friends and acquaintances, he should do well and prosper.

Welcome to the business community John and Lyndon.

The Madoc Fire Department was called out last Thursday to handle a trash fire that had gotten out of control.

Mike Robitaille, who had started the trash fire, explained that a gust of wind picked up some burning embers and dropped them onto dry grass. He complimented the Fire Department on their quick response which kept the damage to about a half-acre of grass.

The fire came quite close to the house and this was Robitaille's main concern. In fighting the flames, he suffered a couple of minor burns on his arm, but didn't need medical treatment.

The old doors were in poor shape from the point of view that threat of them jamming shut at some inopportune time. Additionally, the old doors had so

Havelock Novices are Eastern Zone Champions!

As reported last week, the Havelock Nordic Cresting Novices and Frankford are in a best three-out-of-five series in this, the highest level of play-offs for their Novice level - the Eastern Zone finals.

To recap games one and two: Havelock won the first game 3-2 after overtime. Game two ended in a 2-2 tie in overtime.

Game three: Frankford hosted this game on Monday, Mar. 24. Both teams played a tight game and the excitement was high. Frankford's Mike Lockwood put in two goals and Havelock's Cory Holland retaliated, unassisted, but time ran out on the clock for Havelock, leaving Frankford with a 2-1 victory.

Game four: On March 27, the two teams met again in Havelock. The pressure was on with both teams being tied at three points. Havelock came out flying and took control of the game! Final score 5-2 for Havelock. Goals by Cal Larmer (2), Cory Holland, Adam Levesque and Kevin Larmer. Assists from Cory Holland (3), and Cal Larmer.

Game five: date - Easter Sunday, Mar. 30. Place - Havelock Community Centre to a large crowd of enthusiastic fans. Both teams were tense knowing that this could be the final game for the Eastern Zone Championship.

Havelock started the scoring with goals by Bryce Levesque from Travis Toms and Cory Holland from Cal Larmer. Frankford's Mike Lockwood netted a high shot past Mike Buchanan in the second period. Before the period's end Cory Holland and Jamie Menzies added two to Havelock's score with assists from Cal Larmer and Bryce Levesque. Frankford's Kevin Bamber scored with three minutes left in the game in a vain attempt to catch up. The buzzer went off signalling the game's end amid cheers from the crowd with a score of 4-2 for Havelock.

The Havelock Novices are the Eastern Zone Championship winners for the 1985-'86 season! Congratulations boys!

These 15 youngsters displayed great spirit and enthusiasm for the sport of hockey during the past season and when added to the amazing amount of teamwork they put together they emerged from regular season as a team to be reckoned with. Their track record speaks for itself. During regular season these boys had 18 wins, two ties, and two losses in 22 games, and during 13 playoff games had 11 wins; one tie and one loss.

The coaches are very proud of these youngsters that they have come to know so well. Well done boys - you've earned it through hard work!

Volunteer Fire Fighters Training Centre

'Two for the Show' Local talent competes and entertains to raise money for Area Volunteer Firefighters Training Centre.

Friday, Apr. 25th, marks the first in a series of eight local talent shows throughout East Central Ontario. In the Norwood Town Hall that first evening, the two best acts will become finalists during the Second Annual Norwood Invitational Variety Show, Sunday, Aug. 24th. A few weeks later, 'Two for the Show' in Marmora will add two more acts to the list of 16 finalists. Hence, the title, 'Two for the Show'.

These eight talent contest-variety shows will funnel winners into the Sunday, Aug. 24th, Day-long, 2nd Annual Variety Show, sponsored by the Norwood Chamber of Commerce, with all proceeds to aid the Eastern Ontario Volunteer Firefighters Training Centre.

The 16 finalists will be awarded 'Two for the Show' plaques designed by Designer Trophies and Awards of Havelock, and the first place winner will receive $500 in cash.

Captain Jim Smith of the Peterborough Unit says the Volunteer Training Centre being built in Norwood will eventually become a very large complex with facilities to fully train volunteers from the entire region in all facets of modern firefighting methods with the latest in equipment and classroom instruction.

The contests are open to solo performers with talent in guitar, fiddle, accordion, voice, and dancing, and will be accompanied by a trio of musicians who will travel to each show as will the trio of judges. Volunteer firefighters in each community will assist in the promotion and presentation of each program.

The shows will take place on Friday evenings in the following communities:

Norwood, April 25 - Warren for Marmora at 395-3595; Judy Warsaw, May 9 - Howard for Hastings at 696-2269; and Fred Hastings, June 20th - Keene, Stirling and Apsley, July, August dates TBA.

Anyone interested in participating in this venture should contact Bill Sutherland for Norwood at 639-5474; Randy Warren for Marmora at 395-3595; Judy Howard for Hastings at 696-2269; and Fred Miles for Havelock at 778-2476.

The public is invited to enjoy local talent at its best all summer long. Tickets will be on sale at the door only on the night of each performance.

Captain Jim Smith comments that 'Two for the Show', while providing entertainment and a vehicle for local talent, will greatly assist in heightening public awareness for the much-needed Training Centre.

Fuel costs in maple syrup production studies in Kemptville

BY BILL LANGENBERG

Staff at the Research and Educational Maple Syrup Facility at the Kemptville College of Agricultural Technology are looking at ways of reducing fuel costs in the production of maple syrup.

Evaporating maple sap into maple syrup - a spring time tradition on many Ontario farms - has become a costly enterprise. Of the production costs, fuel costs have risen dramatically over the past 15 years. In 1968, seven per cent of the production costs were attributed to fuel. In 1984, this cost component had risen to 16 per cent.

By recapturing waste steam produced by the evaporation process, thereby providing an alternate heat source to evaporate maple sap, the college has found that the fuel costs can be reduced by 27 per cent.

An Economizer,

designed by the University of Waterloo, was tested at the Kemptville College of Agricultural Technology from 1981 to 1985. This machine captures escaping waste steam from the maple sap evaporator and uses the heat to evaporate maple sap before it is processed the conventional way. Results produced from research at the college have shown that the Economizer

Consumers, beware auctions!

Consumers are being warned to watch out for a type of sales scam, commonly called mock auctions, that recently reappeared in Ontario.

Promoters of these schemes generally hit one community at a time, renting a local hall and distributing flyers announcing a huge sale to local residents.

The flyers list dozens of items, from microwave ovens to stereos, that are to be sold off at very low prices. Often, these prices are quoted in the ad to help attract buyers.

'In fact, prices are usually so low, they're unbelievable,' says Roberta Allan of the Ontario

All Ontario YC convention

"Trust and be free" will be the theme of a convention that will bring 600 young people from across the province to Kingston from May 16-19.

The four day gathering, will be the 12th All-Ontario Young Calvinist Convention. The YCF is the North American organization of youth groups of Calvinist churches, including the Christian Reformed Church.

Queen's University will be the headquarters for the convention that will be highlighted by a Sunday worship service. Because that particular event could attract up to 3,000 people, the service will be held at the Kingston Memorial Centre.

The convention will also feature three main speakers: Herb DeRuyter from Ottawa West Christian Reformed Church, Rev. Wildeboer from Oshawa Zion, Christian Reformed Church and Rev. Visser from the Belleville Maranatha Christian Reformed Church.

Along with fellowship, participants, ranging in age from 16 years to 25, will participate in sporting activities, a talent show and musical entertainment.

Visits to old age homes, hospitals and penitentiaries in the Kingston area by youth representatives will also play an important part of the convention.

The annual gathering is designed to provide fellowship, growth and learning in the Christian faith.

In the ad for THE MONEY PIT, it shows Tom Hanks and Shelley Long smiling on the roof of their dream house. It is ironic that the film is not funny, and its two stars are wasted in this terrible comedy.

Directed by Richard Benjamin, The Money Pit tries too hard to tickle our funnybone. There is not one good laugh in the whole movie. Even the actors look unnatural on the big screen, as they walk on and off screen on cue.

Written by David Giler, the story is well thought out and there is ample opportunity for Hanks and Long to make us laugh. But it never happens. The two actors fall for each other, complain, and fight so much that it ruins our enjoyment of the picture.

The money pit

Hanks plays Walter, a lawyer who falls in love with Anna, a viola player, played by Long. The two are living in her ex-husband Max's apartment. When the film opens, Walter and Anna are making love in the bedroom. The unexpected return of Max means the two lovebirds will have to live somewhere else. A real estate friend of Walter's sells them an old house for a price which is too good to refuse. Once they move in, however, they learn why. In an excellent supporting role, Maureen Stapleton stars as Estelle, the lady who owns the house that Walter and Anna buy. It's too bad that her role is so short, because she adds a touch of class to the movie.

Produced by Frank Marshall, Kathleen Kennedy and Art Levinson. The Money Pit is a lacklustre comedy.

Farmers

Farming has been the backbone of this country of ours from the time that the early settlers cleared the land and forests and planted their first crops.

Farmers have been faced with high costs, high technology, high interest rates, tough competition and not least, the vagaries of our climate.

Now they are facing another situation that is going to make their rows even harder to hoe. To illustrate this problem here's a true story.

A hog farmer on the east coast, operating the farm that had been in his family for some time, found that the neighboring farmland had been sold, severed and sub-divided and developed. This didn't cause him much concern. That is, until the people moving into the new houses started to complain about the farm smells coming from his barns. The matter reached the courts and the farmer was found guilty of polluting the air and ordered to take remedial action. It has cost this man thousands of dollars in legal expenses and could cost him his livelihood.

This has happened here in Ontario as well, and even as close as the county. Established land use not withstanding, the farmers are having to pay legal costs to try and maintain their farms.

The concerns over this problem has been such that the Minister of Agriculture and Food has formed the Ontario Right to Farm Advisory Committee which will be holding a series of public hearings across the province during this month.

This committee is composed of people with farming backgrounds and they have been asked to recommend options for ensuring that farmers have adequate protection from incompatible land-uses and complaints against normal farm practices.

As I see it, if you move into the country you accept what is already there, or as the old carnival barkers used to shout 'Yer pays yer money and takes yer chances.'

Mock auction promoters manipulate

Ministry of Consumer and Commercial Relations (MCCR). 'Unfortunately, too many people believe them and they attend the sale eager to snatch up all the bargains. It's amazing to watch how the promoters of these sales manipulate people once they arrive at the hall.'

The sales are not advertised as auctions. Some promoters even state, 'This is not an auction,' on their flyers. However, the set-up at the hall is similar to the classic auction arrangement, with a salesperson standing at the front of the room. Rather than taking bids on items, he starts off by hand picking people from the audience and asking such things as 'If I offered you this TV set for $300 would you buy?' Once a few people have agreed to buy the merchandise, the 'auctioneer' usually publicly announces he's changed his mind about the price and drops it by a few hundred dollars. Sometimes a number of other valuable items are thrown in when the price is cut. This scenario may be repeated a few times.

'People just go wild,' says Allan. 'The promoters deliberately create a carnival atmosphere and build people up into what can only be described as mass hysteria. Members of the audience see these few people getting fabulous deals and they are frantic to be picked for the next one.'

Unfortunately, that next deal - when as many as a hundred people may be picked out by the sales person - is usually a waste of money. The audience is so frenzied by then, they'll pay inflated prices for small items in the belief major appliances and other expensive merchandise will be thrown in by the auctioneer. But it never happens, Allan says.

The sales are not generally illegal because of the way they are operated. 'The salesperson's phrasing is carefully picked,' Allan explains. 'He asks people, 'If I offered, who would buy?' So, in effect, people are volunteering to buy for whatever price is discussed at the time. They aren't being forced.'

By the time these sales end, hundreds of people may walk away with items worth half the price they paid for them. Reports received by the ministry indicate at least some of electronic merchandise, such as radios, clocks and tape recorders is of poor quality.

'We get letters from people who are amazed and angry that they allowed themselves to be so thoroughly mesmerized by a sales person,' Allan says. 'I understand how they feel. The exact same thing happened to me some years ago in Scotland. This has been a popular scam in a number of countries for many years, but there always seems to be a new operator starting up and a new group of people to be hooked.'

The ministry would be interested in hearing about any mock auctions operating in Ontario. To report one of these sales, contact a local consumer advisory bureau.

Rotation of the earth

BY NIGEL BUNCE
AND JIM HUNT College of Physical Science
University of Guelph

What is the length of the day? To say it is the time for one rotation of the earth is really to beg the question since there is no way to check if that time is constant. However, for a very long time this is how one day or 24 hours was defined.

In fact, until 1955 clocks were actually adjusted to agree with the observed rotation of the earth. This was done in special observatories where the precise moment of the transit of certain stars was observed daily to ensure that clocks always coincided with the rotation of the earth.

In the pre-electronic era, the only instrument available to subdivide the day into smaller units such as hours, minutes and seconds, was the pendulum clock. Nevertheless by 1936, these clocks were sufficiently accurate that it could be determined that the length of the day in January was longer than in July by two m sec: that is two one-thousandths of a second. This was a remarkable feat requiring the detection of a change of one part in 100 million.

The electronic age brought the quartz crystal clock in the late 1930s. Although we wear them on our wrists today, they were cumbersome affairs then, but they could measure changes in the length of the day to one part

Maple syrup

not only reduced the fuel consumption in maple syrup production, but also increased the evaporation rate by 40 per cent.

At the present time the college is looking at ways of improving the efficiency of the Economizer even further with the addition of a preheater between the Economizer and Evaporator.

A substantial reduction in production costs may well improve the profit margins in maple syrup production. Lower production costs may be an incentive to an increased number of younger producers being attracted to the industry.

An increase in production of Ontario Pure Maple Syrup can provide the basis for establishing an Export Market to Europe, to satisfy the European connoisseurs who are eagerly looking to buy this versatile and delicate Ontario product.

Organ donations save thousands

Good news stories do not always make headlines. Tragic events often do. But sometimes, a tragedy can be turned around and editors have a happy story to report.

It's much the same with organ donation. The loss of a friend or loved one can mean a new chance at life and happiness for someone else.

Across this country, today, thousands of people who once faced imminent death or a life of pain and anguish have been given a new lease on life.

They are the fortunate recipients of organ donations.

They owe a lot to medical science but they owe their existence to the humanity of a donor family or the foresight of someone who signed an organ donor card.

In the offices of organizations involved in transplantation, files bulge with 'thank you' letters from recipients and their families but there are other more revealing letters - also of gratitude. They come from the parents, children and spouses of donors.

And the message they send is universal: a mixture of pride and spiritual comfort knowing the good that followed their personal loss.

Heartened by this sort of reaction, but knowing there is still a vast need for organ donations, Health and Welfare Canada and the other associations want to publicize the benefits of organ donation further. They want people to know:

- * that 1,000 Canadians are on waiting lists for new kidneys; 500 could benefit from heart transplants; 200 from livers; and an undetermined number wait for corneas;

- * that over 80 per cent of Canadians think organ donation is a great idea but less than 25 per cent have signed organ donor cards;

- * that, even if you do sign, your wishes could be ignored if you fail to tell your family or physician about it;

- * that the procedures involved in no way interfere with the funeral rites;

- * and that, above all, organ transplants WORK. There are recipients alive today who received a new kidney, for example, 15 or more years ago.

One of the special targets of this year's awareness campaign by Health and Welfare Canada is health professionals. Because of work pressure or simply in an attempt to be compassionate, they often fail to ask grieving relatives about organ donation. Only when it's too late, does the family wish someone had.

Don't wait until it's too late. Discuss organ donation with your loved ones. Sign your organ donor card. Make something good happen!

Organ Donor Awareness Week is April 20-26.

There is also the possibility that variations of the day which take place over a decade may also involve interactions of the atmosphere with the rotating earth. One of the problems is that the accuracy of the time measurements has far outstripped our knowledge of meteorology and the state of the atmosphere.

There are also variations of the rotation rate of the earth which take place in a few days. The origin of these is not at all understood.

Wildlife

the four eggs are mottled browns, black and buff - the nest is impossible to find except by watching the parents.

Both parents will take turns tending the eggs over next month or so - a long incubation - but the male spends more of the time away, continuing that ritual flight.

The adults, when seated on the nest, are almost indistinguishable from the earth, and utilize the strategy of 'freezing' to avoid detection. I have often walked within a few feet of a nest, without realizing it, only to have the parent rise at the last instant. Thus frightened, killdeer employ another strategy. Limping away from the nest dragging one wing, shrieking all the while, the parent feigns injury. Half limping, half running, the bird draws the predator off. In the excitement, the nest's location is forgotten by all but the parents.

The long incubation is for good reason. Even at hatching, the chicks are fantastically developed - fluffy miniatures of the adult, already with eyes wide and excellent co-ordination. As quickly as the down dries, they'll be off the nest in rag-tag pursuit of the adults, themselves freezing to harmonize with the landscape whenever danger approaches.

New characters add new twist response to the 1986 campaign, the Ontario Federation of Anglers and Hunters introduced a series of 19 innovative characters. Sixteen of the characters are named "Yukies", representing various pieces of litter, and three characters, appropriately named "Baggy", "Canny" and "Conny Tainer", have humanized various forms of litter receptacles. Both the Yukies and the other characters are prominently featured on two posters which are being distributed across Ontario and being made available to those schools and organizations wishing to obtain them in bulk.

Some of the characters have also been reproduced on t-shirts and the Ontario Federation of Anglers and Hunters based on initial response, believes that all characters will become a popular addition to the Pitch-In Campaign which it has sponsored, with the support of the Ontario Ministry of Environment, since 1983.

"It was time that we developed a new twist to our campaign and we found, in pre-testing our characters among children, that the 'Yukies' were very popular and appealed in particular to pre-school, kindergarten and elementary school-aged children," adds Rick Morgan.

Not only is the Ontario Federation of Anglers and Hunters making Ontarioans aware of who the 'Yukies' are, but it is also making Yukie Hunting Licenses available to schools across the province for distribution to students. The license authorizes the individual to pick-up and collect and put in their proper place, all yukies which he/she may find in parks, playgrounds, streets, alleys, hallways and any other area where yukies may be found. The licenses, which are signed by Baggy, Canny and Conny Tainer, the three characters who urge participants to 'Use Us!', are becoming extremely popular among students.

In support of the Pitch-In campaign, the Ontario Federation of Anglers and Hunters will be distributing more than 100,000 garbage bags, donated by Sunoco Inc., across the province. This is the second year that Sunoco, Inc. has donated the free garbage bags for Pitch-In. To date thousands of bags have already been committed and supplies continue to dwindle each day as many organizations contact the provinsional Pitch-In co-ordinating office located at 2nd Floor, 508 St. Clair Avenue West, Toronto, Ontario M6C 1A6 for their supply and other campaign information.

The deadline for applying for garbage bags is March 31 to enable the Ontario Federation of Anglers and Hunters to ensure that all bags will be received by participants prior to the kick-off of the campaign which will take place May 5 across Ontario.

Those organizations who have not received application forms for garbage bags can receive them by contacting Pitch-In in Toronto. We request that applicants fill out the forms completely, providing us with the number of people who will be involved in the campaign and a short description of the project in order that we can allocate an adequate number of bags," adds Morgan.

The cause of Communism

BY ALFRED JAMES

There has never been a successful communist takeover of any democratic country.

The first historical major communist success, was Russia, 1917. It is the oldest and most powerful of communist countries. Russia was ruled by political principles and a power elite hundreds of years out of date. Near slavery was still allowed and massive poverty, persecution and exploration was the lot of the average Russian citizen prior to the revolution.

The second major communist success was China in 1949. China was ruled by war lords who considered poverty and suppression the proper state for the landless peasants of China.

The third major communist success was Cuba. It was the holiday home of the American mafia. Crime and corruption under the leadership of Batista, a classic example of self-indulgent dictators of the Baby Doc type from Haiti, was the order of the day.

This pattern is endless. It is almost without variance. The main cause of communism is the rebellion of a people who have grown tired of suppression, poverty and brutality from an established ruling elite of very unchristian, very antisocial, very inhuman rulers.

On the obvious assumption that this is the basic formula for communist success, I propose that we in the Western World, the world of democracy and entrenched human rights and wealth and education, prevent the further spread of communism by the following means.

First our foreign aid must help the development of democracy. Democracy endorses many economic forms from Swedish type socialism to American style capitalism. The common important quality, however, is the election of a government by the people which, when elected, must obey the law and respect human rights.

Secondly, we must be tolerant of the economic type of system that government sets up. The key ingredient in the success of any economic system that has ever been successful over the long run is competition. For this reason, the encouragement of a competitive economic system is what we would encourage.

Thirdly, not all peoples and cultures have the same values or friends. Because of this we must be willing to aid those with diverse friends and cultural values.

Fourthly, we must aid with almost no strings attached, other than respect for human rights and the practise of democracy, countries in honest need. We must give from the heart to those who need as we give at Christmas time.

At present, some western powers help to create new communist regimes by doing the opposite to what I have suggested. They support dictators who practise suppression and violation of the civil rights of their citizens. Some western powers do this because they feel it's better to support these political criminals than to allow free political expression and, therefore, uncertainty.

The end product of this action is to force the political opposition in these countries, an opposition who is fighting for equality and democracy and fairness and justice as the American revolutionaries once fought for, to endorse someone who will help them. That someone is usually a communist power.

Consequently the present practice of helping political criminals like Marcos must stop. At present the West often helps the bad guys while the Commies support the good guys. At least that's a different perspective on the causes of communism.

Lackadaisical about submitting annual income tax returns

BY HARRY L. MARDON
Many Canadian students who earn income from summer jobs or part-time work are lackadaisical about submitting annual income tax returns.

Yet it's usually in the best interest of the student, and often the parents too, to fill out the tax return and send it to Revenue Canada. Parents should point out to their offspring that there are a couple of tax benefits for full-time students at 'designated educational institutions'.

What Ottawa terms designated educational institutions are generally universities and colleges which provide post-secondary education. It also includes certain schools which conduct job retraining or adult education courses.

The first tax concession a student may claim as a deduction from taxable income is the full cost of tuition fees, even if someone else (such as the parents) actually paid the fees, provided they totalled more than $100 in the year.

When claiming tuition fees the student must obtain from the educational institution a certificate. This acts as an official receipt. It has to be sent in with the income tax return. The student has the choice of either claiming tuition fees for a calendar year or an academic year, whichever is more advantageous.

This tax break is also provided to Canadians who paid tuition fees at a university outside Canada, provided it was for full-time attendance at a course running for at least 13 consecutive weeks. It also applies to Canadians who lived near the U.S. border in 1985 and commuted to a college in the States that provided post-secondary school level courses. But in these two cases, the students have to obtain a special certificate form from a District Taxation Office.

Of course, the student only may claim tuition fees as a deduction if he or she has had employment income during 1985.

It is important for the parents to note that only the student may make this deduction. Even if the student doesn't make the claim, the parents may not claim tuition fees despite the fact they probably paid the fees.

However, the situation is different for what Ottawa terms the Education Deduction, which is the second tax break for students.

This deduction is $50-per-month for each whole month or part of a month that a student attended a post-secondary educational institution on a full-time basis in 1985.

The deduction must be used first to reduce the student's taxable income to zero. The remainder of the deduction total may then be used as a Deduction from Net Income by the student's parent, spouse or other supporting person. To claim this deduction the student must obtain from the university or college an Education Deduction Certificate form T2202 or form

Ask your pharmacist

BY BARRY PHILLIPS,
B.Sc. Phm.

President, Ontario College of Pharmacists Community Pharmacist

So you've overdone it at a party or the family dinner table. Okay, sometimes we just can't help ourselves, especially when we're having a good time.

Deciding how to relieve that heartburn or acid indigestion won't be easy because you face a choice of more than 8,000 different antacid preparations on the market including tablets, powders, gels, liquids and gums. These medications are not to be taken thoughtlessly because the various forms and ingredients act in different ways for each person's body chemistry.

Your first step should be to consult your pharmacist. He or she will want to know some details about the problem and your medical history. If a non-prescription remedy is recommended, your pharmacist will probably warn you against using it for too long or too often. If problems persist, consult your doctor.

All antacids have inevitable long or short-term side effects. They may cause constipation or diarrhoea; or a toxic buildup of an ingredient. Regular use of antacids is reserved only for the relief of ulcer pain. However, the product must be prescribed by a professional who is fully aware of the patient's problem and medical history.

Some antacids should not be used by people on low-sodium diets, other interfere with the action of such drugs as tetracycline, or aggravate existing problems of, for example, faulty kidneys. Only your pharmacist or doctor can safely match the treatment to the user.

Woods, water and wildlife

'Killdeer... killdeer'
They punctuate the silence over fields and vacant lots, as quickly as the landscape turns from snow to mud. Skimming low across the meadows, each male commences a ritual that will last for weeks. In broad circles he flies, his plaintive 'killdeer, killdeer' continuing, often for hours without interruption.
Finally, a female rises. Instantly, the tag-match is on. With quicken song, the flight becomes a rapid, jerky dance.
'Round and 'round they race, spiralling upward, 'till they're,
but specks above.
Then down they plummet, levelling out an instant before impact, to repeat the ritual again and again.

Killdeer are among the first birds to return from wintering grounds throughout the southern US, and have been piling in for weeks, along with robins, meadowlarks, red wings and song sparrows.

Immediately distinguished by their song and shore bird form, killdeer are also instantly recognized from their plumage - if you can see them.
Standing about a hand high, both males and females are mottled brown above and bright-white below, with two striking black necklaces across their white neck.

Killdeer are the odd-man-out among shore birds. While most adhere rigidly to the sand-and-mud strip between water and land, killdeer venture far inland, staking meadows, roadsides, farm fields and even school yards as breeding territory.
This ritualistic flight not only bonds

the pair, but also stakes breeding territory - often five acres or more.
Mated, they immediately set to nesting, and therein lies an intriguing adaptation.

Killdeer have 'adopted' the strategy that the best place to hide is in the open. They do not choose a protected or hidden location, but rather seek out as open and barren a spot as possible.
Sometimes it's a bare spot of slightly-raised earth; other times it may be a pebbly beach. There, the birds build their 'nest' - if you can call it that. They simply scrape a small depression - like the cupped palm of your hand - in the surface, and plunk a few pebbles or chunks of bark around the edge. The epitome of camouflage - even

P.C. Leader Visits Area.

P.C. leader Larry Grossman visited Marmora on Friday last to hear the concerns of local people over the disposition of the abandoned Marmora to Lake St. Peter railway line.

M.P.P. Jim Pollock, accompanying Mr. Grossman, outlined his concerns over the issue and the steps he had taken to urge the government to acquire this abandoned rail line for recreational use. He said that if the property was sold to private landowners they could expect to pay a hefty survey fee for comparatively little land. He added that if the land is declared public recreational, there would be a usage fee to offset some of the costs involved in maintaining the property.

The audience, composed of local politicians, recreational interest groups, businessmen and concerned citizens then had an opportunity to voice their concerns.

Representatives from Marmora Village, Rawdon Township, and Madoc Village expressed support for the recreational use of the corridor. Although not directly involved the benefits from area tourism does reflect on their communities. Rawdon pointed out the need for proper fencing, safety and provision for proper litter control.

Robert Drummond pointed out the need to maintain the corridor from the point of view of the sled-dog racers. This event has grown in size and popularity over the past few years and plans to increase the size and scope of future races would be severely jeopardized. Clarence O'Connor as president of The Crowe Valley Snowmobile Club added his club's concern that the corridor be maintained as a recreational area. He has been quite active in making presentations to various authorities and is currently preparing an information package and brief for submission to the government. Ted Bonter, local businessman, reiterated the economic benefits to the community of such a recreational area, and pointed out that it is necessary to improve tourist and recreational facilities in view of the fact that their no industrial base of support for the local economy.

Reeve John Irwin of Madoc Township passed on to the meeting some concerns that had been expressed to him by some local landowners whose property abutted the rail line. The potential increase in usage of the corridor if it becomes public recreation land could result in trespassing, property damage and potential threat to home and body. Reeve Irwin added that some property owners have homes within easy reach of the trail and that they have expressed concern over policing of the area.

Mr. Grossman, in wrapping up the meeting, said that Jim Pollock has been working hard on this problem and that he would give Jim all the support that he could. Saying that when his party was in power, the opposition accused him of not doing enough for the Province. Now, he said, the shoe is on the other foot and those who were critics seem to have a different perspective. In urging the people to keep up the fight, he commented on the conversion of an old abandoned railway line near his home to recreational use. People never did it, he said, and my community can do it, so can you.

He made a commitment that he and Jim Pollock would do all they could to help resolve this matter in favour of the public.

He made one final promise before heading out to view the area around the old Marmora Station. "When we are back in power and the present government has not resolved this matter in your favour, then I, as Premier will do it!"

Hockey awards night

The Kiwanis centre was filled on Thursday evening last with an estimated 250 people, all connected with Madoc Minor Hockey.

The occasion was the Pot Luck Supper and Awards Night, wrapping up a successful season. Judging by the look of satisfaction on peoples faces, the supper was a success too. In the flurry of clearing the tables, Moms could be heard directing children to put these dishes out in the car and don't drop them. It's glass! Dad's were busy organizing the chair seating and garbage pick up. The important part of the evening was at hand. The awards programme was about to begin. With about 125 youngsters involved in this event it would be impossible to name them all in this space. To pick out individuals for recognition here would be extremely difficult to do, especially as all of the coaches announced that they had difficulty in naming individual players on their teams for recognition. Suffice it to say that each coach in congratulating their players for their efforts in the past season, made a point of saying that each team member gave of their best all through the season.

From the novices right up to the big lads, (I mean big - Lawrence Kehoe really had to look up to Duncan Kosziwaka M.S.P.), they lined up in front of the stage for presentation, trying to look nonchalant for the most part, but soon breaking into big grins and passing private little jokes whispered into nearby ears.

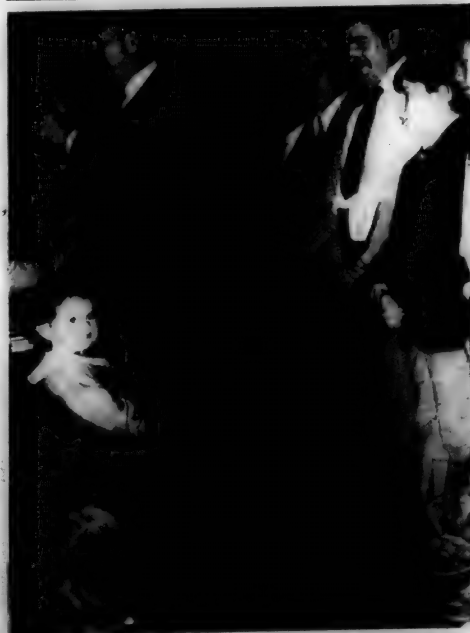

Every player received a memento of the past season, badges, medallions, plaques and trophies, and a hearty round of applause. Just as important to these young people will be the memory of the event. This is true for their parents whose faces showed varied emotions and pride in their offspring.

League trophies were awarded as follows - Most Improved Player, Dale Sager. Most sportsmanlike Player, Duncan Kosziwaka. Most Valuable Player Award, Brad Phillips. Leading House League Scorer, Brian Phillips. Marty Shaw Award for goaltending, Craig Hill.

The heroes of the evening were the Central Ontario Atom 'D' champions, otherwise known as the Mothers' Auxiliary Atoms. These young men compiled an impressive record as the battled to eventual success. They received an

This young charmer, Rebecca Nickle who will be three years old in August, is quite unimpressed with what's happening. Rebecca is a team mascot of the Madoc Atom Champs, and while the District Convenor was speaking of their accomplishments, she decided that some other important matter needed her attention.

Madoc Library Film Night

Madoc public library will be holding a family film night featuring Charlie Chaplin.

British film actor whose 'little tramp' character was the most popular, Charlie Chaplin, will be the star attraction at Madoc Public Library on April 18, 7:30 p.m. A Friday evening filled with laughs can be enjoyed by the whole family. Free admission.

Also the PA Day lineup at the Library will be puppet making and films on April 25, 3:30-5 p.m. School children should come and bring a friend.

Local politicians meet

Grossman

Jim Grossman, with the property in question, the council felt that the retention of the corridor as public recreation land had some economic spin-off for the village. He went on to say that Madoc Village Council supported their efforts of the committee to keep this recreational facility available to the public.

Reeve John Irwin, whose township is directly involved, pointed out that he had heard from property owners that had land abutting the corridor and they had expressed some concerns that increased public usage could pose problems for them. Citing such concerns as potential for increased trespassing and property damage, he added that one big concern for those people who had homes close to the trail was the question of policing the area. Without proper precautions, being taken problems could arise in the future.

Madoc Curling Club Awards.

Last Wednesday, about 70 members and guests of the Madoc Curling Club attended their annual dinner and awards night. The weather outside was cold and snowy, but in the banquet room the atmosphere was warm and happy. The food, no doubt, contributed to their well being as President Bill Havekes called for a show of appreciation to the staff at Woodland's Restaurant, site of the banquet.

Amid laughter and some heckling, the business portion of the meeting was handled with dispatch. In passing on a few comments, Bill Havekes mentioned that two of the members, Paul Heagle and Bev Clapp, had recently gotten married. This brought on the old wedding feast tradition of clinking spoons on napkins. When the laughter had died down, the awards presentation got under way.

Winning the championship trophy, this year, was the team of Cyril Shaw, Karen Shaw, Marlene Bronson and Barb Preston. Indeed, they were a true championship team having won everyone of their league games throughout the season.

The runners-up were Dave Franks, Wanda Franks, Laura Thompson and Ted Thompson, who was unable to attend.

After the awards, everyone enjoyed a social evening and, from all reports, enjoyed a pleasant evening.

Our day and night guardians - Volunteer firemen part of the game, as is long hours standing in the cold, possibly half wet, living on sandwiches and coffee and, in some instances, being criticized for your best efforts.

Methods sometimes misunderstood by the ordinary folk off the street, methods learned by experience and great numbers of training hours, all of this and more is what many men in our smaller villages and rural areas volunteer to do.

One can only guess at the reasons, and if asked, many will reply with pat answers. 'Answers, I think, cover up the real reason. I believe that these men have a real concern for their fellow citizens and it is their way of performing humanitarian services in their community.

Motivation may come from hearing of someone being trapped in a burning building or vehicle and being saved, or the horror of watching a disaster occur that they feel they could possibly have helped alleviate.

Whatever the reason, it is a truly Christian service and is to be commended to the utmost. Without them, where would we be?

Volunteers are from all walks of life and all age groups, from all the area covered by a department. There seems to be only one common factor, a desire to perform a service and do it well.

A desire to serve is only the beginning and the time of need is not the one time committed. Many, many hours of study and training, both at regular meetings and in special courses, are required. These courses deal with all the prerequisites for fighting a fire - first aid, resuscitation, self-preservation and maintenance of vehicles and equipment. Without this regular maintenance the boys would never know for sure whether they should leave the base or not.

Some might say, 'Anybody can spray water on a fire with the proper equipment.' Absolutely true, but is it going to do any good? I recently learned why firemen (in some cases) chop holes in a roof. It is not to create a draft for better burning. I am told that steam, not water, will quench a greater amount of fire and that by directing, the water down through the hole, the additional air allows for a greater expansion of steam to quell the flames. Additionally, it provides an exit to expel the burnable gases.

In today's world we have an ever-changing number of chemicals to be encountered and dealt with by our firemen. If handled or dealt with improperly, greater fire and personal danger may be created.

Like all organizations, volunteer fire departments are formed because someone saw a need and cared enough to volunteer to do something about it.

In many cases, people don't realize the extent of the commitment being made, or the enormity of the responsibilities being assumed.

The amazing thing is that despite these facts, they simply said, if that's what it takes, then we'll do it.

When I first conceived the idea of this tribute to the firemen, I thought that it would be a fairly straightforward article. In view of the large amount of subject material, eg., coders, decoders, self-contained breathing apparatus, etc., I thought that many would be as unaware as I, and would like to know what they are. For this reason I will continue next week.

To conclude I would like to relate a story involving one of our best Madoc firemen. Buck Carswell. Apparently Buck was preceding Huntingdon Fire Department on extremely icy roads. Travelling fairly close together. Buck went over a small hill and cross-wise off the road. Huntingdon truck had nowhere to go except into the side of Buck's truck. Fortune was on Buck's side and the rear of the truck struck a snowbank and swung the vehicle back on course. Seeing this, some joker in the following truck asked him what he was trying to do. Buck came the reply, 'I just wanted to see if you guys were still coming.' Buck will long be remembered and it still seems strange not to see him around town or at any event involving firemen.

By Isabella Shaw.

A very successful year for Madoc Minor Hockey System wrapped up on Thursday evening at their year end supper.

Seven road teams played a total of 239 games of hockey in league, exhibition and play-off action, recording 150 wins, 74 losses and 15 ties. In the goal department, they outscored their opposition 1279 - 668 (almost 2 - 1).

Our goaltenders had a good year between the pipes with 13 individuals recording 29 shutouts and a goal's against average of 3.29. Seven of the goaltenders were above this average.

These included Gerry Bronson and Rob Perrie of the Novices, Tom Burnside of Atoms, Marty Shaw and Robbie Lake of the PeeWee 'A', Jeff McMaster, Bantam 'A' and Brad Davidson of PeeWee 'B'.

There were 99 hat tricks turned, with Brad Phillips getting 11 for the Atoms and Stephen Bancroft combining for eleven in Bantam and Midget action. Three players - Joe Kehoe, Wesley Cromwell and Derek Chapman - had a seven goal game. Duncan Kosziwaka and Brad Phillips had six goal games (Brad had two such games).

In tournament action, there were 3 'A' Championships, 1 'A' Runners-up, 1 'B' Championship and 3 'B' Runners-up.

The Mothers Auxiliary Atoms won the Central Ontario

Championship and the Shaw Garage Midgets advanced to the All Ontario Quarter Finals.

Our Atoms, PeeWee A, Bantam A, Midget and PeeWee B, all won their leagues and play-off titles.

Congratulations to all members of the Minor Hockey System on a very successful season. See you all next year at the rink.

V.I.P.

To some of us V.I.P. means a very important person, but to the Educational System in Hastings County V.I.P. is the VALUES, INFLUENCES and PEERS Program being offered at the grade six level in the elementary schools.

Hastings County was among the first boards in the province to initiate this program in 1983.

The rationale behind the programme:

Individuals who feel good about themselves and who have a positive sense of their own identity are likely to interact with others in positive ways and to respect the values and laws of their society. It is for this reason that one of the four basic goals of education in Ontario is to provide opportunities for students to develop and maintain confidence and a sense of self-worth.

When children or students have developed the feelings of self-respect and self-worth that they require to function independently, they are better equipped to cope with negative influences and pressures from others. Because their own identity is not in doubt, they are less vulnerable to peer pressure and they are more likely to adhere to the values they have acquired. It is with this positive view of human nature in mind that

VALUES, INFLUENCES and PEERS program was designed to help the students cope with negative influences which their peers can exert on their behaviour in everyday circumstances. This program

ENCES and PEERS (VIP) begins.

Another goal of education is to provide opportunities for students to develop the moral and aesthetic sensitivity necessary for a complete and responsible life. Students need to become aware of the values that we regard as essential to the well-being of our society - namely, respect for the individual, concern for others, social responsibility, compassion, honesty and the acceptance of work, thought and leisure as valid pursuits for the human beings.

Students entering Grade 7 are at a particularly vulnerable age. For some this is a crucial time for deciding whether or not to smoke or use drugs. As well, involvement in school violence and vandalism is very high among students of this age group.

It is widely accepted that the main reason for the involvement of young people in unlawful activities is peer influence and pressure. Perhaps no involvement is possible in this situation until youngsters learn to cope with negative peer influences.

The V.I.P. program was designed to help the students cope with negative influences which their peers can exert on their behaviour in everyday circumstances. This program ram has both approval from the Ministry of Education and has support from the Local Police Forces.

The extremely positive evaluation of this program includes support from parents, teachers and the respective police forces.

The course takes approximately two hours per week for a period of 13 weeks. It included field trips to such places as hospitals, and juvenile courts, which follow the topics of Dangers of Drugs and youth and the law, the field trips, become an integral part of the program and can provide real-life settings through which students can expand and reinforce their understandings of the topics. They can also help students become more aware of the personal and legal consequences of many personal decisions they may have to make.

The topics dealt with in the program are interrelated. The program begins with an examination of personal and social values and standards and how these are translated into rules and laws.

The topics that deal with peer influence also look at some common problems and influences that individuals face, emphasizing how they may be influenced by their peers.

The topics include values to standards, belittling others, creating impressions, peer pressure, decision-making, authority and authority figures.

being truthful, the danger of drugs, vandalism and destructive behaviour, shoplifting and stealing, youth and the law, friends and friendships.

It is hoped that this program will provide students with the opportunities to learn to accept responsibility for their own actions, understand that each person may be influenced by peer pressure, become aware of the importance of self-respect and self-confidence in meeting the challenge of peer influences.

gain insight that will assist them in making choices when confronted with negative peer influences, develop a respect for the rights of others and for the rule of law, understand the need for rules and laws, understand that different people experience similar problems and that it is important to know how to deal with these problems.

Busy month

Next month is May, or so the calendar tells us. But reading a list of coming events from Health & Welfare, Ottawa, one might wonder because it's also the following:

- Cystic Fibrosis Month
- Hearing and Deaf Awareness Month
- Huntingdon's Disease Awareness Month
- Speech and Hearing Month
- and squeezed in this (these) month(s) are a few special weeks and days:
- Spinal Health Week
- Summer Safety Week
- Mental Health Week

- National Mental retardation Week
- National Physical Activity Week
- World Red Cross Day
- Carnation Day Campaign
- Canada Health Day

We all appreciate the need to increase awareness of these programmes and by and large, the communities across the country will support them all. One has to wonder though, how effective can these campaigns be with some many competing for the same public attention.

Red Cross President gives address

In his annual message, A.S. Fleming, President of the Canadian Red Cross, had the following to say:

The United Nations has declared 1986 International Year of Peace following International Crescent General Assembly held in Geneva last October, several Societies proposed that one day of Peace be declared by the Red Cross in 1986. It was suggested that one day be set aside to remember the day the atom bomb was dropped on Hiroshima or to commemorate the first world Red Cross Peace Conference. This proposal was rejected by many sister Societies, including the Canadian Red Cross, for the simple reason that Red Cross, through its seven principles, stands for peace 365 days a year.

The Red Cross

already celebrates a special day, May 8th, the birth date of its founder - Henry Dunant, a man whose understanding of human frailties and suffering was exemplified by his actions which were motivated by a desire for peace amongst all people. This position does not mean we oppose a day dedicated to world peace, but rather that we believe a single day of observance is inadequate. All Red Crossers have a role as peacemakers every day of the year in their commitment to brotherhood and peace.

In light of this commitment, I urge you all in 1986, to rededicate yourselves to our principles: humanity, impartiality, neutrality, independence, voluntary service, unity and universality - let them be your personal contribution to achieving peace throughout the world.

Peace cannot be reached solely by the actions of leading politicians, but by the convictions and behaviour of millions of people regardless of race, creed or political affiliation. The responsibility rests with each one of us and we are all key players in this process.

We can contribute to harmony and mutual respect within our community, our province, our country and the world by living a life dedicated to serving others. Just think what a great force could be generated by millions of individuals if they remain continually dedicated to humanity, the elimination of persecution and the defence of good in the world.

UCW holds annual conference meet

By Irene Bateman.

The 24th annual meeting of Quinte Conference United Church recently in Grace United Church, The Theme for the two day event was Commitment.

Rev. Nelson Trafford spoke to about personal commitment. He own experiences as a rebellious to he reminded his audience that commitment is an ongoing struggle. No one make commitment but a continuous necessary.

Rev. E. Colwell, President of Quinte Conference and minister of Grace United Church, Belleville, addressed the audience on the commitment of the church.

Jesus was a non-conformist, different kind of person. He forced decisions in order to become the persons we are called to be. We need our whole life and decide upon our community and in the church. We need of the world and then look at and decide that we have not offering. We must use what we have that God will do the rest.

Zachaeus, the tax collector v individual but Jesus did not cut him saw in him a longing to be a community. Rev. Colwell challenged the audience to have tea with a sinner. Jesus is always trying to lift us new way of living in our community different from what we expect commitment may lead us to a different way of life.

Rev. Robin Thompson of Hamilton, Ontario, addressed the assembly on the Commitment to Mission. Rev. Thompson stirred her audience with her vision of life on the Rama Indian reserve near Orillia where she served. She felt trapped, have a lack of self-worth very depressed.

The Young people of Rama must know their heritage and roots. There is a connection between their culture. Years ago children's reservations were sent to boarding schools to learn the white man's language but parents today vow they will stay again.

The Indians way is one of dignity and the Great Spirit. They wish to live in harmony with their brother, bear, and fish. The Indian young people trying to find their place and esteem.

The fourth part of the Call to Commitment was, Who will answer? We are announcing that Ron and Jacqueline Port Hope will be leaving for Africa for two years. Our prayers go with the Neuns in the Africa.

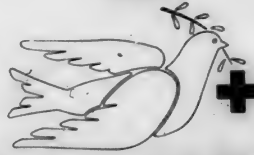

The two days were enriched by music of Linda Jewell and Phyllis the result of an accident at his residence on Monday, March 24, 1986, in his 61st year.

He was born in the Township of West Huntingdon, on May 17, 1925, the son of the Late Mr. and Mrs. (Elizabeth English) Samuel Fargey. He is survived by his wife Florence Helen Galloway.

He is also survived by a daughter, Nancy (Mrs. Gordon Gardiner), of Trenton, and a son, James, of Tweed. He was loved by daughter-in-law, Mary, son-in-law, Gordon, and grandchildren Jennifer Lynne Fargey and David John Fargey.

He is lovingly remembered by several sister-in-laws and brother-in-laws, and nieces and nephews.

He was a semi-retired farmer in the Stirling area. He was also a congregation member of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, West Huntingdon, and chairman of the Board of Managers of St. Andrew's.

He belonged to the Stirling A.M. and A.F. No. 69, the Stirling ling Keystone Chapter No. 72 G.R.C. He was a former member of the Bay of Quinte High School Board, Past President of the Hastings County Junior Farmers, and a member of the Belleville Shrine Club.

The funeral was held Thursday, March 27, 1986 at 1:30 p.m. from the William J. Thompson Funeral Home, Stirling, to St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Stirling, for the service with Rev. Bruce Cossar officiating.

Interment is in Lukes Cemetery, in West Huntingdon.

A memorial service was held by the Stirling Lodge No. 69 A.F. and A.M., and Brothers Lodges on Wednesday, March 26, 1986 at 9:00 p.m. in the funeral home.

Honourary pallbearers were Mac Sarles, Lindsay Sills, Les Adams, Bazel Campney; Active bearers were Bob Harper, Alan Foote, Bruce Portt, Art Hassall, James Haggerty, Ronnie Sills, Fred Brooks and Ken Clare.

A Guard of Honour was formed by the members of the Shrine Club.

HALEY

Funeral for Michael James Haley was held on April 1st, from the Sacred Heart of Mary Church. Mr. Haley passed away on March 29th, at the Belleville General Hospital after an illness of about a year's duration.

Mr. Haley, who was 67 years old, was born in Elzevir Township, the son of Dan and Sarah (Kehoe) Haley, was brother to Bernadette Cassibo, Tweed, Francis Tobin, RR 1, Madoc, and the late Dan Haley and Clair Tobin. He leaves his wife, Anne, and children, Clair and Maecie Lalone, L'Amable, James and Ruth Whitmore, Bancroft, Owen and Gertrude Whitmore, Whitby, Mrs. Jack (Eileen) Rupert, Trenton, and John and Lorna Whitmore, Welcome, Ontario, as well as five grandchildren and several great grandchildren.

Educated in Elzevir Township, Mr. Haley farmed and drove truck and school bus, as well as serving on Madoc Township Council and the Fire Department Committee.

Father R.J. Fleury conducted services and interment was in Sacred Heart Cemetery. Pallbearers were Lawrence Kehoe, Grant Ketcheson, John Curtis, Joe Foley, and Gerard Forestell, with funeral arrangements made by McConnell Funeral Home.

Report from Parliament

By Bill Vankoughnet, M.P.
Hastings-Frontenac-Lennox & Addington
Young Canadians are this country's most important resource. Only last year, during International Youth Year, this government consulted with the youth across Canada to find out what programs the youth wanted. The results of those consultations were the basis for many of the programs that this government now operates for young Canadians.

Two things became obvious through the discussions. Youth is no longer one group, aged 15 to 25. There are now two separate age groups: 15-19 and 20-25. Each has special needs to be addressed. The second point is that our youth have a strong desire to obtain permanent and lasting employment that will allow them to build their futures on a solid base and establish an equal place in the heart of their community.

Make work projects are no longer appropriate. We have a responsibility to provide opportunities that will help prepare young people for a full and satisfying life in our society. That means real jobs.

Since September 1984 over 75,000 young Canadians have found jobs. Of that number 43,000 were new jobs. Our youth unemployment rate has fallen from 18.3% in September 1984 to 15.9% now for the 15 to 24 age group. Those statistics are impressive when compared to the fact that youth employment fell by 285,000 jobs between February 1980 and Septem-

The positive effects of the Canadian Jobs Strategy and other youth programs introduced by this government are being felt. Last year Challenge '85 created 101,000 summer jobs for students. This year Challenge '86 has a budget of $210 million. A priority will be given to students for 25,000 of the 40,000 June 30th Census jobs.

Over 1985-86 $4 billion will be spent on job and training programs for youth.

The Canadian Jobs Strategy's Job Entry program is specifically designed to help our Canadian youth break the vicious no-job, no-experience, no-job, cycle. It provides government support to individuals, employers and community groups to provide practical training for up to one year. It will help give individuals a solid base of marketable skills by providing a combination of training and direct work experience.

Challenge '86 will build on the success of Challenge '85. Private sector, municipal governments and non-profit organizations are encouraged to help provide meaningful summer jobs for students. Summer employment plays an important role in the student's transition from the world of school to the world of work. It introduces and develops skills that will be needed by our future work force - skills best developed by exposure to real jobs in the real world.

The Youth Training Option (YTO) is a pilot program to provide training and work experience for young people and is now in place as a result of government initiative. A total of $27 million will be spent to cover the cost of up to 4,000 young men and women. YTO provides a combination of classroom and on-the-job training designed to help young participants make the transition from school to work.

A Young Astronaut Canada Program has been established to stimulate young Canadian's interest in the sciences, math, technology and other subjects related to space. We are building our future.

The realities of the 1980's and the needs of our youth have formed this government's youth policies and programs. Make work projects are no longer suitable, or desired. That is why the 10 year Katimavik program, established in 1977, was ceased one year early.

2,000 participants each year would receive $1 a day and $1,000 upon completion of the 9 month term of the project. The $20 million yearly budget meant that the costs ran close to $10,000 per participant. The decision to cancel K was not made. It was made in context of government's need to provide productive, actively co-operative youth employment programs. The shift in what youth wanted and what youth just wanted a job that was permanent and fulfilling jobs. Katimavik was a significant resource to relatively segment of population, urgency of unemployment training today demand we make but of this money.

Board gives budget report

The Board and its Committees have been studying 1986 Budget material over the last two months and are currently involved in a series of intensive meetings.

The total of the Base Budget (the cost of carrying 1985 programs into 1986) and the additional items needed to meet Ministry and Public expectations, would have produced a Budget of $79,720,000, an unacceptable increase over 1985.

The Chairmen of Standing Committees met on March 25 to study all aspects of the Budget and made recommendations to the Board to reduce proposed expenditures by $2,220,000.

On April 1, the Board met again to consider in detail this revised Draft Budget at $77,500,000, which would represent an increase in mill rates of 11.4%.

Much of the increase in the 1986 Budget stems from planned capital expenditures. The following projects totalling $2,131,000, will be subsidized by the Ministry of Education:

- Prince of Wales - Phase II
- North Hastings High School Library
- Madoc Public School - Advanced Renovations
- Accessibility for the Handicapped

In addition, other significant capital expenditures are urgently required. Of the 11.4% increase referred to above, 4.5% is attributable to capital projects.

The Board directed that further adjustments be made to the Draft Budget which would decrease it to a more acceptable level.

The Chairman of Standing Committees will meet again on April 3 and the Board on April 7 to continue the review of the 1986 Budget.

IODE holds it's annual meeting in TO

The Annual Meeting of The Provincial Chapter of Ontario IODE was held on April 9th and 10th, at the Holiday Inn, Toronto. The Lieutenant Governor of Ontario, His Honour Lincoln McCauley Alexander and Her Honour Mrs. Alexander were present for the opening ceremonies. Provincial President, Mrs. A.D. Christmas of Blenheim, Ontario, gave the opening address. Highlights of the meeting were a Membership Award given to the Chapter with the most new members. This award was presented to the Argyle Chapter of Belleville, Ontario. Provincial Constable Maureen Maveety of Gananoque, who is a Community Relations Officer for that district, received The Annual IODE Police Community Relations Award. On Thursday afternoon, April 10th, Cpl. M.M. Raynham from OPP Headquarters Toronto, spoke to the members on the effects of Pornography in our society today.

Mrs. Joan De New of Hamilton, spoke to the members regarding Canadians Concerned About Violence in Entertainment.

Dr. Ian MacDonald, the second recipient of an IODE Fellowship in Genetics, has been doing research in genetic eye problems at Children's Hospital of Eastern Ontario in Ottawa. Dr. MacDonald has traced the background of a female patient to 1800 family members who have or are susceptible to this disease known as Choroideremia. This is the single largest identified group in the world.

More than 500 delegates came from the Province and heard annual reports indicating that over $700,000 was raised during the past year which was directed to Citizenship, Education, Social Services and the project in Genetic Services.

fit a wider and larger, cross-section of youth. We need to focus scarce dollars on building the job market for young Canadians.

The Canadian Jobs Strategy signals an end to make-work projects and a shift to creating lasting employment opportunities through a mix of formal instruction, on-the-job training and practical work experience. The new programs reflect the new priorities of this country and our youth.

Lung Association sets goal for Spring Appeal

The Lung Association in the Hastings-Prince Edward Region has set a goal of $25,000 for their Spring Appeal, says
Mrs. F. Lemoine, Executive Director of the Lung Association.

Due to the ever increasing cost of supplies, the Lung Association is looking for your support to help us maintain our high standard of aid to persons with emphysema and other respiratory problems.

Persons with emphysema are, for the most part, males between 50 and 70 years old. Women get emphysema, but so far, not as often as men.

People with emphysema can learn to make the best use of the breathing capacity they have with the help of breathing retraining, carefully selected exercises, and aid in keeping their lungs clear of excess fluids.

Although doctors do not know how to prevent emphysema, they do know cigarette smoking is a definite cause.

CHSS Martial Arts Club

Small stories that arise from martial arts Dojo ('clubs') at times refer to larger purposes or grander designs as in the case of individuals, for example, who are living proof of the confidence-building benefits of martial arts training.

A little girl comes to mind immediately from one of our Dojo in the County. She began martial arts practise in September of last year, however, it should be said, that her first lesson was anything but a success. By lesson's end, she was sobbing, frustrated by her inability to take hold of these new surroundings, frustrated by her shyness.

Her mother felt that there were definite benefits to be gained from martial arts practise as she had witnessed during class, yet she was certain that her daughter would not want to return.

She did return. I remember telling her that I was very proud of her and very glad too of her return, for we would have missed her in the Dojo, and that she too, like the other children, and also the Black Belt instructors, had a place in the Dojo.

We encouraged her thereupon to perform her newly-learned martial arts movements with her chin up and a straight back. We encouraged her also to look into the other children's eyes, though they might have been older than she. She was asked to speak up, whether she was right or wrong in her answers.

Finally, she achieved the Yellow Belt in Karate and in Jiu Jitsu, one of the first children actually in her group of beginners to do so. What brings this story to an even better ending is an incident that occurred only several weeks ago. After months of watching the senior ranked children lead the class during exercises, picking up on their timing, learning how they projected their voices, controlled the rhythm of the class, inspired the group, she was asked to take the lead.

Parents watching looked at each other with quiet amazement. Amazed too, were one or two of the older boys who were ordered to perform push ups by this little girl as their own pace slackened somewhat.

Now she periodically leads class from the tsuki kamae ('punch position') or geri kamae (kicking position), counting alternately in English or Japanese. She is learning how to set a series of goals for the children, to do so clearly, allowing in the timing of the movements, room for her count, and room for the group's response.

Of course, if one wonders about a conclusion to this story, there is none. Her development as a martial artist continues to grow.

In other news, recent gradings for White Belt stripes in Karate and in Jiu Jitsu have found the following children in our Dojo successful: Glenn Ellis, John Ellis and Charles Godfrey.

The Canada Portal: Pathway to Canada Pavillion

Visitors to the Expo 86 main site will find their way aboard the Canada Pavilion through the Canada Portal, a flower-ringed plaza pinpointed by the world's tallest freestanding flagpole and a giant hockey stick and puck.

The Portal leads visitors onto Vancouver's automated rapid transit SkyTrain, built by the Urban Transportation and Development Corporation, for a free four-minute ride to Canada's national pavilion located 12 km away on the city's inner harbour. As many as 9,000 people an hour can be transported between the two sites via SkyTrain.

The 86 m flagpole (flying a 12 m by 24 m Canadian flag made of ultra-light spinaker cloth), and the 62 m hockey stick are instantly identifiable from anywhere on the main site.

Says Canada Pavilion's creative director Norman Hay: "Such flamboyant flag-waving may seem out of character for Canadians, but Expo is a time for us to make the grand gesture and at the same time indulge in a touch of whimsy with our national clichés."

Hay says the Portal, designed by John Gallop and Thompson Berwick Pratt and Partners, and sponsored by Bell Canada Enterprises Inc., "creates an oasis of calm in a very busy, noisy area." It lies between the Dunsmuir and Georgia Viaducts on the northwest end of the Expo site, near the Scream Machine ride and the Saskatchewan Pavilion.

The entrance is heralded by a four-by-ten-metre sign displaying the Canada wordmark, backlit in neon on a frame work of glass blocks. The 35 m, circular plaza is ringed by a bank of yellow flowers. Overhead is a white wire-mesh screen displaying large full-colour photographs of provincial and territorial flowers.

The flagpole and hockey stick rise from the white aggregate paving. Placed near the blade of the hockey stick and tilted to look as if it has just been slapped is a puck measuring three metres in diameter.

A map of Canada is set into the floor, with the major cities and most unusually named town in each province marked by yellow discs: British Columbia, for example, show Vancouver, Victoria and Horseshy.

Running through the centre of the Portal, four metres above ground, is the Expo monorail. Visitors bound for Canada Pavilion embark at a monorail station near the SkyTrain boarding area.

Pavilion hosting staff wearing outfits designed by celebrated Canadian fashion designer Alfred Sung will be available at the Portal to assist visitors.

Visitors may also access the Canada

Pavilion and all of Expo 86 through the Canada Gate located downtown at the north foot of Howe Street.

Tweed Action Group receives confirmation of sponsorship

BY LYNN MARRIOTT

The Tweed Action Group received confirmation of their sponsorship of six-year-old Maria Delores Cantareo Ramirez of Santiago de la Paz (sacred place of peace) in Honduras.

The Foster Parents Plan in Canada is known as Plan International in the sponsored countries. In those countries the Plan helps to establish medical centres, schools, clean water and self-sufficient agriculture.

Adoptions usually last for five to six years until the people have attained their community goals. Canada supports 72,000 of the 277,000 children sponsored by the Plan.

Unlike us, Maria Delores doesn't need an R2000 home to protect her from severe winter, but does desire a leak proof roof during the rainy season. She doesn't dream of a personal computer for a gift, but better furnishings in their small earthed-floor home. They have two beds, two chairs and one table for a family of six. There is no sanitary latrine, no electricity, and, at nights, they use a pine torch for light. Water is obtained from a well.

For $23 a month, TAG felt it could help another less fortunate community in another part of the world. By learning that the only real difference between people is setting, TAG hopes to help close the gap that causes countries to misunderstand each other.

Maria Delores, without help, would probably only receive a grade three education like her mother. This is still a privilege as her father is illiterate. He works a three-acre farm which grows corn, beans, has three chickens, a dog and earns him $60 a month.

TAG was lucky to have the help of a friend who had lived and taught English in Costa Rica and Guatemala to translate the first letter to Maria Delores into Spanish.

The letter told her about our melting snow, plans for the garden, the collecting of maple syrup, the aspirations of TAG and wished her a happy birthday. "Special Occasions Day", as she is seven years old on April 6.

TAG hopes to receive a letter from Maria Delores and family within a couple of months. Correspondence is slow because it must go through the Foster Parents main office in Toronto. This is to safeguard the donors. If the sponsored families do not receive the donors' address, there is no chance of receiving begging letters.

Foster Parents Plan say they are very proud of the fact 88.2 per cent of all contributions goes directly toward community programs. Five point four per cent provides public education and 6.4 per cent is used for administrative purposes here in Canada. The Plan works only in countries where the governments do not interfere in the Plan's administration of funds.

Happy wanderers

Happy Sr. Citizens followed with prayer.

The birthday song was sung for members having a birthday in April. We were pleased to have Mary Whitehead with us from the Manor, celebrating her 82nd birthday the following day.

The minutes were read by Bernice Clarke. The correspondence was read by Hilda Anderson. An invitation has been received from the Eastern Star Lodge to visit April 19th. The Sr. Citizens' picnic will be held June 23rd at the Fish and Game Club in Belleville. The fun day will be April 21st at Thurlow Recreation Centre.

John Hall was present to introduce Constable Pappi, who showed us a film on Ontario Seniors and how to protect themselves in case they were attacked by a purse snatcher.

A luncheon will be given by the Presbyterian Ladies at 11:30 on April 23rd. Everyone is welcome. The Sr. Citizens bazaar and tea will be held May 3rd at Trinity basement.

There will be an executive meeting April 24th to plan. The U.S.C.O. meeting will be held April 15 at Toronto.

The bus report was given by Wilfred Forestell.

The Sr. Citizens are invited to visit Sir James Whitney School for the deaf open house May 1, leaving the church at 12 o'clock. The open house is at 10 o'clock.

Goldie told some jokes. 'McGlosky's one-eyed goat'. Bernice read 'Spring Timing' and 'The Cat's Meow'. Jessie Holmes won the door prize. There was more music by Tom Neil, all singing. 'Onward Christian Soldiers'.

The meeting closed with 'God Save The Queen'.

Lunch was served and a social time enjoyed by all. By Viola Wannamaker.

Madoc Squash and Fitness Club

In a brief interview, Dr. Arun Dosaj reported that the proposed Squash and Fitness club is well on its way to becoming a reality. In going over the drawings of the new building, he explained that the necessary permits are forthcoming and that the tentative date for the opening of the club is set for September the first of this year.

This facility will be a key club providing a wide range of activities and is to be operated by Diane Dosaj.

Presently advertising for members the operators are engaged in a membership drive to develop Charter Members and their efforts are showing signs of success.

Potato Club

By Elizabeth Wood.

The first meeting of the Madoc 4-H Potato Club was held on April 8th, 1986 at the home of Mrs. Floyd Wood. There were eight members present and an election of officers was held.

Elected were: Karen Shaw, President. Debbie Shaw, Vice-president. Margaret Stein, Secretary. Elizabeth Wood, Press Reporter.

The new members were instructed in their duties and how to keep their work book up to date. The next meeting will be held at the home of Robert Sager on May 6th, 1986.

A lunch was served after the meeting by Mrs. Sager and Mrs. Wood.

Arts 'Council

In a press release, the Quinte Arts Council, announced a Volunteer Recognition Night at the Corby Reception Centre on Thursday, April 17, 1986 at 7:30 p.m.

Special guest speaker for the evening will be Julie Roberts, an active volunteer for many years with the Quinte Dance Centre. Two local violinists, Joachim Riemann and his daughter Elizabeth Conley, will be providing musical entertainment.

The Volunteer Recognition Night has been organized in order to thank the many people who contribute much time and effort to our local arts and heritage organization.

There was a short business discussion. Correspondence was read and dealt with.

As this was the annual meeting, the minutes of the last annual meeting were read; also the financial report and reports of all committees.

Mrs. Allan Ramsay read the report of the Nominating Committee. Mrs. Mervil Lees moved its adoption. Mrs. George Best was appointed Secretary for the election of officers, which was as follows:

Past President - Mrs. Ken Cassidy. President - Mrs. Robert McNeil, 1st Vice President - Mrs. David Gordon, 2nd Vice President - Mrs. Alex Clarke.

Secretary-Treasurer - Mrs. George Best. Assistant Secretary - Mrs. Brian Lamb.

District Director - Mrs. Ken Cassidy. Alternate District Director - Mrs. Roy Rollins.

Branch Directors - Mrs. Frank O'Rourke, Mrs. Harold Tokley and Mrs. Ken Cassidy.

Public Relations Officer - Mrs. Mervil Lees.

Standing Committee

tee Conveners: Citizenship and World Affairs - Mrs. Arthur Holmes, Family and Consumer Affairs - Mrs. Alf Sutton, Agriculture and Canadian Industries - Mrs. William Cassidy and Mrs. David Gordon. Education and Cultural Activities - Mrs. Roy Rollins. Resolutions - Mrs. Allan Ramsay, Curator - Mrs. John Bagshaw, Assistant Curator - Mrs. Alf Sutton, Flower and Box Committee - Mrs. A. Ramsay and Mrs. A. Clarke. Cards - Mrs. Fred Bosley, Pianist and Press Reporter - Mrs. William Lynn, Nominating Committee - Mrs. F. O'Rourke and Mrs. M. Lees. Auditors - Mrs. Allan Ramsay and Mrs. Harold Tokley.

After the officers were elected by Miss Hazel Thompson, the meeting was again taken over by Mrs.

McNeil.

The program was in charge of Mrs. Ken Cassidy. Mrs. McNeil read an article on the changes that are coming in the near future in the Women's Institute.

The group sang 'The Maple Leaf Forever'. Mrs. Arthur Holmes sang a comic song 'I'm A Little Teapot'.

There was a contest pulling beans through a straw.

Mrs. Sutton sang a couple of songs.

There were a couple of readings by Mrs. Clarke. Mrs. Wm. Cassidy read a poem from the Home and Country, 'Bless Our Institute'. Mrs. Roy Rollins gave a reading 'Ring Easter Bells'.

There were other guessing games and quizzes and lunch was served by the hostess and her assistants and everyone enjoyed a social time.

Jim Watson, local councillor, was officially welcomed to the Moira River Conservation Authority at the March 13th meeting of the Authority.

St. Peters Presbyterian

St. Peter's Presbyterian Women's Club met at the home of Mrs. Alein Symon, on Monday, April 7th. The President opened the meeting with a poem entitled, 'Our Purpose'.

The Devotional part conducted by Mrs. Mary Trotter began with the hymn, 'What a friend we have in Jesus', followed by a meditation on Psalm 136, the hymn, 'For the beauty of the Earth', and prayer.

The Roll call showed 16 members present.

The Club will be holding a noon luncheon on April 23 (Wednesday) in the Church Hall, from 11:30 to 1:00 p.m. Admission $3.00.

A tentative date for the annual Lilac Tea is Saturday May 24th. Lamoine West introduced the guest speaker, Mrs. M. Graham, who gave a very informative slide presentation of the places visited during the months that she and her husband were in the South Pacific last year. Mrs. Graham concentrated on New Zealand and Hong Kong and told many interesting anecdotes connected with their travels through these countries.

Mrs. Sue Beals expressed thanks to the hostess, the guest speaker and everyone who had participated in the meeting. Lunch was served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Getha Burns and Mrs. Rita Pitts.

First Annual Star Castle Junior Mixed Bospiel

by Ross Lees

The first annual Star Castle Restaurant Junior Mixed Bospiel wasn't won locally but the organizers and the teams who participated liked the spiel. Eight teams from Campbellford (2), Norwood (2), Napanee, CFB Trenton, Tweed and Peterborough took part in this first ever knockout junior bospiel.

CFB Trenton was the eventual winner after knocking off the Tweed rink skipped by Chris Martin. The CFB rink skipped by Robert Simms played extremely well and easily defeated the formerly tough Tweed rink in the final game.

The Campbellford rink skipped by Allan Ingram won the second event, defeating Napanee's Chris Briese rink.

Gary Fenn's rink from Peterborough defeated Roy Pearce's Norwood rink to win the third event while Dave Philp of Campbellford won the third event by defeating Norwood's Mike Sherwin rink.

Besides the Star Castle Restaurant trophy, the winners received $60 and keeper trophies. Other cash prizes included $32, $32, and $20, the runners-up received consolation prizes from the sponsors of the bospiel including the Royal Bank, World's Finest Chocolate, Campbellford Canadian Tire, OPP, Stedman's and Pepsi Cola, who donated free Pepsi for the day. All participants also received crests.

Bospiel organizer Bob MacPherson was pleased with the bospiel. 'Competition was good throughout although I thought the first event final would have been closer. Martin's rink didn't play as well as their capable of or it would have been much closer. He's normally awfully tough to beat.'

All of the teams seemed to enjoy the bospiel, the food and their reception in Campbellford. Most committed themselves to returning next year and MacPherson hopes to increase the number of teams by then.

Havelock Hastings and District Tyke Champions

Sunday, Apr. 6, the hosted the 2nd annual Hastings and District Tyke Championship. Havelock Tykes led up to play good goaltending strong defence forwards going both ways as Havelock scored 21 goals and allowed six in three games. Havelock's first goal was scored early but six unanswered goals. Scoring were: Darryl McMillan, Matthew Whit- Jason MacGregor.

gor from Chris Caprio and Brian Larmer, Blaine Pomeroy from Darryl McMillan and Matthew Whitney.

Jason MacGregor from Jason Vilneff and Brian Larmer, Darryl McMillan from Matthew Whitney and Blaine

Pomeroy, Blaine Whitney from Matthew and Shelley Reynolds. Final score: Havelock 6 - Keene 1.

Havelock continued to roll in their second game scoring nine goals before Warsaw broke. Stephen Stockdale's bid for a shutout with only 1:36 left to play. No assists were recorded for this game but goalscorers were: Jason MacGregor (5), Matthew Whitney (2), Brian Larmer and Blaine Pomeroy. Final score: Havelock 9 - Warsaw 1.

After a 15-minute rest, Havelock's third game was against Douro, who were playing their second. Douro scored early but Havelock soon got on track scoring the next four.

Scoring for Havelock were: Jason MacGregor (4), Brian Larmer and Darryl McMillan. Final score: Havelock 6 - Douro 3.

This victory gave our young Tykes the Hastings and District Tyke Championship. The Tykes wish to thank Russ Carnes, Bill Vilneff, Bill Reynolds and Bruce Larmer for their help at various times during the year.

A very special thank you to Coach Don Whitney and Manager Ken McMillan. Thank you!!!

Link House Daycare and Family Centre

Barbara Morris, a volunteer at the Link House Daycare and Family Centre in Campbellford, is pictured here having 'tea' with two youngsters. The new daycare centre is designed to bring people of all ages together.

We want to make it possible for all age groups to 'link up' with each other in one space.

That's the stated purpose of the Link House Daycare and Family Centre located at 45 Front Street, North. Mrs. Anne deHaan has designed the facility so that virtually everybody can take advantage of the services this new business supplies.

The charitable corporation was officially opened at an open house Monday, April 6, when Bernice Sheppard, Hector Macmillan and Frank Linton gathered to officially cut the ribbon. So far, Mrs. deHaan says the response from the public has been tremendous. The senior citizens have been expressing an interest as well as making toys for the facility. More and more young children and their mothers have committed themselves to attend, and those are the two groups Mrs. deHaan is most interested in getting together.

Those two age groups used to be together more often, she said, referring to an almost outmoded system of grandpa-ents living in a home with their children and the grandchildren.

But don't get the impression Link House is designed just for tots and seniors. It's for everyone of every age group, although Mrs. deHaan admits she is not quite ready to handle all age groups yet, though she plans to be in the future.

As you enter the front door from Front Street, you enter an area featuring a sandbox for a creative play area for youngsters. A small reception area is located to the left of the entrance. Progressing into the facility, you come to a drawing and painting area, table and chairs for older children and grownups or small groups for meetings in the evenings. To the left of the table and chairs, a kitchen area for children has been set up. As you enter the back of the facility, you pass the bathrooms and enter the kitchen area. Eventually, a playground and parking area is to be established at the back, although that must wait for funds.

And speaking of funds, Link House was assisted in establishing by a government grant, but it is to be supported chiefly by donations. With all donations, a receipt will be supplied for tax purposes.

A qualified supervisor is present during the afternoon from 12-6 pm while the rest of the day is supervised by volunteers, at least until more funds become available. Mrs. deHaan says. She is hoping eventually to make the morning position a paid position, but in the meantime she will take advantage of the co-op program from the high school as well as the futures program for young people during the summer.

Donations can come in two ways. You can donate money or you can

Campbellford Horticultural Society

Campbellford and District Horticultural Society met in Jenk Hall April 7th. President, Ray Ward opened the meeting and asked reports from members.

Chris Trotter had chased three new books for the library - landscaping, Evergreens and Happy, Healthy Houseplants. Glenn and Lois Bennett displayed a map of the Horticultural canal bed with the layout of the proposed placement shrubs. They also had copies of a map of the land, formerly the site of the old lumber mill, of the commerce building, which the Horticultural Society has offered to landscape as a small park. Members were asked to submit their ideas for the proposed park. The town's Public Works committee has agreed to work with the Horticultural Society on this beautification project.

Delegates for the Ontario Horticultural Association Convention, June 24 - 26, were selected. They are Ray Collard, Pam Post and Mary Tate. It is hoped their members will attend this convention in Peterborough.

On a motion by Jim Trotter it was decided to continue the Big Pumpkin Contest. Watch the paper for further details.

Glenn Bennett then introduced the speaker for the evening from the Bos Nurseries, Highway 2 near Trenton. The topic being lawns.

FERTILIZATION:
(1) Spring - Use a fertilizer high in nitrogen for greening, i.e. 21-7-7. This can be a weed and feed variety. Good quality fertilizers will not burn the lawn. (2) Summer - Use a 10-5-10 fertilizer, since during hotter days of summer too much root growth could be damaging. This too, could be a weed and feed variety.

Mr. Bos also displayed liquid lawn food which can be hooked up to the garden hose for application. Liquid fertilizers may contain herbicides which are not harmful to earthworms.

PROBLEMS: Most people desire a thick, green lawn that is resistant to attacks from insects, fungi and that winters well.

(1) BROWN BLOTCHES are probably caused by grubs or cinch bugs.

Apply diazanon or chlordane when temperature is at a consistent 80 degrees Fahrenheit. Ant and grub killer or insecticides used for flowers can also be applied to the lawn.

(2) MOSS in your lawn indicates an acid soil. This can be checked with a P.H. computer. If acid count is high, spray the areas with moss killer - a refined fertilizer with horticultural lime, or use Horticultural Lime, but NOT on potato or azalea soil.

(3) WEEDS growing along driveways, between flagstones, etc. may be eliminated by using soil sterilizer in the spring, or a multi-weeder diluted with water.

SPRING RENOVATION: Rake well to get rid of dead thatch. Some mowers do this. Cut deep grooves for seeds and then roll.

GRASS SEED: Seed in early spring or late fall. Kinds: (a) Fast grass. (b) Town and Country - contains red fescue. Lawn is drought resistant and can be mowed shorter. (c) Shade Lawn Seed which is guaranteed to produce grass in shady areas. (d) Cont'd to page 4A

Blend 50 is one of the best lawn seed available. It hugs the ground and maintains its green. (e) Flowers and Grass is a new mixture for anyone who wishes to transform difficult or wasteland into a beautiful meadow of wild flowers and short grass.
A question and answer period followed and Mr. Bos offered advice on such topics as shrubs for damp land, stump removal, crabgrass, Northern Gold Forsythia, slugs, etc.

A draw was then conducted and some lucky members received some of the Bos Nursery products such as fertilizers. Ray Collard thanked the speaker for an interesting and informative talk.

Lois Bennett gave a report on the Mini-show with 37 entries. She was pleased with the humour and inventiveness shown in the 'Let's Be Foolish' entries.

The meeting adjourned, and everyone enjoyed birthday cake in honour of Ray Collard.

IT'S GOOD TO KNOW SOMEONE WHO KNOWS

Healthy Baby

By Barry Phillips,
B. Sc. Pharm.
President, Ontario
College of Pharmacists Community Pharmacists

If you're pregnant or want to become pregnant, consider this: everything you put into your body goes into your baby's.

Whatever you eat, drink or swallow passes from your body through the placenta and into your baby. So, if you're taking any medications, either prescription or non-prescription, they can adversely affect your unborn child.

There's no doubt some medications have saved the lives of many unborn infants. But, there are commonly used medications that can harm them. Many are particularly harmful during the first three months of pregnancy when the fetus and major organ systems are rapidly developing. Therefore, if you are pregnant, ask your doctor or pharmacist before taking any medication, either prescription or non-prescription.

Some tranquilizers, for example, have been known to cause a cleft lip or palate. When taken during the last weeks of pregnancy, certain tranquilizers may cause adverse reactions in newborns such as drowsiness, unusually slow heartbeat, shortness of breath and other breathing difficulties.

Estrogens and progestins (the primary ingredients of most birth control pills) can cause birth defects if taken during pregnancy. If you suspect you may have become pregnant while taking birth control pills, stop taking them immediately and check with your doctor.

ASA and similar painkillers are so common we often take them for granted. However, if taken during the last three months of pregnancy, they can prolong pregnancy and many cause excessive bleeding before and after delivery. If you need medication to relieve pain, always ask your doctor or pharmacist which is best to take.

Your pharmacist wants you to know and understand the medications you take and their effect on your unborn baby. The more you know, the healthier you and your baby will be.

Next week we'll look at the effects of alcohol and cigarettes and the benefits of good nutrition and exercise.

Safire talent shines through

By: Denise Ferriss
SAFIRE is a name to remember. In their first public appearance, Shawn Robertson (vocals), Kyle Craig and Rich Little (guitars), Kim Rogers (bass guitar), and Sam Donnelly (drums) showed a truly professional enthusiasm.

Friday night they played to a standing room only crowd at the Campbellford Inn. They played again Saturday night to a full house, including many who had returned from the night before to see the band again. This is not a hobby or a passing phase, this is every member of the band's chosen career. They are serious about a career in the entertainment business, and if Saturday night is an example, you'll be hearing a lot more about SAFIRE in the near future.

Kyle describes the band as 'a hard rock band, not the head banging kind, we just like to rock!'

Kim added 'a show band, definitely a show band', and that they were. With a high tech light show and special effects, even if you really don't like hard rock, the costumes, the lights and the performance were well worth seeing.

Shawn, the lead singer, remarked before the show, 'We want the best that we can give, whatever we can - put on a good show'.

The band has definite plans for the near future. They want to play a lot and gain recognition, then move on towards Toronto, where everything positive in the entertainment business

All this hard work is directed towards their goal of success as they plan to make a demo tape in the near future.

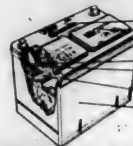

The band, and all the others involved, are all young local people. They practice in Hastings, the middle point of where they all come from. Kyle and James Ross (their manager) are both from Campbellford. Shawn, Rich, Kim and Rick Long (sound man) are from Peterborough. Sam, the drummer at whose house they practice, is from Hastings.

Their wardrobe was extravagant, their light show exciting, and their attitudes professional. After Saturday's performance, you will hear about SAFIRE again!

The Plowman's Lunch held at the Warkworth Town Hall last Thursday at noon for the Warkworth Canadian Cancer Society was a huge success, said campaign chairperson Helen Parry. About 144 people turned out this year, an increase of about 24 people over last year. Ellen Bronson of RR 5, Warkworth won the draw on the quilt, Pearl Sharpe of Peterborough won the crocheted afghan and Madeline Mann of Peterborough won the maple syrup. All proceeds went to the Cancer Society.

MEMORIALS

ELIS - In loving memory of Randle, Apr. 13/76, Charlie, Dec. 7/72. Lisa, Sept. 3/82. Your presence we miss. Your memories we treasure. Loving you always. Forgetting you never. Remembered always. Norma & family.

McFADDEN-VIOLET - In memory of a dear mother & grandmother who passed away April 12/85. Those whom we love go out of sight. But never out of mind. They are cherished in the hearts. Of those they left behind. Loving & kind in all her ways. Upright & just in all her days. Sincere & true in heart & mind. Beautiful memories she left behind. Sadly missed by son Don, daughter Blanche & family.

SPRACKETT - In loving memory of Aileen Sprackett who passed away April 11/84. When evening shades are falling. And we sit in quiet alone. To our hearts there comes a longing. If she only could come home. Friends may think we have forgotten. When at times they see us smile. But they little know the heartache. Our smiles hide all the while. Lovingly remembered by niece Judy Hawley & family, son Don and daughter-in-law Florence.

WATSON - In loving memory of my husband, James Alexander Watson who passed away Apr. 19/85. "Together forever" My beloved Jim. These words you said to me on our wedding day. They are in my heart forever. And someday Jim. We will be "together forever". Lovingly remembered by your wife Muriel.

Workers' Compensation Board

For you, it's a good business opportunity. You save the cost of advertising a vacancy, and preliminary interviews. You pay no wages during the assessment period. You pay only a small portion of the wage following the assessment period, until job training is complete. You won't be charged a higher compensation assessment as a result of an injury during the trial or training periods, or as a result of recurring problems with the old injury. You sign only two pieces of paperwork during the whole procedure! You get experienced workers, hand-picked, with a sense of responsibility. You get continuing help and advice from a Workers' Compensation Board representative.

Propane Explosion.

At approximately 4 p.m. on Friday the 18th, a minor explosion occurred at Kramp's Gas and Discount Sports, located at the south end of the Village of Madoc.

Employee Darryl Dafoe, aged 17, of R.R. No. 4 Tweed was taken to Kingston General Hospital with 1st and 2nd degree burns to his hands and face. William Kerr of R.R. No. 2 Madoc was treated at hospital and released.

Darryl Kramp, owner, said 'Thank God that the injuries were not more serious.' He went on to explain that the explosion occurred when a 20lb. tank was being purged prior to refilling. John Stoneham of the Energy Safety Branch of the Ministry of Consumer Relations in Belleville, visited the scene shortly after the accident and was satisfied that the proper safety precautions had been taken and could offer no immediate explanation as to the cause of the explosion. Reports of all similar explosions are to be retrieved from the Ministry's computers and studied for a possible explanation.

Kramp said that there is a lot of guesswork going on and possible theories being explored but it is quite likely that the true cause will not be found. There was no question as to a breach of safety regulations, in fact it appears that the propane operation at this site is carried out with greater regards to safety than at some other stations.

Employee Dafoe is expected to be released from hospital on Monday or Tuesday of this week. Kramp explained that Dafoe was being kept under observation to ensure that infection did not develop and that he is given to understand that there will be no permanent damage involved. Kramp gave high praise to customer William Kerr who, despite his own injuries helped minister to the injured Dafoe. Kerr's calm and competent manner definitely helped quell any possible panic and enabled Kramp to control the situation. In summing up the occurrence, Kramp said 'It's a good thing that all safety precautions were being observed and that safety devices within the system did their job.'

The order of The Eastern Star celebrated their 60th Anniversary with a tea, Saturday 19th. April at St John's Anglican Church Hall.

New Heating System.

In a telephone interview, Tom Burnside, School Trustee, commenting on the recent Education Budget, said that the Madoc Public School would benefit from this budget by way of a new heating system. The existing system is badly in need of replacement and the new system will reflect the latest technology in heating.

The Board of Education agenda item concerning the Madoc Public School Renovations reads as follows -

The Properties Committee has reviewed the tender bids for the renovations at the Madoc Public School.

The estimate for this project was $322,000 with the Board's share being $107,131 and the Ministry of Education's share, $214,869.

Four bids were received with the lowest bid being Superior Plumbing & Heating Ltd. at $402,900. The total project cost now reaches $435,397.

This higher price can be attributed to the complications of there being four different ventilation systems in the school. The ministry of Education supports 90% of Advanced Renovations. The Ministry's share of this project is now projected at $308,783 and the Board's share is $126,614.

The Properties Committee is supportive of the award of this contract subject to Ministry of Education Approval.

RECOMMENDATION.

It is recommended that the Board award the advanced renovations of Madoc Public School to Superior Plumbing & Heating Limited, for a firm price of $402,900, subject to Ministry of Education approval.

Education

To Cost More

Both the Hastings County Board of Education and the Hastings Prince Edward Counties Roman Catholic School Board have finalized their budgets and both reflect an 8.35% increase over last year's levy.

Evan Bogart, Public School Board chairman is quoted as saying he feels that the board has come in with a very responsible budget. Catherine Holland of the Separate School board said she's very pleased, because we have done very well, staying within our grant ceiling.

Just what the increase means to local taxpayers is not immediately clear. Doug Parks, Madoc Village Clerk, says that the increase in Education Taxes passed on to the Village shows an increase of about 11% over last year. He went on to say 'The final effect on the village will not be known until Council has completed their Budget deliberations on Tuesday the 22nd.'

John Irwin, Reeve of Madoc Township, says Council has not yet had a chance to digest the figures but initial reaction shows that some increase can be expected.

Many municipalities are complaining about the increase, particularly those that have established their municipal budget only to find that they now have to make adjustments. Local officials point out that they have no control over the budgets brought down by Board's of Education and have to incorporate these figures into their overall municipal budget.

C.H.S.S. Cultural Kaleidoscope

May 1). Each day of the week will feature a particular country. On Monday, the British Isles will be featured, on Tuesday, Germany and on Wednesday, Italy.

Thursday a variety of countries will be represented in a grand finale of the week.

Again we urge you to get involved. Many artifacts are needed.

As well, any information you could contribute about a country you are familiar with would be greatly appreciated.

Remember, the public is invited to come and view the displays and activities going on at any time during the week. Thursday will be the ethnic music and dance program is now confirmed. It will take place in the main gym on Thursday from 12:40 to 2:00 p.m. Dancers from Quinte Mohawk School, Quinte Secondary School, Dutch organization, East Indian organization and C.H.S.S. will perform. A version of the musical 'CATS' will be presented by the drama students of Centre Hastings and another C.H.S.S.

Come and browse through the main pavilion. See traditional costumes. Or taste an unusual dessert. For more information contact Mrs. Mabo or Mrs. Powell in the guidance department at 473-4251.

Letter to the Editor.

Editor,
On behalf of the Madoc Chapter of the Kidney Foundation I would like to express my sincere appreciation to you for your coverage of the March fundraising event.
The amount of money received was $48,000, to date this year we have received

$52,000 with money still coming in.
A special thanks to Maude and Tom Deline Sr. and all those canvassers who spent so many hours canvassing in Madoc and area. You might be interested to know that the total donation from Madoc was $1,205.
Also, our thanks to those who made donations. Without them, of course, we could not carry out research and continue Patient Services, both of which are so very important.

Our thanks again,
and we hope to receive your continued support.
Yours truly,
Donald Gavey

Science Fair

By Lee Gillespie.

At the Centre Hastings Science Fair last Wednesday, the generally high quality of the exhibits made for some stiff competition. The excellence is evidenced by the fact that Centre Hastings students won the first three places at the grade 9 - 10 level in the Quinte Regional Science Fair on Saturday.

Albert and Karen Treanor in second place.

All these winners were eligible to complete in the Regional Science Fair at Quinte Mall.
Jason Hawley and Deryk McNevin placed first, Paul Morton second and Terry Albert and Karen Treanor third in the Grade 9 and 10 division.

In our own Science Fair, in Life Sciences, Michael Mikkelsen was first and Ron Abrams was second. Jason
Hawley and Deryk McNevin took first prize in the Physical Science category with Paul Morton
second. The Engineering category was won by Wesley Cromwell with Terry

In addition Karen and Terry won a special Science and Development award and Wesley Cromwell took second place in the Grade eight Engi-

All these competitors are to be congratulated for a really fine effort.

O.P.P. Re-union

Walt Sawkins reports that the O.P.P. Reunion scheduled for the 2nd, 3rd and 4th of May has so far, received a very successful response, and that a limited amount of tickets for the various functions to be held over the week-end are still available to the public:

There is to be a reception on the Friday night with a dinner and dance scheduled for Saturday. On the Sunday morning a pancake brunch is planned.

There will also be a display of memorabilia set up at the Kiwanis Centre and this should provide a great opportunity to find out just what this O.P.P. detachment means to our community.

This event is worthy of community support to show appreciation for the efforts made on our behalf by these officers.

THE "CARPET KING"

At its regular meeting on Monday night, the Board approved a 1986 Budget in the amount of $76,715,000. That amount is 7.64 per cent over last year's actual expenditure and will result in a mill rate increase of 8.35 per cent. Because assessment bases vary so much across the 29 municipalities in the county, and because so few people live in an 'average home', it is suggested that the best way of calculating the increase on any individual home is to apply the 8.35 per cent to the education portion of the 1985 tax bill.

The Board has been working diligently on the Budget for two months, considering carefully the continuing costs of ongoing programs, as well as the costs of improvements to meet Ministry and parental expectations. All sections of the Budget were reviewed on Monday evening prior to the approval of the final amount.

In contrast to the situation in 1985 (when a 2.5 per cent increase in Budget produced a mill rate increase of 8.9 per cent because of the very small 1.1 per cent increase in Ministry support), the 1986 Budget increase of 7.64 per cent resulted in a slightly smaller mill rate increase this year of 8.35 per cent. The Board was able to hold down the mill rate increase to just under that of last year, because the 1986 expenditures include $2,131,000 in approved capital projects that attracted a significant level of Ministry support. Those expenditures, along with other urgently required plant projects, account for 4.5 per cent of the mill rate increase.

Other expenditures account for only 3.85 per cent of the increase. These other areas will need to be closely monitored in 1987 and future years to ensure that the needs of students are met.

Increase in emphysema burden on Lung Association

Emphysema - it's just a long word until you have it. When you do it means a struggle by minute to breathe. It's one of the fastest growing diseases in North America, says Dr. C. Kuebler, Medical Advisor for the Lung Association in the Hastings-Prince Edward Region. There is no cure for emphysema. This destructive disease affects the lives of half a million Canadians, and it is estimated that 20,000 will die this year.

These facts place a heavy burden on the Lung Association and a special appeal for funds is being made this month, says Mrs. F. Lemoine, Executive Director. "Our goal for this important campaign is $25,000.00. For example, our Rehabilitation Programs which help and support those suffering from chronic lung diseases, are stretched to capacity. We must meet the increasing demand for help. The everyday tasks we take for granted are counted as victories by the emphysema sufferer. Imagine being hooked up to an oxygen tank in order to just move about the house. Taking a bath can be exhausting. The water can't be too hot because steam plus the change in temperature make it hard to breathe. For some, oxygen may have to be used even while bathing. It isn't unusual for the oxygen tank to be close by. Emphysema is a family affair, because the whole family lifestyle is involved.

The Lung Association conducts programs on lung health in the elementary and secondary schools. They are proving so popular that we are hard pressed to meet the additional requests. Last year we reached the children in over 75 schools in our area - grades five to eight. With more funds available we could expand our school programs," Mrs. F. Lemoine said.

"Also, if medical breakthroughs are to be accomplished, more funds must be directed to research. World-class research is being conducted in Ontario and other parts of Canada but progress is slow because funds are inadequate."

Emphysema is a lung disease in which some of the air sacs deep in the lungs have been damaged. Emphysema commonly strikes males between the age of 50 and 70. But recent statistics show an increasing number of women with emphysema. Smoking from an early age is the major cause of

Home decor planning open house planned

Budget minded home decorating ideas, displays of window treatments with an emphasis on the currently popular and easy sew balloon and roman shades and demonstration and displays of candlewicking. That's what you will see and more Wednesday, Apr. 30, 1986, at Stirling Senior School and Wednesday, May 14, 1986, at Pinecrest Elementary School, Bloomfield; both from 7-9 p.m. A special feature - Interior Design. Guest speaker at 8 p.m. Refreshments will be provided. Local Church, Women's Institute and Craft Groups will display their home-sewn balloon and roman shades, and home decorating ideas; and hand crafted candlewicking projects as a result of taking the Home Decor Planning Leadership Workshops. This program was offered in February to area community groups through the Rural, Organizations and Services Branch of the Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food.

At this workshop, leaders learned leadership skills, the basic steps in planning decorating changes, including budgeting and market strategies, the basic principles of sewing balloon and roman shades and the art of candlewicking. Workshop participants then returned to their organization to pass on these skills.

Come and see the technique of 'candlewicking' demonstrated by course participants and learn more about balloon and roman shade sewing techniques. Everyone is welcome.

For further information, contact Valerie Clark or Wendy McWilliams, Rural Organization Specialists, at the Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food office in Stirling (395-3393) or Picton (476-3224).

The June 3, 1986, Census of Agriculture will for the first time ask Canadian farm operators about the use of such developments as office computers and subsurface (tile) drainage systems. Bill Vankoughnet, MP for Hastings-Frontenac-Lennox

The Review

Ask yourself: Is your car ready for a vacation?

A thousand miles from home, car loaded with family and vacation gear, the engine stalls and won't start again.

Fortunately, the towing service is available to take you to a repair shop where their diagnostic equipment pinpoints your trouble. Your astute technician soon has you fixed up and on your way, wishing you had taken the time to have the car tuned up before leaving home. There is a direct relationship between car breakdowns and proper maintenance according to George Giek, Managing Director of Automotive Engineering and Road Services Department of the American Automobile Association.

Last year AAA alone rendered emergency road service nearly 17 million times in North America.

From this experience, Giek told a convention of the Society of Automotive Engineers, many of the AAA's 80 per cent of maintenance-related road service calls could have been prevented if owners had performed routine, preventive car care.

In AAA's own diagnostic programs, says Giek, it is not unusual to find owner's who don't even check the oil level for the first 7,500 miles of the car's life.

Car Care Council concurs, reporting a high percentage of motorists who are negligent about keeping their cars in tune. Among 1,200 car owners who responded to a survey by the Council regarding their driving and vehicle maintenance habits, 38 per cent said they believe their cars need or may need a tune-up. Engines in this neglected condition, says the Council, run poorly, waste gas and are hard to start. They also will emit harmful exhaust pollutants into the air.

Peak engine performance is critical when the car is subjected to heavier-than-normal loads for long stretches at highway speeds.

Down-sized cars, with smaller engines, often carry the added weight and wind resistance of car top carriers. An engine in borderline condition may not have adequate power reserve under these conditions.

Car Care Council recommends, in addition to a general checkup and servicing of the car prior to a vacation trip, that the engine be given a diagnostic check and necessary tune-up services be performed.

Ongoing car care is more important than ever

There never has been a time in the last four decades when care of your car was more important than it is now, says the Motor Vehicle Manufacturers Association (MVMA).

With about 70 per cent of us pumping our own gasoline, the routine but critical checks performed by attendants at the full-service gas pumps are often overlooked.

Intervals between oil changes and other maintenance procedures have been substantially boosted, points out MVMA. Example: Many manufacturers require an oil change only once in 10,000 miles. That's almost a year for many drivers. Prior to World War II, a petroleum refiner proudly advertised its product as the 2,000-mile oil.

Average age of cars on the road is at a three-decade peak of seven and a half years.

The ratio of cars to mechanics has improved in the last few years but only to a point where it's estimated that there is one repair person for every 165 cars in operation.

Car population has quadrupled in 40 years. Heavier traffic means your car should be in tip-top condition to meet today's driving demands. That means good brakes, steering, tires and acceleration when you need it.

Ironically, car manufacturers have made such tremendous strides in reducing owner maintenance responsibility that there is concern that such basic efforts as an oil change or replacing an air filter might be neglected, says John C. Scowcroft, Director of Contracts and Special Projects in MVMA's Technical Affairs Division.

Cowcroft points out that the recommendations can be different for two people driving identical car makes.

Most of us can drive 10,000 miles or whatever the manufacturer recommends, on the same oil, he says. 'But, that does not apply to the motorist who stays within the city limits and makes an occasional trip to the grocery or drug store. That type of owner needs to change the oil every six months regardless of mileage.'

The same rule applies to the Texas rancher or the rural owner who sees a lot of dust in daily drives - long or short, he says. 'Also, if your car frequently is used to pull a trailer on vacation trips, drain the crankcase and pour in a fresh supply often. Change transmission fluid and filter more often, too.'

Air conditioner care

Is your car's air conditioner keeping you completely cool this summer? If not, says Car Care Council, check it out.

The two most common problems that turn up in car air conditioners are refrigerant leaks and inoperative compressors. These problems can hinder a system's performance and cause it to falter when it's needed the most.

Most leaks occur at fittings where lines are joined together, or where a line connects to another component. Leaks can drain the system of the refrigerant needed to maintain sufficient charge. If the level is low, the leaks should be repaired and the system recharged.

While leaks account for the majority of car air conditioner problems, an additional area not to be overlooked is the efficient operation of the car equipped with an automatic transmission offers considerable convenience over manual transmissions. However, as with any convenient device, there are no free lunches. Automatic transmission replacement is not inexpensive, and proper attention to as an option and is one of the most expensive items on the car to repair or replace. Fortunately, major repairs are typically not required unless the transmission is not maintained. Recent surveys indicate that motorists are not paying proper attention to automatic transmission fluid (ATF) condition and levels. A transmission depends on ATF to lubricate, cool and provide the power transfer from the engine to drive axles. The life of ATF can be severely reduced when overheated, and transmission damage can result.

Overheating is typically caused by severe usage such as heavy stop-and-go driving; pulling a trailer; spinning the wheels in mud, snow or sand; and low ATF levels.

Remember to check the ATF condition and level periodically when you stop for refueling. If you need to add fluid, consult the owner's manual to determine which type of ATF is required.

If the fluid appears dark brown or has a burnt odor, it may need to be changed. If you must add fluid frequently, it may mean that the transmission has a leak which should be repaired. Faulty gaskets or seals usually cause leaks.

Small car cooling systems work harder

Owners of newer, smaller cars who are preparing their cars' cooling systems for the summer driving should 'bone up' on the subject before proceeding, says Car Care Council.

These engines produce up to 20 per cent more heat than did their bigger, easier working predecessors. In some cases, they have aluminum heads and/or blocks instead of heavier cast iron, therefore requiring new antifreeze coolant mixtures compatible with these metals.

The Council recommends a seasonal flush and refill of antifreeze/coolant to retain the system's maximum efficiency and to prolong the life of the radiator and other parts.

Staying ahead of overheating trouble

If you've found it necessary to add coolant to your car's cooling system lately, consider yourself lucky. At least you're being given fair warning of bigger trouble to come if you don't take care of things now.

Car Care Council emphasizes that cooling system failure often strikes without subtle warning signs.

A bad radiator hose, for example, may not begin leaking until... suddenly, it's too late. It ruptures and all the anti-freeze/coolant quickly is gone. Unless the engine is shut off at once, major damage is almost certain.

The best way to avoid cooling system trouble is to have the system flushed, checked over visually, pressure tested and all marginal belts and hoses replaced. Typical belt and hose life is three to four years.

Condition of anti-freeze/coolant is as important in hot weather as in sub-freezing.

In fact, says the engineers of Automotive Cooling System Institute, anti-freeze/coolant might also be termed 'anti-steam' and 'anti-foam' and 'anti-corrosive' as these are among the other functions of this vital fluid. It should be replaced as part of seasonal cooling system service.

Finally, says Car Care Council, do not assume your cooling system is functioning just fine because the engine warning light does not go on.

A loose or defective radiator pressure cap or one of the wrong type for your car can permit anti-freeze/coolant to boil off without triggering the light.

Coolant also might boil away if its level is low or if the incorrect mixture of water and anti-freeze (Ethylene Glycol) is used.

Some of the more insidious malfunctions, such as small leaks and restrictions in the radiator core or other parts of the system, eventually will cause trouble.

Again, the condition may be somewhat advanced before the temperature warning light goes on. For this reason, motorists should include coolant level among their list of periodic under-the-hood checks.

Consider installing an engine temperature gauge to supplement the warning light, suggests the Car Care Council. Available in most auto parts stores, this can provide insurance against pending failure of one of the car's most critical systems.

Independent tire dealer key to long tire life

Buying the right tires for your car, its use and your driving habits, are crucial elements in safe driving and optimal tire performance.

A local, independent tire dealer is the best source for information about tires, according to Alan M. Bennett, vice-president, marketing, Armstrong Tire Company.

'Someone who knows how you use your car can recommend the best tire for you,' he explained. 'And because he's a local businessman, he cares that your tires are mounted and balanced properly and that you are a satisfied customer.'

Armstrong's Bennett added that an independent tire dealer will also take the time to answer questions about tire maintenance and possible problems that may arise. 'And, he'll be there when you need him,' added Mr. Bennett.

'The very specialized design of tires to match specific automobile designs and uses, makes the right tire selection important. You should rely on the tire-dealer to help get the best performance from your car and its tires,' he concluded.

Expert offers tips for beating the heat

Summer driving tips usually concentrate on how to keep your radiator from boiling over. That's not enough, says Saab. Heat can affect the family car in ways that most people never expect.

According to Dan David, Saab-Scania of America technical manager, not only engines overheat. The same can happen to cassette decks, batteries, tires and you should even look out for summer hazards to your car's paint work and wiper blades.

Heat is the enemy of a car's cassette tape player. According to Mr. David, high temperatures make the tape drive components sticky. They pick up dirt and adhesives from tapes, especially if the cassettes have been left in a car parked in the sun.

'Unless the player is cleaned periodically, the tapes can tangle and jam the machine,' Mr. David said.

Tape players can be cleaned with isopropyl alcohol.

When working on a car's electrical system, including the radio or other accessories, it's good practice to disconnect the battery. But Mr. David has a word of warning on this subject: Remember to clean the battery posts, especially in hot weather.

TIRES DON'T BOIL OVER
'Overheated tires

don't boil over, blow out or shatter with no warning,' Mr. David said.

'In the same way, the engine water-cooled, of tires as air-so, in the summer, keep the tires by maintaining recommended pressure. If long distances full load, a couple of above the pressure.'

Heat falsifies pressure readings, always check pressures when tires are cold, never remove from a hot Saab's spokes said.

Car Care

associated with the new cars cause rubber components to deteriorate more quickly than on earlier models. Therefore, a careful check of all hoses for rotting, cracking or leaks is essential. (Caution! Do not check hoses when the engine is hot. A weak hose could fail, releasing scalding fluid.)

Whether or not the car is equipped with a belt driven radiator fan, all belts should be inspected as part of the cooling system checkup.

Not only the condition of the belt but also the tension is critical. Too loose a belt will slip, permitting malfunction of the driven components (alternator, air conditioner compressor, fan, power steering and others).

Also, a slipping belt gets hot, thus accelerating wear and deterioration of the belt.

Life expectancy of belts and hoses, like most components, varies from car to car, driver to driver.

Most belts are replaced only when they are at or near failure, according to the engineers of Automotive Cooling System Institute, with potentially serious damage to the car. For this reason, recommended replacement interval for preventive maintenance is about four years.

Include the radiator cap in your inspection. Remove it (when the engine is cool) and check, the seal for breaks or cracks, which would indicate the need for replacement.

The cap also should be checked with a pressure tester to be sure it still can hold the pressure specified for that engine. Most service shops are equipped with pressure testers, which also can be used to locate leaks in the cooling system under pressure.

New shocks and struts protect you from more than just a bumpy road

Your car's shock absorbers or struts do a lot more than cushion you from the bumps and jolts of the road; they also provide ride control protection.

When shocks and struts wear out, your car's steering can be impaired, allowing the car to drift dangerously into turns and sway around corners, and other suspension parts can be damaged by excessive bottoming - or topping-out.

Yet, because they wear out gradually over time, many car owners aren't aware that their shocks or struts are worn and in need of replacement.

In addition to the telltale signs of irregular or premature tire wear, poor handling, vehicle drift and sway and bottoming-out, there is a simple bounce test you can perform to see if your shocks or struts need to be replaced.

Position yourself directly over the wheel by the front fender or rear of the vehicle and press down as hard as you can. Release quickly and observe the vehicle body.

If the shocks or struts are functioning properly, the vehicle should bounce only once or twice before returning to a level position. If the vehicle oscillates more than this, it could mean your shocks or struts need replacing.

When replacing worn shocks or struts, experts recommend the new gas-charged products which offer an extra dimension of control and ride stability.

Gas charging produces a shock or strut that is more responsive to the road, providing a mild booster spring effect that greatly reduces body sway and virtually eliminates bottoming-out on severe impact. Gas charged shocks and struts also provide quicker, more responsive handling, even under the most demanding driving conditions.

New gas charged shocks or struts could be the solution you're looking for to improve the ride and driveability of your car and offer the protection you need against whatever bumps the highway throws your way.

Summer heat

mends exterior cleanliness this time of year. During the summer the strong sunlight combines with acid rain and other pollutants to attack a car's finish.

'Fight back by washing the car regularly with lots of water,' Mr. David said. 'It's the best way to stop the formation of permanent spots that mar the finish.' By damaging the paint, industrial pollutants promote rusting. The ozone in the air also deteriorates wiper blades. Mid-summer is, therefore, a good time to inspect and, if need be, replace them, according to Saab.

If you are wondering why Saab is the expert on hot weather driving, Mr. David offers this explanation. 'After a long, harsh winter, Swedes want to get the most out of the summer; they make sure their car is trouble-free.'

Transmission fluid

recommend ATF changes until 100,000 miles. However, considering the cost of transmission repairs or replacement, an ATF change and filter replacement at 25,000 to 30,000 miles would be cheap insurance against failures due to burnt or contaminated fluid.

Typical preventive service to transmissions costs between $20 to $50; on the other hand, overhauls range between $200 and $1,200.

If you operate the vehicle under severe conditions or tow a trailer, you might want to have an auxiliary transmission fluid cooler installed. Auxiliary coolers are easily installed and inexpensive.

If you are driving a late-model car, you may have noticed that the transmission shifts frequently. Your car might also have additional selector positions on the gear shift. This means that the vehicle has a lock-up torque converter or overdrive function built into the transmission. This allows the engine to turn slowly while driving the wheels much faster.

This is particularly effective for improving fuel economy. Be sure to consult the owner's manual on the proper way to drive a car equipped with such modifications. Improperly using overdrive at slow speeds or with heavy loads can damage the transmission.

Car Care Illustrated repair maintenance guide

Twenty-five years ago, John F. Kennedy was inaugurated as President of the United States. But as far as computers and other electronic devices were concerned, we were hardly a step out of the Dark Ages.

President Kennedy won't go down in history as the 'Father of the Computer', but it was his support of America's burgeoning space program that led to the miniaturization of various components, thus making feasible the devices of the 1980s.

Computers have become a part of everyday life and their maintenance and repair are as important to modern Americans as was the cast-iron stove to our forebears.

Chilton Book Co. of Radnor, Penn., publisher of the most complete series of do-it-yourself (DIY) information, has introduced a new Repair and Maintenance Series for 1986, covering everything from the family car to home computers, to major household appliances.

Consumers are buying home computers and video cassette recorders (VCRs) by the millions. These devices can be used for anything from maintaining a family budget to projecting first-run motion pictures.

Like any other mechanical or electrical device, computers and recorders are subject to failure and the need for repair. Before reaching for the phone to call the high-priced technician, a glance through the appropriate guide will solve most problems.

Chilton's new Repair and Maintenance Guides for computers and VCRs cover units manufactured by IBM, Apple and Kaypro.

Each of the guides is liberally illustrated with clear, easy-to-use diagrams, photographs, and charts. Approximately 90 per cent of all repairs can be made with a screwdriver, multi-meter, your fingers and the Chilton Guide, so its value is clearly visible.

This new series also includes Chilton's Guide to Telephone Installation and Repair, quite a value at $12.50 since the break-up of AT&T.

Another key segment of the series includes books on the repair of small and major appliances.

Chilton's Guides to Major Appliance and Small Appliance Repair provide the information, pictures and diagrams to help the DIYer repair everything from a simple toaster to a computer-controlled washer or dryer.

Chilton, which earned its reputation through the publishing of annual repair guides, included books on turbo-charged engines and diesel engines, along with others on Small Engine (0 to 6 HP) Repair.

Census of agriculture/population

Census of Agriculture is carried out in conjunction with the Census of Population. The data can be used to monitor trends over time.

Questions in the 1986 Census of Agriculture have been designed to make the information more useful and responsive to evolving issues in agriculture and to regional concerns. For the first time each farm operator will receive, along with the questionnaire, an explanation of why the various questions are being asked.

All employees of the Census are required to take an oath of secrecy and are liable to fines or imprisonment, or both, should they violate this oath. The information supplied to the enumerators is strictly confidential.

The Census of Agriculture is basically a comprehensive snapshot of the major characteristics of Canadian farming. Bill Vankoughnet, MP, noted. This revised census will be better suited to monitor the changing structure of the agriculture industry. Questionnaire modules to be included will collect information on crops, livestock, farm machinery, and farm business practices, such as fertilizer use, the use of pesticides, and off farm work.

A primary force behind change in agriculture has been technological development, and a major consequence has been land and farm consolidation and the concentration or food production among fewer but larger farms. Census of Agriculture data enables an historic review of these trends.

The data collected are valuable to both government officials and farmers. Various levels of government useful in developing and monitoring agricultural policies and programs," said Bill Vankoughnet, MP. "The additional information which will now be obtained from the census will be instrumental in ensuring the continued development of national agricultural programs and policies."

Crowe Bridge

Conservation area

The Crowe Bridge Conservation Area will be opening May 15th, this year, with Paul Harris returning as the Park

Manager. Many changes have been made since last season, such as brushing along the shoreline, moving of some sites along with the installation of 10 new sites and more playground equipment.

An extra person will be hired to assist with the 24 hr. (per day) security of the park. This will be in addition to the anticipated summer student programs.

Questionnaires were sent to 1965 campers and the results have enabled the staff to better determine the 1986 requirements for the park in terms of development, management and actual operations.

Rates have been upgraded to reflect the positive changes to the park and we now look forward to another successful summer camping season.

Stolen Car Recovered.

At 7.50 a.m. on Friday the 18th of April Const. D. Creelman of the local O.P.P. Detachment stopped a vehicle for a radar violation about a mile east of the village on Highway No.7.

As a result, it was discovered that the vehicle had been stolen from Ottawa some four or five hours earlier, and that the driver was wanted on an R.C.M.P. warrant for breach of parole.

The driver of the vehicle was Mark Bilodeau aged 24, of no fixed address, who has been held in custody.

About the War Amps history

The War Amputations of Canada was founded in 1918 by veterans of World War I who organized to provide self-help and direction for amputees. In the years since its beginnings, the Association has been marked by two characteristics: its dedication to the principle of 'amputees helping amputees' and its innovative solutions to the problems faced by amputees.

This year the Association is celebrating the 40th anniversary of the lost key return service (Key Tag). The Key Tag Service was established at a time when The War Amps was concerned with providing war amputees returning from World War II with services such as personal counselling, with the development and provision of specialized artificial limbs and with the difficult task of assisting veteran amputees with re-entry into society and, most particularly, into the work force.

Therefore, from its inception, the Key Tag Service was created with a dual function. It provided a valuable lost key return service to Canadians and it provided employment for war amputees as well as other disabled Canadians.

The Key Tag

Service was first set up in a rented building in Toronto, Ontario, where the now-famous complimentary key tags were produced and distributed using borrowed and renovated machinery and a great deal of manual labour.

It is now permanently located in Toronto, Ontario, and makes full use of computer technology in order to maintain the high level of efficiency that the public has come to expect.

LOOKING AHEAD

The War Amps' programs of assistance for Canadian amputees will continue far into the future. And when there are no more war amputees? The groundwork has been completed to change The War Amputations of Canada into The Canadian Amputees Foundation.

In fact, a core group of young amputees in their teens and early twenties have already assumed responsible roles in The War Amps' Child Amputee (CHAMP) Program, an innovative program created in 1975. As Junior Counsellors, they attend seminars, parades and other special events, where they have a chance to meet and talk with younger amputees. Junior Counsellors are living proof to today and in the future. The seeds have been sown and taken root firmly to ensure the continued growth and development of The War Amputations of Canada.

...AND ASTAR

ASTAR, the new child safety symbol of The War Amps PLAYSAFE Program, is a robot with a humanoid voice who lives on the planet DANGER.

Forest fire prevention week

Debris burning problem

The week of April 20-26, has been designated as Forest Fire Prevention Week in the Province of Ontario. The Ministry of Natural Resources is emphasizing to everyone the importance of preventing wildfires.

Fire hazard conditions can be extremely dangerous in the spring of the year from just after the snow melts until the new grasses and foliage have flushed. The tinder dry grasses and leaves are very explosive for these few weeks and it is during this time period that many wildfires occur.

During the 1985 fire season there were 38 wildfires caused by residents in the Tweed Fire Management Area. Residents have caused 20 fires as of April 16th, this year. The major ity of these fires were caused by rural residents burning to remove grass, brush or rubbish from their property.

Throughout Forest Fire Prevention Week, MNR Fire Staff will be increasing their public contacts with rural residents, farmers and private cottagers to advise them on the safe use of fire. They will be reminding everyone to: try and burn their debris during early morning or evening hours (before 10 a.m. and after 6 p.m.) when the fire danger is lowest, always keep fire fighting equipment nearby when burning, never burn on windy days, and to never leave a fire unattended.

If you are burning in an incinerator, keep it at least five metres from a forest or woodland, clear an area of at least two metres around the barrel down to mineral soil or bare rock, and always place a wire mesh top (holes no larger than 7 mm) over the incinerator.

The Forest Fires Prevention Act clearly defines the following regulations:

The period from April 1 to October 31, of each year, is a fire season.

During the fire season, fire permits are required in a fire region.

For all outdoor fires except fires for cooking or obtaining warmth

- to ignite fireworks in or within 300 metres of a forest or woodland

A work permit is required to conduct any operation which is liable to cause an accumulation of slash or debris within 300 metres of a forest or woodland.

No person shall throw or drop live coals, smoking material or hot ashes in or within 300 metres of a forest or woodland.

No person shall smoke while walking or working in a forest or woodland during the fire season.

The regulations under the Act provide in part, that every person who starts a fire out of doors shall:

- take all reasonable steps to keep the fire under control

- ensure that a responsible person tends the fire and

- extinguish the fire before quitting the site.

Fire permits may be obtained from local Ministry offices or Township Fire Wardens.

The suppression of wildfires is very costly to everyone. Resident caused fires have the potential for not only destroying our forests and woodlands, but other valuable property such as plantations, houses, cottages, and barns as well. All of us, as taxpayers, must bear the burden for this carelessness.

If everyone using fire exercised more caution and applied safe fire practices, the threat of wildfires would be greatly reduced both during Forest Fire Prevention Week and throughout the fire season.

other child amputees that many happy options are open to them as they grow older. Through informal discussions and group activities, the example set by Junior Counsellors is instilled in the other 'Champs,' as members of the CHAMP Program are known.

The philosophy of amputees helping amputees is thus already firmly entrenched in the CHAMP Program and will survive the war amps themselves.

The PLAYSAFE Program, which evolved from CHAMP, is further proof of how - again through the Junior Counsellors - The War Amps' philosophy of peer support is being extended even further.

One of the guiding principles of The War Amps child safety program: Founded in 1978, is its kids-to-kids approach. Who better to speak to children of the dangers in their home and play environments than other children who know firsthand about amputation and artificial limbs?

Children in schools and community groups across Canada are getting a chance to meet CHAMP Junior Counsellors, who present the PLAYSAFE message through films and discussions.

Active in the promotion of child safety, eager to work with younger amputees, and interested in all of the programs of the Association, Junior Counsellors are an integral part of The War Amps

ASTAR may be a futuristic character from an imaginary planet, but The War Amps developed him to meet a very real and current need here in Canada.

The War Amps sees many young child amputees enrolled in its CHAMP Program every year who have lost limbs in accidents at a very young age, some as young as two years old. Because they were so young these children had no exposure to the PLAYSAFE safety films and television messages popular with older, school-age children.

An extensive research study was conducted to create a character that would contain the right qualities to make an impression on today's visually sophisticated children...and ASTAR was born.

A captivating figure from today's popular science fiction genre, ASTAR faces electrical and mechanical dangers on Planet DANGER. His environment is fascinating in the same way that lawn mowers, hydro towers and train tracks are intriguing places for children at play. But ASTAR shows that the dangers are real and, for children, often irreversible.

Children love the 30-second television message which features ASTAR. 'Grown-ups' do too. Their comments confirm what tests of the message have discovered: children listen to ASTAR and quickly grasp the safety message he delivers.

Shoppers Drug Mart launches national child identification program

An educational campaign to create awareness of the problem of missing children is being launched across Canada by Shoppers Drug Mart. As a concerned member of the community health care team, Shoppers Drug Mart will make available specially produced Child Identification Kits. These will be available free of charge.

The problem of missing children is a serious and growing one, says David Bloom, Chairman, President and Chief Executive Officer of Shoppers Drug Mart Limited. The purpose of the program is to educate parents on how to streetproof their children, as well as to provide immediate information needed to recover a child should he or she become missing.

The program is being endorsed by law enforcement officials across Canada, as well as provincial Solicitors and Attorneys General.

In conjunction with the Shoppers Drug Mart Child Identification

Kit campaign, S.C. Johnson and Son, Incorporated is making a donation to Child Find through redeemable coupons, which are being distributed along with the kits at Shoppers Drug Mart stores.

Girl Guide cookie week

Girl Guide cookies are now on sale in Mador, Marmora and Tweed.

The price is $2.00 per box and once again Brownies, Guides and Pathfinders will be knocking door-to-door asking householders to purchase these delicious confections.

Profits from the sale are used in various ways. On the local level, money raised could purchase badges, craft supplies, equipment, such as tents etc. or perhaps help to send a needy girl to camp.

On a district and division level, funds could help train leaders in the field of arts, crafts, drama or it might help send Pathfinders or leaders to one of the world events located in India, Mexico, England or Switzerland.

Please be generous when a girl arrives at your house, cookies in hand. This is indeed a worthwhile cause.

BY MIKE SINGLETON

For the Federation of Naturalists of Ontario

It's night - deceptively peaceful, clear and crisp, with stars twinkling above. Sonar-directed, they race silently across the border, far below radar's scan. Zigging and zagging between trees, at astonishing speed they come. Bleep, bleep, bleep, bleep, bleep. Targets located, each races for a kill. Munch! Munch? Bats! Ontario boasts eight species and perhaps 10-20 million individuals. They reappear about the start of May each year, timed to coincide with the spectacular - availability of mosquitoes, moths, and other night-flying insects, which bats consume by the thousands. Indeed, to supply the high metabolic rate which makes bats so swift and agile, each consumes dozens to hundreds of pests each night - perhaps 20,000 per bat each season.

Everything about a bat is an adaptation to its nocturnal, insect-eating existence. Arms and fingers are stretched to twice the body length, then joined by a delicate gossamer of skin, to provide wings with control and agility unequalled in the bird world. To lighten weight, bones are delicate and hollow. The body is small, and dark, to blend with the night. A short tail is equipped with its own broad web, which can be snapped down as an insect net in an instant. An elaborate sonar system, replete with high-pitched vocal cords, huge ears and computer-like reflexes enable the bat to fly in total darkness. Each 'bleep' provides an instantaneous 3-D snapshot of the complete surroundings. By cranking up the 'bleeping' - like hand winding the frames of a movie through a projector - the bat cannot only avoid obstacles, but pursue prey.

Most common - by far - is the little brown bat. It has spent the winter hibernating in vast underground caves, often 2-300 miles or more from summer range. These are special caves, usually dissolved through limestone by underground rivers over thousands, or even millions of years. For the bats to survive, temperatures must stay above 5 deg. C, and humidity above 80 per cent. Otherwise, the bats would use up their precious fat reserves and starve, or dehydrate. All winter, they have hung, covered in dew drops, in a stupor. Heart beat, breathing and all body functions slowed, they have waited - just a 'tich' away from suspended animation. Fat reserves exhausted, they're stirring now, as the caverns warm toward a 'balmy' 10 degrees. Within days, they'll be out.

The other species - with such exotic names as eastern pipistrelle, hoary and red bat - each have their own very particular hibernating requirements. They're now emerging through mosquito and black fly 'blossoms'.

During migration and redistribution, bats must seek out daytime roosts in unfamiliar terrain. Each dawn, they'll take what they can find - often perching behind shutters, heading down little-used fireplace chimneys or entering darkened 'hollows' beyond slightly-opened windows. Such entrances often create alarm for other tenants - people - either when the morning lights go on or next evening, when the bats try to find their way out again.

Such circumstances are no cause for alarm. Despite centuries of hocus-pocus folklore, the last thing a bat wants is contact with a 'beast' 10,000 times its weight. Simply open doors and windows wide, turn on the lights, and wait calmly for the bat's exodus. Some slow movement may speed matters, but flailing arms and nets will only confuse the bat, exciting all concerned.

Some of us have different 'contact' with bats. Beginning about mid-May, little browns will set up nursery colonies in which 50-200 will give birth and rear their young - returning night after night for the summer. And, generally returning year after year to the same spot. Ideal locations - from their viewpoint - are warm, dry cavities with still air - like attics and hollow frame walls. Such colonies should generally be welcomed, providing interest and insect control. But bat urine is malodorous, indeed, and in building configurations where odours seep through plaster into rooms, owners can certainly be understood for their desire to evict. It can be done - using lights and a fan in the attic - or by plugging every crack or hole 1/4" or wider, provided it is done now, before the bats return. Trapping bats in will only aggravate the problem.

This spring watch for the bats' return.

Have a close look how marvelous they're adapted, throwing a small wood chip - entreat some interest. You'll discover fascinating creatures, the opposite of folklore, and deserving of protection.

As a comprehensive count and picture of the people of Canada, the 1986 Census is a task as vast as the land itself. June 3, more than 28 million residents living in communities ranging from northern towns to southern cities will be enumerated by 38,000 census takers. In order to obtain an accurate picture of Canadian society, one that reflects rapidly changing social, cultural, economic mores, the country's statistics Canada has developed an enumeration process designed to serve the special needs of Canada. A crucial element in this process is communication in the language of the respondent. Although census questionnaires are in English, they are also available in French. Cont'd on page

Budgets cultivate business blooms

BY TONY CARLSON

Like petunias that seem to flourish when left alone, small business asks little of the people in charge of cultivating the nation's economic garden.

They would like recognition that the tax load tramples small firms - especially seedlings - more often than large ones; that many government programs do nothing more than bury small business under mounds of non-productive paperwork.

They wouldn't mind seeing some sensitivity to the fact that the sector creates most of the jobs in the economy and is an especially fruitful ground for young job-seekers.

Take some of the burden of government off our backs, small firms say, a little water and sunlight in the form of access to risk capital, then let us get on with bloomin' business.

The message has been heard in Ottawa's last two budgets and now it's spreading from coast to coast - by osmosis perhaps - to other levels of government, judging from recent provincial budgets.

Take British Columbia for example, where the latest budget addresses the number one concern of small business across the nation: total tax burden.

Along with a promise to balance the budget by 1990, the government extended the 1-1/2 per cent payroll tax credit for small business and continued the phase-out of the property tax on machinery and equipment and the business property tax for schools.

Victoria also promised a review of property assessment and capped the fuel tax rate at the January, 1985, level.

On the other side of the continent, Newfoundland's government opted for measures to support the growth of small business, especially in the tourism and agricultural sectors.

More money is available for borrowing - at cheap rates - under the Rural Development Authority and the Farm Development Loan Board, while St. John's, in concert with Ottawa, intends to spend big bucks going after tourist dollars. All this, while promising to reduce the deficit, albeit slightly.

Then, there's Saskatchewan, where drought and grasshoppers have had their effects, not only on the farmers, but also on the provincial deficit as the government stepped in to try to soften the blows dealt by Nature.

Regina has introduced a long list of items to make it easier for small businesses to start and prosper, beginning with a corporate income tax holiday for the first two years of a firm's life.

There's also an interest rate ceiling of eight per cent for five years on all capital loans of $100,000 or less, plus more sources for obtaining venture capital.

There's much more, but you get the idea.

All told, the measures speak highly of the job being done, day in and day out, by hundreds of thousands of small business owner/managers.

With this enlightened cultivation, small business should keep blooming - throughout this year and beyond.

Smut diseases of grain crops

Smut diseases are caused by minute, non-green plants known as fungi. The name "smut" is derived from words meaning to besmirch or to smudge, relating to the sooty black or brownish masses of spores that are produced on or in affected plants.

These spores are the means of reproduction and it is apparent that the potential for rapid buildup of smut fungi is tremendous. A single smut-ball, the size of a wheat grain, may contain several million spores, potentially capable of causing that many new infections.

IMPORTANCE

All smut fungi are plant parasites and many of them infect our economically important crop plants. Losses in grain crops are usually greater than is generally realized. Not only does the development of a smutted head result in a direct reduction in yield due to destruction of kernels in that particular head, but there is a further loss due to contamination of the sound grain during threshing.

According to some reports, fields of wheat with 40 per cent or more smut were not uncommon prior to the general acceptance of chemical seed treatment. This heavy infestation represents not a 40 per cent but a total crop loss because such wheat is unfit for human or animal

CHSS Martial Arts Club news

To many people, the word Karate represents one mode of self defence, usually employing kicking and punching methods of Oriental origins. However, Karate which translated refers to 'Empty hand', actually means dozens of individual styles or 'ryu' of hand-foot self defence. The source of these styles of Karate are the Ryukyu chain of islands, the largest of which is Okinawa, lying directly south of the larger islands of Japan proper. It was here that Chinese Kung Fu developed into 'Okinawa-te' or Okinawan hand techniques. Chito Ryu, the style of Karate taught at our CHSS Dojo, was derived from four older styles, one of which is the famous Goju Ryu style. Goju translated refers to a 'hard-soft method of self defence. Several Goju Ryu-type blocks were seen in the movie 'The Karate Kid' and as well, the old instructor in the same movie shares his last name, Miyagi, with the real founder of the Goju Ryu style, Chojun Miyagi. The real Miyagi, apparently, was quite something to see. According to Richard Kim, who trained under Miyagi's students, Miyagi would adopt a 'Sanchin Dachi' or hour glass stance. Then with ropes tied around his legs and the four students on either side, attempts would be made to pull him off balance which were never successful. The real Miyagi was also partly responsible for introducing Karate to Japan proper. One of his students was Gogen Yamaguchi who became world-famous in martial arts circles as 'The Cat' Yamaguchi for his incredible skills. Yamaguchi took the Goju style to China during the Japanese years of expansion, where, apparently he gained quite a reputation on the battlefield, surviving not only a prisoner of war camp but a fight with a tiger as well. Yamaguchi also practised the Goju deep-breathing exercises while in the sanchin dachi, while standing waist deep in an icy stream beneath a waterfall. During this training, Yamaguchi was already quite advanced in years. Of course, what both Miyagi and Yamaguchi accomplished in training evolved through many years of hard work, heaps of self discipline and patience. There are many styles of Karate, Chito Ryu, Shotokan, Wado, but in each, the methods along the road to success are still the same.

Jitsu, David and Darren Pacaud will try for Yellow Belt, while Asaf Guberman, Rob Kennedy, Joel Curtis and Dean Gawley will be trying for their White Belt Stripe.

Members of our Children's Martial Arts Class should not forget the Ontario Youth Martial Arts Championships in Oakville at the end of this month.

This week's picture features Don Langevin practicing the 'Yoko Geri' or side kick from Karate.

Having your healthy baby

By Barry Phillips, B. Sc. Pharm.

President, Ontario College of Pharmacists Community Pharmacist

Last week we discussed the possible effects various prescription and non-prescription medications can have on your unborn baby. The key point to remember is that everything you put into your own body goes into your baby's body. So, before taking any medication, check with your doctor or pharmacist.

Don't make the mistake of just drawing the line at medications. Alcohol, for example, is rarely recognized for what it is - a powerful drug. Alcohol use during pregnancy is the most common cause of birth defects.

When a pregnant woman consumes alcohol, she runs the risk of giving birth to a baby with Fetal Alcohol Syndrome (FAS). Children born with this condition can suffer from slow growth, facial deformities, learning and behavioural disorders, heart abnormalities and other complications.

Drinking during the first few months of pregnancy is believed to be the most harmful. Since a safe level of alcohol consumption has yet to be determined for pregnant women, don't drink.

Smoking, too, has an adverse effect on an unborn child. The nicotine in cigarettes produces spasms in the arteries which may cause miscarriage, still birth or low birth weight. Smoking during pregnancy has also been linked to premature births and learning disabilities in children. If you need help to stop smoking, ask your doctor and pharmacist.

Your pharmacist is also a good source of information about the proper foods and dietary supplements you and your baby will need. When you are pregnant, your need for calcium, protein, iron and vitamins increases.

Don't forget about exercise, an important part of prenatal care. If you were already on a regular exercise program before you became pregnant, consult your doctor to determine if you should alter or reduce your activities. Even a limited amount of exercise, like the occasional walk, will improve circulation and provide more efficient digestion of food, better appetite and more restful sleep.

Upcoming gradings at CHSS will see Don Langevin attempt a test for Orange Belt in Karate and in Jiu

If the Shoe Fits By RALPH HERON, Manager

Fit, Flatter, Fight

Say that one three times, fast. A little tongue twister we thought we'd throw in for fun. It's true. When a customer comes in we have a choice to fit, flatter or fight. We can quietly measure her foot and fit it; no questions, no embarrassment. Or we could flatter her by saying, 'You look like about a 1/2 AA', but she wouldn't believe us. Then we could be truthful and say, 'you'll need about 11-C'. Then we've got a fight on our hands even if she does wear 11-C. So we take the easy way...flatter. After all that's what she really wants...a good fit, so that she'll wear and enjoy her shoes. Even the most beautiful footwear may never be worn if it's not comfortable. Come in for a real fit in the fashions of your choice.

How the temperature of the atmosphere is regulated

By Nigel Bunce
and Jim Hunt

College of Physical Science
University of Guelph
The temperatures that we enjoy (and sometimes don't) at the surface of our planet are kept in balance by an amazing array of physical, chemical and biological factors. One of the most important of these is the energy provided by the sun.
Chemical reactions high in the atmosphere have the effect of converting solar energy into heat. Close to the earth's surface, a different mechanism operates. Infrared radiation radiated back towards space from the earth's surface is trapped by the atmosphere, an effect that is most important close to the earth's surface.
Without this effect, the temperature on the world-wide average would be closer to minus 30 degrees Celsius than to the plus 15 degrees
Celsius of today.

Much has been written about the insulating effect of the lower atmosphere in trapping infrared radiation. It is a surprising fact that the major gases of the atmosphere,

namely nitrogen,
oxygen and argon,
are completely incapable of absorbing infrared radiation. Any trapped infrared radiation must be absorbed by the trace gases, principally water vapor and carbon dioxide.

Since careful monitoring began in the 1950's, atmospheric carbon dioxide levels have been increasing until the current rate of two to three percent a year. In the debate over what is mainly responsible for this increase,
some scientists point to the increased use of fossil fuels by our energy-hungry society. Other observers believe that the loss of the earth's forests, especially the tropical rain forests in areas such as the Amazon basin, are responsible. This is a plausible argument because it is the "photosynthesis" reaction of green plants that scavenges carbon dioxide from the atmosphere and replaces it with oxygen. We cannot say for sure whether the carbon dioxide levels are increasing because of increased rates of emission or because of decreased rates of photosynthesis.

What is the potential impact of an increase in carbon dioxide levels? Because carbon dioxide intercepts infrared radiation, higher levels of this gas would cause more efficient absorption of infrared radiation, and a resulting warming trend in the atmosphere. This phenomenon is popularly called the "greenhouse effect," and the best estimates are that, globally, temperatures will rise by about two degrees Celsius during the next 50 years or so. However, it must be stressed that this is only an estimate.
Other scientists place
the temperature increase both lower and higher.

The prospect of higher surface temperatures on the earth poses important environmental questions. For example, how will the climate be affected? Some meteorologists believe that a warmer climate would increase rainfall in the arid parts of Africa, perhaps alleviating drought, but cause regions such as the prairies to receive less rainfall, impairing our ability to grow grain.

Substantial temperature increases could lead to melting of the ice in the polar seas and on the polar ice caps. Conceivably, the level of the oceans could rise with consequent flooding of coastal ports and cities. A look at an atlas shows just how many of the world's major cities are situated on the coasts.

It is perhaps ironic that we face a potential problem of increasing atmospheric carbon dioxide levels and increased global temperatures in the next century because the long-term trend in carbon dioxide levels is down as revealed by studies of ice-cores in Greenland that are thousands of years old. It is now thought that over the long-term, the sun's light output has been increasing very gradually. This warming tendency has been countered by increased levels of photosynthesis, with plants taking advantage of the more intense light and so removing carbon dioxide from the atmosphere more efficiently. Loss of carbon dioxide from the atmosphere therefore, opposes the warming trend of increased solar intensity. Eventually as the sun's intensity grows steadily higher, in millions of millions of years, if atmospheric levels carbon dioxide m-fall to the point whphotosynthesis becomes ineffic-and plants can no longer maintain temperature of earth at some-like its present lev-

OMAF seeks producer input to free trade talks

BY R. MORRISON

Business Section
Kemptville College
Canada's indicated willingness to negotiate a bilateral trade agreement with the United States has raised both concern about free trade with the U.S. and optimism about the prospects of expanded markets for Canadian producers.
Ontario's agricultural producers share both this optimism and pessimism.

The expansion of trade with the U.S. offers both countries
the opportunity to take advantage of some well-known economic principles.
Free trade will allow both countries to specialize in the production of those products best suited to the intrinsic and acquired characteristics of each nation.
Factors, such as climate, raw materials, capital equipment, characteristics of the labor supply,
etc. will give one country a relative advantage over another. Given a free trade environment, production patterns will shift to take advantage of these differences.

Economic theory

tells us that even when one country is in a somewhat disadvantaged position relative to another, in all areas, both countries can benefit from free trade. The advantages come from the significance of specialization and the economies found in the production of larger volumes of fewer goods.

Economic theory
aside, the adjustment that must take place within an economy
during the evolution of this type of economic reorganization can have a disastrous effect on individuals and industries in decline.

What are the prospects for free trade with the U.S.?

Canada is a trading nation and continues to become more of a trading nation. In 1982, 28 per cent of all Canadian production was exported. By 1985 this number had grown to 32 per cent, and is expected to be 33 per cent in 1986. To put this in perspective, one Canadian job in three depends on foreign buyers, and 70 per cent of them are presently Americans.

The choice facing Canada does not seem to be one of continuing with the present situation or expanding trade opportunities through bilateral talks, but one of greatly diminishing trade on the one hand or on expanding trade through the proposed negotiations. This latter choice seems to be the more realistic
one given the present protectionist stance of the American House of Representatives.

Export markets are more vital to Canada's agricultural economy than they are for other products. Whereas 33 per cent of all Canadian products are exported, 50 per cent of Canada's agricultural production depends on foreign markets. But whereas 70 per cent of all exports go to the U.S., only 18 per cent of Canada's agricultural exports are purchased in the United States. Trade with the United States is absolutely vital to the Canadian economy, but agricultural trade with the U.S. is not so important.

While it is difficult to predict what will happen with introduction of free trade over time, it is reasonable to assume that those areas where Canada
presently has a trade
surplus with the U.S. would continue to enjoy the U.S. market opportunity.
Those industries in which Canada has a trade deficiency
with the U.S., which have been protected from U.S. imports may be faced with a struggle for economic survival.

The Ontario Ministry of Agriculture and Food is presently forming a position that will be forwarded to Canada's negotiator on this issue of free bilateral trade talks with the United States.
Individual agricultural producers, producer organizations are invited to submit their views.
Submissions should be sent to Mr. Rudolph Duckworth, Marketing Division, Ministry of Agriculture and Food, Bay Street, Toronto
Ontario, M7A 1A6.

Meeting, local board chairman Edgar that approximately 91% of the 1985 soft crop has been sold. In summary, the chairman released the following crop sales to date.

Producer sales to the marketing board, to the end of March,
total 698 870 tonne.
Board sales for domestic human

(tonne); stocks unsold are 79 815 tonne.

Producers delivering soft white winter wheat to the Class A pool have received an initial payment in the amount of $120.00 per tonne, or $3.25 per bushel.

Producer sales of red wheat to the Class B pool total 6
428 tonne. Producers delivering to this pool have received an initial payment of $120.00 per tonne plus an interim payment of $44.00 per tonne, for a total to date of $164.00 per tonne, or
$4.46 per bushel.

Producer sales of utility wheat to the Class C pool total 1 058 tonne. Producers
delivering to this pool
have received an initial payment of $120.00 per tonne, or
$3.25 per bushel.

A growing number of people are borrowing money to invest in the stock market without understanding the risks involved, says John Leybourne, Deputy Director of Enforcement for the Ontario Securities Commission.

"Many people hope to profit from their investments without first having to save the money to invest," says Leybourne.
"Lenders have been making investment loans easier to get lately. Some are even giving loans for 100 per cent of the investment on the strength of a signature alone and we are concerned that inexperienced investors could lose a lot of money through these types of loans."

Called leveraging, the practice of borrowing money for investments has become particularly popular with people investing in mutual funds. These funds are investment pools that are now attracting large numbers of people with limited amounts of money to invest and little knowledge of how the stock market works.

"Many of these people are not aware that a drop in the value of a leveraged investment could have severe consequences," Leybourne says.

Borrowers must transfer ownership of their investment to the lender as security for the loan, he explains. Interest on the loan must be paid regularly until the borrowed money is repaid. If the value of the investment falls lower than the amount of the loan, the lender usually demands at least partial repayment.

Lenders also have the option of selling part or all of the investment holdings at whatever price

they can get in order to reduce the amount of the loan.

An investor i-for example, borrow 80 per cent of money to buy a worth of mutual shares. Over the term, mutual fare often good investments, but sh-can drop in v-particularly in short term. A months after purchase, the investment may only worth 80%.

"The invest-original 30 per interest in the investment would be out and the borrower would be surprised."

Synthesizer invented by unrecognized Canadian

By Nigel Bunce and Jim Hunt College of Physical Science
University of Guelph

As a synthesis of music and current technology, the modern rock band is not breaking new ground. In every era, makers of musical instruments have used the technology of the day. Until 1700 the most advanced technology was represented by clockwork which melded with music reproduction in musical clocks and instruments like the hurdy-gurdy. Beethoven wrote a large work for a mechanical orchestra built by his friend Maizel, the perfecter of the metronome. In the 19th century, the circus presented that splendid combination of technology and music - the steam calliope.

Most of these inventions were considered failures by serious musicians, but over the years instrument makers have used up-to-date materials with considerable success. The virtual re-invention of the flute by Bohm in the last century and the development of the modern piano from the fortepiano by Haydn's day were considerable musical advances. The electronic revolution of the present century has produced further successes, although there have been failures such as the theremin of the 1920's, a musical instrument with electronic tone generation.

Among the greatest achievements has been the synthesizer, the brain-child of brilliant Canadian scientist-musician, Hugh LeCaine. Born in Thunder Bay (formerly Arthur) in 1914, LeCaine blended his interests in music and science from an early age. While still a boy he built an electronic ukelele. LeCaine studied physics at Queen's University, graduating in 1939. Like most of the electronic engineering graduates of that pre-war spring, he entered radar research with the National Research Council (NRC) in Ottawa.

After the war he continued his radio research at NRC, and started building an electronic keyboard instrument at home. As far as is known, LeCaine seems to have been the first person to conceive an electronic instrument to control the five major aspects of a sound - frequency or pitch, wave-form or timbre, amplitude or loudness, turn-on or attack and die-away. With these and other refinements, LeCaine realized that an electronic instrument might be made to imitate any existing conventional instrument and also produce new sounds.

By 1948 LeCaine had invented all the components of the modern synthesizer. He called his instrument - a laboratory shambles of two-by-fours, wires, tubes and a specially constructed keyboard - the 'electronic sackbut'. It was so advanced that even today not all the features have been incorporated in the modern synthesizer.

Between 1948 and 1952 LeCaine set music aside while he pursued a PhD in nuclear physics in England. On his return to NRC, he headed an electronic music laboratory created especially for him by E.W.R. Steacie, the enlightened president of the research council at that time.

LeCaine's interests turned from the needs of the performer and listener to those of the composer, and over the next two decades he developed many new electronic compositional instruments, including the multi-track tape recorder. NRC, however, did little for the commercial exploitation of LeCaine's genius. The patents for the sackbut were sold to a commercial organ company which then suppressed them. Consequently, the synthesizer had to be re-invented in the 1970's, but the basic research had all been done and was available in the scientific literature.

In 1974, when the atmosphere at NRC no longer allowed the freedom required for this type of research, LeCaine accepted early retirement. He died in a motorcycle accident two years later.

The recent surge of interest in electronic music has resulted in new interest in LeCaine. Canadian composer and historian Gayle Young has amassed a great deal of information about the man and his work. The first fruit of this research is a long-playing record, released late in 1985, of LeCaine on his various instruments.

It includes some of his original compositions. Young's biography of this great Canadian scientist and musician will be published this year.

Cont'd from page 6A demand that the loan be paid down by at least a few hundred dollars. Leybourne says, 'Investors who have borrowed thousands of dollars can face disaster in similar circumstances.'

There are some benefits to leveraging, including certain tax advantages, but Leybourne urges investors to use caution when considering investment loans.

MEMORIALS

MCADDEN - In loving memory of a dear wife, mother and grandmother, Florence (Pat), who passed away April 28, 1985.

From hospital bed to Heavenly rest. God took you home to be his guest. Just what she suffered, no one can tell. We were not there to see her die. We think of you in silence. And often speak your name. All we have are memories. And your picture in a frame. Lovingly remembered by husband, Don, and family.

MOORCROFT - In loving memory of Fred, who passed away April 24th, 1984. It is sad to walk the road alone. Instead of side by side. But to all there comes a moment. When the ways of life divide. You gave me years of happiness. Then came sorrow and tears. But you left me beautiful memories. I will treasure through the years.

SCHROEDER - In loving memory of our dear daughter and sister, Shirley Ann, who passed away April 17, 1982. From our happy home and circle. God has taken dear Shirley, the one we love. Borne away from sin and sorrow. To a better home above. Sadly missed by father, Wesley Smith and family.

TANNER - In loving memory of our parents, sister and brother. Dad who died April 26th, 1973. Mother, May 6th, 1966; sister Lyla Adams, March 3rd, 1977; brothers, Melville, Sept. 17th, 1977, and Ray, April 23rd, 1982. Looking back with memories. Upon the path you trod. We bless the hours we had with you. And leave the rest to God. Always remembered by Annie Bateman, Morley and Barton Tanner.

BILL - In loving memory of a beloved son and brother, Stephen Marcus (Marc), who passed away April 20, 1983. April comes with sad regret. The month and date we will never forget. There is a mother who misses you sadly. And finds the time long since you went.

DAVEY - In loving memory of Arthur John, who passed away April 26, 1983. Quietly remembered every day. Sadly missed along life's way. Rose and family.

BELL - In loving memory of a beloved son and brother, Stephen Marcus (Marc), who passed away April 20th, 1983. April comes with sad regret. The month and date we will never forget. There is a mother who misses you sadly. And finds the time long since you went.

And I think of you daily and hourly. But try to be brave and content. But the tears that I shed in silence. And I breathe a sigh of regret. For you were mine, and I remember. Though all the world forget. He will forever be missed and loved by his mother Elsie, brother Graham, and sister-in-law Kathleen.

SUPERIOR SEED - SUPERIOR FORESTS

By Harry L. Mardon Canadians as a whole are among the most savings-conscious people in the world.

For example, last year more than 12 per cent of disposable personal income in Canada went into savings, compared with only about six per cent in the United States.

The reasons for such a high level of savings are many and complex. But economists generally agree the biggest single factor is that there is widespread public unease about the short-term outlook for the Canadian economy. People are afraid of another round of fierce inflation, or fearful of losing their jobs.

Putting aside a certain portion of your income in a savings account is a very sound thing to do. However, you can save money to excess. That is because savings usually earn a rate of return, on an after-tax basis, which is at or below the current inflation rate. So, while it is necessary to have a savings reserve, if you have too much of your capital tied up in interest-bearing savings instruments the purchasing power of your money will gradually erode. The only way to be a winner is to be both a saver and an investor. If you achieve a right mix of savings and investments you will be able to enjoy a reasonable sense of security and can look forward to long-term growth of your capital. The one thing you cannot afford is to have your money standing idle, except for an essential minimum amount in a checking account. It is important to realize that as a saver you are actually a lender of money. When you put funds into your savings account, a bank term deposit or a guaranteed investment certificate, you are in effect lending that money to the financial institution. You expect to get the money back plus the interest on it that was promised.

Obviously it is imprudent for you to lend money to any financial institution that isn't large, strong and well-managed. If you don't like taking any risk at all with your savings, you should deposit your money with a financial institution that is a member of the Canada Deposit Insurance Corporation. Generally speaking, the higher the rate of return that you are promised, the more risk you take.

Linguistic

Con'd from page 2A is available in only French and English. Statistics Canada has addressed the special needs of those Canadians who do not speak either of the official languages by translating the census questions into 30 different languages. These translations, together with the services of a qualified interpreter, will, however, only be provided after every attempt has been made to have the census form completed through assistance from other sources, such as children in the household, relatives and family friends.

In certain areas with a high density of population speaking a non-official language, store front aid centres may be set up to assist people in completing questionnaires. The need for such centres will be determined on a regional basis. In large urban centres, such as Toronto, these information centres will be staffed with volunteers from various local associations and service organizations.

A Telephone Assistance Service, offering multi-lingual services to respondents, will also be in operation during the census. The phone numbers for this service will be listed on census forms.

The census is the most complete source of information about Canada. By recognizing the special linguistic needs of Canadians, from all regions of the country, Statistics Canada is reinforcing the tradition of commitment and accuracy long associated with census-taking in Canada.

Canada Talc solidifies operations

When ominous rumours start making the rounds about one of the largest employers in the community, it's time to check things out.

Ross Ferguson, acting General Manger of Canada Talc, readily confirmed that he had heard such rumours and just as readily admitted that the company had gone through a tough period. The rumours it appears, are just that, rumours. Ferguson said that he had recently held a meeting with all employees to dispel these rumours and to give them a frank and open insight to just what the company had been through and what the plans for the future are.

Over the past several months, the company has undergone a complete assessment and restructuring process. Every facet of the operation was looked at and restructured if necessary to reflect new growth plans and marketing strategies. Like most companies on the thresh-hold of expansion the question of financing proved to be big hurdle. However, having solved that particular problem, Large sums of money were expended on updating machinery and equipment to meet existing needs and provide room for growth.

Ferguson, a man with a very positive outlook, says 'it may sound corny, but, I firmly believe we are Poised for the Future. Not only because of our product but because of the people who make up Canada Talc.'

Certainly, the people we spoke with gave the impression that they and their company were going places. With up to date equipment and methods, good quality control operations and research, dedicated employees and aggressive marketing they certainly do seem poised for the future.

In pointing out that there has been a 70% increase in sales, Ferguson detailed many of the end uses of this commodity produced here in the community. They are too numerous to list here, but chances are that each and every day you use or handle a product that contains some of the talc that was taken from almost under your feet. Polypropylene is a plastic like material that uses talc in its manufacture. Polypropylene can be found in your automobile in such items as distributor caps, wheel wells, trim, glove boxes, radiator shrouds and so on.

Then too it's used in appliances such as coffee makers, toasters and so on.

It's used in a variety of other products including interior and exterior house paint, field markings on natural grass athletic fields and one product that is used all across the nation excepting Quebec.

The product? The yellow and white paint you see on the highways. One pound of CanTalc Talc is used in every gallon of this paint. So, next time you are driving in B.C. or even Ohio and North Dakota for that matter, look at the white line and think 'A little bit of home is with me all the way'.

All in all, it looks as though Canada Talc is going to be with us for some time to come and will continue pumping about a million and a half dollars each year into the local economy by way of payroll. Not to mention other local purchases.

In saying goodbye, Ferguson again said, 'I really do believe we are poised for the future and it's a great feeling to know that at the end of this fiscal year we should be showing a profit after a period of suffering losses.'

First tenant in resource centre

The first tenant of the Madoc Family Resource Centre moved into their new office about two weeks ago. Big Brothers and Big Sisters of Centre Hastings Inc., have been settling in amid construction dust, paint fumes and assorted workmen connecting phones and electrical wiring.

This Resource Centre, which is funded by The Ministry of Community and Social Services, will eventually house several agencies which are presently scattered over the area. This assembly of agencies under one roof will make it easier for users to obtain service as well as providing a more efficient means of inter-agency consultation.

First dreamed of some five or six years ago by a handful of social service providers who formed the Support Network Group, the Family Resource Centre travelled a long, sometimes rocky, road to reach this point of reality.

The Support Network Group met in the Health Unit office from time to time but space was at a premium. Had space been available there, it would have been an ideal spot to locate a Family Resource Centre. The administration of the county Health Unit, looking for more space for its own activities approached their landlord who agreed to build and extension at the rear of the premises, large enough to accommodate the needs of the Health Unit and to house a resource Centre.

All of the agencies that are to become involved with the centre will come under the umbrella of the Resource Centre but will remain independent and autonomous. The Resource Centre will be a tenant of the Health Unit.

To maintain the individuality of each agency using the centre, there will be no board of directors as such, but a management committee to oversee the operation. Funding for such a project must be funneled through an incorporated agency and the board of directors of Big Brothers and Big Sisters of Centre Hastings have agreed to accept responsibility for handling the financial aspect of the centre.

Jim Docherty, representative of the Ministry of Community and Social Affairs is expected to be on hand in the early part of this week to sign over the funds and finalize the agreement.

Marion Conchie of Conchie Accounting Services in Tweed will be acting as treasurer for the new Centre.

In the recent listing of S.E.E.D. grants announced by Bill Vankoughnet

M.P., the Village of Madoc is shown as having six grants approved. Involving twelve summer employment positions for local students, the value of these grants is about $20,500.

Doug Parks, Village Clerk, reports that there will be five students working for the village this summer under this programme.

The project assigned to these students will be the updating of the records of Lakeview Cemetery.

They will begin with the earliest records available and work through to the present day. Working with the recorded data, the students will also correlate this information with on-site visits to the cemetery to verify accuracy of the records and plot site locations.

The object of this project is to have an up to date, accurate account of usage and availability in such a form that the information can be computerized. This, would, in future, reduce much of the time spent in researching old records, some of which do not contain a great deal of information.

Correction

In last week's edition, the photo captions on the front page were inadvertently reversed, incorrectly identifying Mrs. Alma Kernohan and Mrs. Elsie Franks. Our apologies to these two fine ladies for any inconvenience or embarrassment this error may have occasioned. Our thanks too, to the many friends who pointed out the error of our ways.

Dental Play

Dental health education to school children can take many different forms. Hastings and Prince Edward County Health Unit dental staff have once again shown their ingenuity by using drama to teach young children about good dental health.

Polly Meets Pestford Plaque is the dental health play being performed by dental staff for students in primary grades at schools in Hastings and Prince Edward Counties. This activity is considered, as an integral part of the school Dental Health Program.

Comment

During the coming week-end, officers past and present of the Madoc O.P.P. Detachment will be holding a re-union, and it goes without saying that the law-abiding citizens of the community will make the returnees welcome and wish them an enjoyable visit.

By and large, we don't give much thought to our police force until there is a time of need or we break the law. Perhaps now is an appropriate time for us to think of just what their presence means to us in terms of peace of mind, and their place in society.

A policeman is perhaps the most maligned and misunderstood community worker there is. When enforcing the law, on even a petty infraction, he becomes the enemy, the bad guy and by word of mouth, a hard nosed son and so.

Despite this unrealistic attitude on the part of wrong-doers, each officer maintains an attitude towards the community of not only being guardians, but of being an integral part of the daily life of the area.

They are friends and neighbours and their occupation aside, are just like the rest of us with likes and dislikes, needs and desires.

On the job he is faced with rigid rules of conduct, the exactitude of legal requirements governing investigations and arrests as well as the rules and regulations of the Human Rights Code and the Young Offenders Act. On top of this he must not show any emotion when conducting an investigation lest the wrong-doer exploit it as being prejudicial to his rights.

Imagine the stress he must endure, and the control it must take to maintain such a position when investigating an alcohol related fatal crash, or a child abuse case or any of the other deeds that man inflicts upon his fellow man.

We the public don't see the stress and strain, but the wives and families of these men can be painfully aware of the toll taken on their men. With the support they give, they are as much a part of the force, for they too pay a price.

So let us thank these friends and neighbours, past and present for the job they do and hope that they have an enjoyable week-end relaxing and re-living some pleasant memories.

Private Plane Crash

O.P.P. reported that a privately owned and built plane was forced into a crash landing at about 6:30 pm, on Tuesday April 22nd.

The pilot, David John Watkins, 41, of 70 Brimley Court, Belleville, was on a local flight when the craft developed engine trouble as he was flying over the Farrell private airstrip. The engine failed and Watkins was forced into a crash landing in a corn field at lot 17, Con. 2 of Huntingdon Township, R.R. Roslin.

The initial cause of the accident was believed to be a malfunction in the air vent on the gas cap, restricting air intake into the fuel system causing an incorrect mixture of fuel to the engine.

The pilot suffering

suspected back injuries was taken to Belleville General Hospital for observation.

The aircraft sustained damages primarily to its undercarriage to the extent of about $9000.

Jubilee project

In talking to Mrs. Jean Scott, Chairperson of the Jubilee Committee of the Madoc Legion, she reports that they are undertaking their final project of their Jubilee Year.

Called 'Operation Drop-off' it's a project designed to meet a need of current members of the armed forces who are serving a tour of duty in isolated postings throughout the world. It's a drive to collect paperback books. 60,000 is the target overall, that will be sent to the outposts and provide some measure of enjoyment and relief.

Whilst the members themselves are pitching in with enthusiasm. They could use all the help they can get in this worthwhile project, and would like to appeal to the community to donate as many paperbacks as they can. Even one book per person from the community would make a significant contribution to the total as well as provide the recipients with a touch of home.

If you have paperbacks that you have read and enjoyed and have no further use for them, drop them off at the Legion and feel good that someone out in the 'boonies' will get some measure of enjoyment too.

Road closings

Road access to two airstrips recently constructed on Crown Land as part of the Gypsy Moth Aerial Spraying Programme, will be closed for two months.

Ron Kervin, District Manager of the Tweed District of the Ministry of Natural Resources stated that 'Pursuant to Sections 26 and 49 of the Public Lands Act, R.S.O. 1980, Chapter 413, I hereby close access roads in the vicinity of the two airstrips, to public travel.

The roads are located in Abinger Twp. at entrance to airstrip now in final stages of construction just north of Irvine Lake and in Northern Elzevir and Grimsthorpe Twps. where the second airstrip is being built.

Kervin stated the reason for the closures 'is for the purpose of securing our airstrips and in the interest of public safety. Access roads will be closed from May 1st. to July 1st., 1986. Controlled access will be allowed for logging companies, cottagers and other resource users.

Heart and Stroke campaign

The 1986 campaign totals for the Heart and Stroke Foundation Madoc canvass are compiled. Madoc and the surrounding areas brought in $2815.50. This was through the hard work of many volunteers and the support of the community, expressed by their generous donations. The money collected goes to fund research into the causes and effects of heart disease and stroke. Literature and films are supplied to the public free of charge through the local office of the Heart and Stroke Foundation, Suite 105, 257 Pinnacle Street, Belleville. Phone 613-962-7500.

Slo-pitch

It seems that a slow pitch league may become a reality this year in Madoc because of the interest displayed last year.

An organizational meeting has been planned and depending on the support shown, games could be organized for the summer.

This type of ball is just for fun and exercise. There are a few rules apparently and one that is emphasized is that there must be four female players on the playing field at all times and the teams consist of ten players. Sounds as though it might be fun.

Letter to Editor

Dear Editor:

Every day of the year thousands of physically disabled children in Ontario are fighting to live life to its fullest. Each day of the year The Easter Seal Society is there to help them win their fight.

More than 6,000 children across the province count on Easter Seal support to help them overcome what can be incred-

ble odds, and move closer to realizing their ultimate level of ability. Whether support takes the form of the provision of a wheelchair, artificial limb, transportation to treatment centres, a memorable camping holiday, the benefits of extensive research programs, or a home visit by an Easter

Seal Nurse, the Society remains dedicated to helping special children in need a privilege we have enjoyed since our inception in 1922.

The wide scope of Easter Seal services would not be possible if not for the generosity of individuals and businesses who care about the quality of life available to Easter Seal children.

This would also be impossible if not for the tremendous volunteer commitment of our 235 affiliated Easter Seal Service Clubs who spearhead local fund raising activities, and administer Easter Seal funds on behalf of children in their communities.

The Kiwanis Club of Madoc has been an active partner in this important work since 1951. Throughout this time many past and present members have sacrificed hours of determined effort to help physically disabled children. We know this exceptional record is one which all of the members take pride in sharing.

On behalf of The Easter Seal Society, our heartfelt thanks to the entire community of Madoc for backing thousands of young fighters served by Easter Seals. Your gifts to the 1986 Easter Seal Campaign will go a long way helping disabled children go a long way.

Sincerely yours,
F. Howard Keast,
President
Easter Seal Society

CHSS Martial Arts

Children who resort to violence whenever a problem confronts them may at times simply be imitating the behaviour of adults they have seen in similar situations. Especially young children look to adults for guidance, for solutions to minor and major frustrations. If it is taught by example that violence is an accepted answer to many of these problems, then a child may even begin to regard this type of behaviour as normal.

Traditional martial arts Dojo, however, instruct, again by example, that discipline and self-control are the accepted paths of behaviour to all problems. The Sensei (teacher) rewards any efforts towards an up-right, self disciplined attitude, chastizes sloppy, arrogant and aggressive behaviour as totally unacceptable.

The various Sempai (senior students) in the Dojo reflect the Sensei's teachings, and reinforce them both by example and by direct enforcement. At CHSS Martial Arts Club, for instance, new-comers who join to learn 'how to fight', either change their attitude quickly, or are removed. There exist, of course, Dojo where the instructor encourages violent behaviour in both junior and adult students, just as the one instructor did in that movie I refer back to - 'The Karate Kid'. Luckily these are few. Luckily for those in martial arts too, that the early great Japanese styles Sensei in this country - Hatahita (Judo), Tsuruoka (Karate), Guest (Karate), Wong (Karate), Forrester (Jiu Jitsu), Kimeda (Aikido), Nakamura (Kendo) - all have passed on and continue to do so the strict traditions of control and discipline inherent in their arts.

In other news, Tim Deline, Asaf Guberman and Jeremy Thompson received their White Belt stripe in Karate and in Jiu Jitsu in our Dojo's Children's Martial Arts Class, while in the adult class, Joel Curtis and Rob Kennedy also received the White Belt stripe.

Madoc O.P.P. report

During the week of April 18 - 24, 1986, members of the Madoc Detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police investigated 67 general occurrences and 3 traffic accidents.

On Sunday, April 20, 1986 Brian Plumbie of Madoc reported the overnight theft of his 1984 Yamaha Tri-Motor. Thieves removed the tri-motor left parked in his driveway. The tri-motor is valued at $1300.00.

On Monday, April 21, 1986, Michael Shaw of R.R. No. 2 Stirling, reported the theft of his Echo EVL 440, 16 inch bar chain-saw from his garage. The saw is valued at $200.00.

On Tuesday, April 22nd, 1986 at approximately 6:45 pm., David John Watkins, 41, of Belleville was flying his home-made plane on a local flight. The plane developed engine trouble and Watkins was forced to make an emergency landing in a corn field located at Lot 17 Coh 2 Huntingdon Twp. Watkins was taken to Belleville General Hospital with possible back injuries. Damage to the plane was estimated at $3000.00.

On Saturday April 19th, 1986 at approximately 12:05 am., Gary Brian Lambert, 27, of Marlbank was driving his car south on Conc., Rd., 8 Hungerford Twp. Lambert left the roadway, entered the east ditch striking an embankment and the vehicle rolled over onto its roof.

Damage to the vehicle was estimated at $1800.00. Lambert has been charged with Impaired Driving.

On Sunday, April 20, 1986 at 12:45 pm., James M. Chard, 25, of R.R. No. 1 Marmora, was driving his Honda three wheeler north on the Twin Sister's Lake road when he struck a mound of gravel in the centre of the roadway causing the three wheeler to flip over. Damage to the vehicle was estimated at $50.00. Chard was taken to Campbellford Hospital with minor injuries.

The following cases were heard in Madoc Provincial Court, Criminal Division.

Moses W. Duquette of R.R. No. 1 Flinton was convicted of Failing to Provide a Breath Sample and plead guilty to Impaired Driving and was sentenced to a total of 14 days in jail.

John D. Jensen of R.R. No. 4 Madoc plead guilty to assault and was fined $200.00.

Darwin Russell formerly of Marmora plead guilty to three counts of Possession of Stolen Goods and two counts of Theft Under and was sentenced to a total of eight months in jail.

Donald Bovin of Marlbank plead guilty to Assault, was sentenced to 30 days in jail plus one year probation.

Gerald D. Bradley of Madoc, Plead guilty to Cause A Disturbance and was fined $140.00.

Gordon J. Simmonds of Tweed plead guilty to Driving a Motor Vehicle while having more than 80 mgs. of Alcohol in his blood and was sentenced to 14 days in jail plus one year probation.

William J. Ramsay of R.R. 1 Marmora plead guilty to theft under and was fined $200.00 plus six months probation.

Crime of the week

Between 8:00 pm. and 9:00 am., 23 Jan. 86, persons unknown gained entry to Kevideo, Video Shop located on Matthew Street at the West limits of the Village of Marmora.

Entry was gained to this business by smashing out a rear basement window. Once inside the culprits removed six Toshiba VCR's, Models V-700C, VM42C, V-5443C, one Sanyo VCR Model 4590 and one Norsat Satellite Receiver, Model 300PR.

On the night of March 8th., 1986 a second Break and Enter occurred on this same business. Entry was gained by the same method as the previous Break and Enter.

The person responsible again stole approximately 500 VCR tapes, stereo system and a number of VCR's.

Investigation to date has failed to disclose the persons responsible for this crime. The Ontario Provincial Police at Madoc are seeking the assistance of the public to aid this investigation.

Anyone having information that may assist the investigating police please contact Provincial Constable R. Garrow or Provincial Constable R. Bonter at 613-473-4234.

Any information received will be held in confidence.

Educator of the year

Mr. John Oram of Belleville was awarded the 1986 Sir Mackenzie Bowell Award as the Educator of the Year at the Education Week Breakfast held this morning at the Knights of Columbus Hall in Trenton.

Following is an excerpt from Mr. Oram's nomination as submitted by the students and staff of Sir Mackenzie Bowell School in Belleville.

'Mr. Oram retired' six years ago. Since that time, he has worked as a volunteer at Sir Mackenzie Bowell Public School every afternoon September to May or approximately 2100 hours. He has given advice, encouragement and guidance to most of the students of SMB sometime during the school year. His expertise as a carpenter has been a tremendous help to everyone. Whether it is a student with a construction problem or a teacher who needs something repaired or built for the classroom, Mr. Oram is available for help.

Mr. Oram has built a multitude of useful items for Sir Mackenzie Bowell School using materials provided by our Students' Council. He has built storage units for Writing Folders, lectures, a portable stereo unit, a portable T.V. cabinet, a kitchen 'island' (for the Family Studies Room), shelving units, storage bins, a portable chalkboard, a room divider, a staffroom mailbox, cupboards, computer centers, etc. With all of these requests and many more, Mr. Oram has never said no.

John has also built things for other schools in our system. Thanks to Mr. Oram, blind students at Susie's Place have a custom work table that will accommodate a wheel chair, students at William R. Kirk have a similar work table, and a physically handicapped student at Sir Winston Churchill has a customized computer desk.

Mr. Oram has also helped pupils with difficulties in Math and Reading. John has also helped students learn the basic facts of tion, subtraction, multiplication division. He spent long Cont'd on page

Followup

Two weeks ago we commented on the Right To Farm movement and the plight of a hog farmer down east who was being sued by his non-farm neighbours for polluting the air with smells from his farm. It seems that the case has been concluded and the farmer was ordered by Mr. Justice Ronald Stevenson, in a New Brunswick court, to pay his neighbours the sum of $33875.00 in compensation.

Two years ago, also in a New Brunswick court, McCain's Food Ltd. was found guilty on eight counts of polluting the St. John River. They were fined $1.00 (one) dollar on each count for a total of $8.00.

Society is changing

Brian Bronson, co-chairman of this year's organizing committee in Kirkland Lake, said 'Society is changing, and schools and teachers are being faced, as never before, with accommodating change within the classroom. At a time when there is renewed interest in the basics, there is also considerable concern that students must be prepared to recognize and to deal with the myriad implications resulting from the impact of new technologies.'

At this time in the development of education in the province of Ontario it is extremely important that parents keep up their involvement in the educational system. The five hours a day that the student spends in the classroom will have a life long impact on what direction the student will go. Parents have a responsibility to work along side of the educators and to see that the development of the child at home and schools progresses with harmony.

Parents are urged to come out and support the schools during that week. The investment of time will be well worth it.

Education week in Ontario this year will take place this year from April 27 to May 3. The theme of the province-wide week is 'Refining Our Gold.' Most of the local schools in Hastings county will be participating fully with activities at each school.

According to education minister Sean Conway 'This year's education week theme emphasizes the investment we have made in the future of our most precious resource, our children. Education is an investment in the future that Ontario citizens have willingly embraced for almost 150 years of progress and change.

With change comes challenge and responsibility for all who are involved in our educational community. I am confident that educators, administrators, and parents will continue to work together to meet these new challenges in the months and years ahead.

Jehovah's Witness Convention

BY Lorne Brodie

Jehovah's Witnesses concluded their two day convention in Bancroft, Sunday afternoon. An audience of 586 were in attendance to hear Mr. Winston Peacock, district supervisor, speak on the subject, 'A Worldwide Brotherhood Saved From Calamity'.

Mr. Peacock told the audience that it is important to identify the true brotherhood and quoted Psalm 133:1 as the basis for making the identification. 'Look! How good and how pleasant it is for brothers to dwell together in unity!' He then drew attention to how Jehovah's Witnesses follow Jesus' example and welcome all nationalities treating them as equals.

Mr. Peacock explained the impending worst calamity yet lies ahead. From the Bible using Revelation 16:13-16, he pointed out that Satan's influence is pushing the nations to the great war against God called Armageddon. He said, 'Armageddon is the condition or situation to which earth's rulers are gathered in opposition to Jehovah God and to his Kingdom by Christ Jesus'.

Biblical precedents for survival were recounted such as Noah and his family being carried safely through the Flood and his first century Christians being saved when Jerusalem was destroyed in 70 C.E. Essential to survival now would be availing ourselves of Jehovah's provisions by calling on His name, exercising faith in God's son, and becoming a part of the Christian congregation.

In conclusion, Mr. Peacock said, 'The greatest calamity will not destroy the earth, but the earth will become a paradise where everyone living will be part of the true brotherhood as promised in Psalm 37:29, 34'.

Madoc WI News

Last Friday the Madoc W.I. held its Annual Meeting (actually its 76th annual, for it celebrated its 75th Anniversary last year).

Ms. Loretta Connor, Myrtle Gates and Viola Wannamaker acted as hostesses in Brookside Villa Sr. Citizens building. President Sharon Phillips gave several reminders and announcements: (a) the 4-H Achievement Day, shared by surrounding 4-H Clubs, on Saturday morning in C.H.S.S. featuring a Special Display 'From Cow to You' which was set up after the Madoc Club had studied Grant Ketcheson's efficient milking operation. 13 Madoc girls completed this winter's course - Milk Makes It.

(b) the Eastern Star's 60th Anniversary Tea in St. John's Anglican Hall on Saturday.

(c) a special W.I. Workshop on Tuesday from 10 to 3:30 in St. Peter's Church Hall. This will be chaired by Mrs. Donna Russett and the speakers are Mr. John Bishop on Water and Lynn Fargrave on Financial Planning. All are welcome. Bring a brown-bag lunch.

(d) Summary Day for the W.I. Short Course on Home Decor Planning will be held in stirling on April 30 at 7 p.m. Ms. Vera Hill and Anne McIntosh conducted this course for the Madoc area one evening recently. Ms. Lou Phillips showed a very attractive pillow case which she had decorated with candlewicking.

(e) The District Annual Meeting will be held on May 22nd in Bethesda.

(f) bring one or two Craft items, valued up to $10.00, for the Ploughing Match to the May or June meeting.

And now the annual reports of the secretary-treasurer, the standing committee conveners, the Public Relations Officer and the President were given. It was good to hear these reports, looking back over the year's work and sometimes it is a bit of a surprise to be reminded of how much has been accomplished. Secretary Wilma Patrick reported 9 meetings had been held with an average attendance of 11.3, plus the successful 75th Birthday Party in June.

The president in her report commended the members on their excellent responses to the roll-calls during the year.

mentioning especially the memories of old-time Christmas concerts, community customs of the past, and the values of the world-wide organization, the A.C.W.W.

Visiting guest speakers during the year were Allan Ketcheson, Michele Leering, Gunther Peters and John Hall. W.I. speakers were Anna Carman, Vera Hill and Ada Adams.

President Sharon Phillips called the financing of the 4-H Club, hosting the District Annual meeting, holding the 75th Birthday Party and manning the W.I. Booth at Madoc Fair as some of the achievements during the past year. P.R.O. Ada Adams added to these in her report, listing contributions to the ACWW, to the Water & Sanitation Coupon 71, to the Adelaide Hoodless Foundation Fund, to the Madoc Memorial Park, the Santa Claus Parade, the Madoc Helping Hand, the Canadian Legion, the C.N.I.B., the Cancer Society, the Heart Foundation and the Consumers' Association. We feel this is a very good showing for our small Madoc Branch.

The election of officers was conducted by Ms. Hazel Beatty as follows:

Fire Department battles grass fires

At about 4 p.m. on Wednesday the 23rd, the fire department was called out to a grass fire at the northwest corner of Highways 7 & 62.

The fire, of unknown origin, burnt a large area of grass and sent large clouds of smoke over both Highway 62 and 7. No damages were reported although at one point the flames threatened a telephone junction box and pole as well as the pressurized overhead cable. The flames on the wooden access platform and the pole were quickly extinguished and inspection of the box and cable showed no damage.

On Friday the 25th, at about 10 a.m., the department was called to quell a fire in a stand of pines situated south of Highway 7 and west of Wellington street. Firemen approached the blaze from Highway 7 and from Wellington street and extinguished the blaze before it had a chance to ignite the trees. No cause was definitely established but some spent matches were found at the scene.

listening to students struggling with reading.

Over the past six years, Mr. John Oram has provided a valuable free service to the Hastings County School Community.

He has worked closely with kids. He has provided a caring, positive, patient, charming and cheerful role model for students and staff alike. John always has time for us all. He listens. He never turns anyone away. He is always there to help.

John is a perfect example of an educator in the truest sense of the word.

The Hastings County Education Week Committee is pleased to recognize Mr. Oram's contribution to education in Hastings County by naming him the Educator of the Year.

TOWNSHIP OF HUNTINGDON

ATTENTION HUNTINGDON TOWNSHIP RESIDENTS

Beg, Borrow or Steal

The above-mentioned options were reviewed by the Huntingdon Township Recreation Committee in an attempt to explore fund-raising avenues for the new ball diamond lighting system. Naturally, wanting to operate within the confines of the law, the last option was dismissed immediately... well, almost, immediately; and, since our Township prides itself on avoiding borrowing monies, the second option was set aside as a last resort; therefore, the first option appeared to be the most viable.

Our goal is to provide our residents throughout the Township with a well-organized recreational facility and expand community participation to all age groups. The new lighting system will provide extended hours for the ball field and also service the skating rink in the winter months.

If you would like to participate in this project in any capacity, please contact the Municipal Office (473-4030) or any Recreation Committee member. Cash donations would be welcomed along with any labour or material donation.

Such is our plight, such is our plea,
Come one come all, let's raise the fee!

Dianne Livingstone,
Secretary,
Huntingdon Twp. Recreation Committee.

1986 International Plowing Match

Among the many exhibits to be seen at the September 1986 International Plowing Match is a collective display by the Conservation Authorities of Eastern and East-Central Ontario.

The Conservation Authority display will focus on general authority concerns from wetland protection to reforestation and erosion control. Included in the display will be a stream-flow monitor with staff on hand to explain authority roles regarding flood warning and information about all of the individual authorities involved.

The exhibit will be open from September 16 to 20 during regular plowing match hours.

Trinity U C W Madoc

Trinity U.C.W. met at the home of Mrs. Charles Derry on Wednesday, April 16th. The meeting opened with all members repeating the 'Purpose' and the leader Ruby Parauk read a poem

'Positive Count', followed by the hymn, 'Jesus the Very Thought of Thee'. The roll call, answered by a Bible verse containing the word 'Joy', showed 13 present. Thank You notes were read from Mrs. Florence Love and Mrs. Elizabeth Embury for lilies received at Easter.

There will be a rummage sale at the Church on Friday and Saturday, April 25th and 26th.

The Spring Fling is in Picton on Tues. May 6th.

The Worship, conducted by Vera Smith opened with the hymn, 'Christ the Lord is Risen Today', followed by the Meditation, 'Signed or Sung', and prayer. The scripture was read by Luella Phillips. Vera also read a poem, 'Trouble in

Amen Corner.'

Verna Empey was in charge of the program and opened with a poem, 'Foolish Heart', followed by a reading by Irene Gordon, 'My Get Up and Go has Got Up and Went'. Verna then read, 'Things To Be Thankful For' and conducted a very interesting contest. The program closed with the hymn, 'Now Thank We All Our God', followed by Benediction.

Lunch was served by the hostess assisted by Reta Allore and Vera Smith.

Caution advised for homeowners having driveways repaired or installed

Homeowners having driveways repaired or installed this summer should be aware that a bit of research can pave the way past many common problems.

"Before you sign a contract, you should do some digging yourself," says Roberta Allan of the Ontario Ministry of Consumer and Commercial Relations (MCCR). "Driveway paving contracts are complicated, making it easy for unethical companies to take advantage of customers. Bad paving jobs are a major source of consumer complaints every year."

In an attempt to put disreputable firms out of business, members of the paving industry recently helped the ministry develop important guidelines for consumers hiring driveway contractors.

All paved residential driveways should be composed of two layers - a crushed stone base, overlaid with an asphalt finish. According to industry representatives, the base must be a minimum of six inches deep, while the asphalt layer should usually be two inches thick once compacted.

When setting up a contract, be sure these depths are clearly listed where applicable. It's important to note that the material depths should be set out in inches after compaction. Unethical contractors often cheat consumers by listing depths before compaction.

The amount of work required will vary with the condition of the driveway itself.

Resurfacing involves the installation of new asphalt over the existing driveway and should only be done if the old surface doesn't show any visible defects. Of course, contracts for resurfacing will not list depths for a new stone base.

Driveways that have cracked or heaved may need to be regraded. This involves the removal of the existing asphalt, regrading of the underlying stone and resurfacing.

Once the old asphalt has been stripped off, the contractor should ensure the base stone is six inches deep. Contracts for regrading should include a clause requiring the paver to provide additional base stone if necessary to give a final depth of six inches once compacted.

Excavation goes a few steps beyond regrading, involving the removal of all existing materials to expose the earth sublayer. Excavation is indicated if your driveway is too high, drainage problems are severe, the existing base shows signs of caving in or the materials used originally were of poor quality.

Always get at least three quotes on the job and don't base your final choice of a company on price alone. Be particularly wary of firms quoting prices that are much lower than their competitors' estimates.

Some of these people give quotes that don't even cover their costs," Allan says. "Inevitably, they do shoddy work, shortchange on materials or disappear without finishing the job. Sometimes they just take off with the customers' deposits without even starting the work."

All paving companies signing contracts in consumers' homes must be registered with the ministry. Before hiring a firm, ask for its registration number and confirm it by calling the nearest Consumer Services Bureau of MCCR.

Once a paver has been picked, set up the contract. In addition to material depths, it should list the type of work required, the driveway dimensions, definite start and completion dates, the quality of materials to be used and prices. The company's name and address should be identified along with your own. Information about any warranties should also be included.

Most good driveway contractors offer a one year warranty. Any defects in workmanship or materials will generally show up during the first 12 months, so a one year warranty is quite adequate," Allan says. "Be sure you know exactly what the warranty covers."

Microburst explained

On August 2, 1985, a Tri-Star aircraft crashed while landing at the Dallas-Fort Worth airport in Texas. Reports of the accident pointed out that there was intense thunderstorm activity in the area. Some reports attributed the accident to a 'microburst' without describing what that was.

In a thunderstorm, it is possible to get very strong vertical flows of air with less dense air rising (updrafts) and more dense air falling (downdrafts). These downdrafts are typically a few kilometres across and can have speeds in excess of 10 metres per second - the same velocity as a good sprinter. What happens when the downdraft reaches the ground is rather complex and only in recent years has it been understood in any detailed way.

Imagine a smooth stream of water falling from a faucet onto a flat surface like the bottom of the sink. Everyone has seen this happen. The water spreads out radially from the foot of the stream in an ever expanding flat disk of water. If the disk is thin enough, the horizontal speeds can be much higher than in the descending column. In the case of the downdraft air in a thunderstorm, these horizontal speeds can be up to 20 metres a second and the depth of the outward flowing disk of cold air may be several hundred metres. If such a disk is formed on a runway and a plane starts to land, the pilot suddenly enters a region of increased air speed and may decrease the aircraft's forward thrust to compensate for it. Suddenly, the plane flies into the receding air on the other side of the disk. The sudden decrease in speed relative to the air may actually make the plane stall and, with no vertical manoeuvring room, crash.

At the leading edge of the expanding disk of air, an even more dangerous phenomenon is occurring. The outflowing air curls up and back from the ground and forms a rolling vortex of air with a horizontal axis. The roll is such that the air in the leading edge of the advancing disk is moving upwards. It is this vortex motion of the air with speeds up to 80 miles an hour, that is called a 'microburst'. In some cases, the leading edge vortex may be followed by others.

If an aircraft approaches one of these, there is suddenly transition from smooth air to fast upward flow, followed very quickly by a fast downward flow separated by only a few hundred metres. Without manoeuvring room, the pilot has neither time nor space to cope with such wind conditions. This vortex motion probably caused the crash at Dallas as the plane hit the ground only a few hundred metres after entering the microburst.

The Public Commercial Vehicles Act states that movers are responsible for any loss or damage except in certain specific circumstances. For example, the moving company is not liable for damages to articles not packed by employees, food, plants or pets, unless the firm was negligent in how it handled the goods.

"Since most moving companies don't pay claims for articles you've packed yourself, it's vital to do the job properly," Allan says. "Use plenty of wrapping paper and strong cartons. Most movers will sell you packing materials for a nominal sum."

A number of their conditions and exceptions are set out in the act. Allan suggests consumers read the regulations through before moving day.

The act also sets maximum liability at $4.41 per kilogram. Therefore, if an entire shipment weighed 1000 kg, the mover would not have to pay more than $4,140 even if $10,000 worth of goods were lost or damaged.

For this reason, many moving companies sell extra liability coverage. Unfortunately, consumers are often misled by the fact that this coverage is commonly and inappropriately called 'insurance'.

Under an actual insurance policy, the insured person has access to an independent arbitration board if there are disputes about a

Moving advice

When hiring a moving company, Ontario residents should shop around to avoid facing a truck load of costly troubles.

By choosing a mover at random from the phone book or newspaper, consumers risk having valuable possessions damaged, by inexperienced or negligent workers.

Some companies refuse to pay for damages and customers end up absorbing the loss or fighting the mover in small claims court.

"There are some really irresponsible companies out there and everyone suffers because of them, including the honest, reliable firms who have to deal daily with the ill-will these bad operators create," says Roberta Allan of the Ontario Ministry of Consumer and Commercial Relations (MCCR). "The best way to avoid trouble is to do a bit of checking before hiring anyone."

Allan suggests consumers ask friends to recommend a company. You should check company reputations with the Better Business Bureau, a local chamber of commerce or past customers. Find out how long the firm has been in business and, if possible, how much experience or training the staff have.

The Public Commercial Vehicles Act states that movers are responsible for any loss or

For this reason, many moving companies sell extra liability coverage. Unfortunately, consumers are often misled by the fact that this coverage is commonly and inappropriately called 'insurance'.

Under an actual insurance policy, the insured person has access to an independent arbitration board if there are disputes about a claim. There are mechanisms in place outside of the court system to ensure policy holders are fairly treated. But no one is allowed to sell insurance in Ontario except registered insurance firms or brokers. Moving companies don't qualify to sell insurance and the courts offer the only recourse in a claims dispute with a mover.

If the mover disagrees with your claim, even after you've bought this so-called 'insurance', you're still at the mercy of the company's good will - a quality some firms are seriously lacking," Allan says. "If they arbitrarily decide the couch they destroyed is only worth $50, too bad. You'll have to sue them. That's why it's so important to deal with a good company even if it costs a little more."

Some insurance firms do sell policies to cover moves, called 'trip transit' coverage. Ask your insurance broker for advice.

Regardless of the company involved, truly irreplaceable items may be safest if you move them yourself, Allan says.

Be sure to find out what form of payment will be accepted by the movers, she adds. Many firms insist on getting cash or a certified cheque before they'll even unload the truck. If you try to pay by neighbouring dry fields.

In drought-prone areas or dry fields ease stress by reducing plant population. Too many plants in a given space could prevent ears from forming, especially in a stressful year. Look for hybrids that give stable yields rather than a bin buster in a perfect year. It would be nice if yield stability and high yield could be combined into one hybrid, but this is not always possible. Judging from some of the new material being tested by the OCC in eastern Ontario, such dual-purpose varieties are on the horizon. This new generation of corn hybrids is being developed under conditions of drought, as well as insect and disease stresses.

The OCC Ontario Hybrid Corn Performance Trials report does not indicate shortages of rainfall or any other stress. The tables are averages of two or more test sites. Although we believe these sights are representative of Ontario corn acreage, no two locations have the same soil, climate or stress. If a hybrid yielded well in the trials for two or more years, you have one worth trying on your farm. OCC data are the best we have for general use but the final test should be done on each farm. Plant a few strips of promising new varieties and some on a poorer or droughty field. Don't be fooled by a hybrid yielding well on both fields in a super year or by a hybrid which performs well in an unusually open fall.

Late hybrids cost more to dry and can be damaged by early frost. They may mature too late to allow for harvesting under good conditions. If you test sufficiently early hybrids under your conditions, the stable yielders will become obvious.

It's night - deceptively peaceful, clear and crisp, with stars twinkling above. Sonar-directed, they race silently across the border, far-below radar's scan. Zipping and zagging between trees, at astonishing speed they come. Bleep, bleep, bleep located, each races for a kill...Munch!

MUNCH? Ontario boasts 8 species and perhaps 10 - 20 million individuals. They reappear about the start of May each year, timed to coincide with the - spectacular - availability of mosquitoes, moths, and other night-flying insects, which bats consume by the thousands. Indeed, to supply the high metabolic rate which makes bats so swift and agile, each consumes dozens to hundreds of pests each night - perhaps 20,000 per bat each season.

Everything about a bat is an adaptation to its nocturnal, insect-eating existence. Arms and fingers are stretched to twice the body length, then joined by a delicate gossamer of skin, to provide wings with control and agility and unequalled in the bird world. To lighten weight, bones are delicate and hollow. The body is small, and dark, to blend with the night, a short tail is equipped with its own broad web, which can be snapped down as an insect net in an instant. An elaborate sonar system, replete with high-pitched vocal cords, huge ears and computer-like reflexes enable the bat to fly in total darkness. Each 'bleep' provides an instantaneous 3-D snapshot of the complete surroundings. By cranking up the 'bleeping' - like hand winding the frames of a movie through a projector - the bat can not only avoid obstacles, but pursue prey.

Most common - by far - is the little brown bat. It has spent the winter hibernating in vast underground caves, often 2 - 300 miles or more from summer range. These are special caves, usually dissolved through find - often perching behind shutters, heading down little-used fireplace chimneys or entering darkened 'hollows' beyond slightly-opened windows. Such entrances often create alarm for the other tenants - people - either when the morning lights go on or next evening, when the bats try to find their way out again.

Such circumstances are no cause for alarm. Despite certainties of hocus-pocus folklore, the last thing a bat wants is contact with a 'beast' 10,000 times its weight. Simply open doors and windows wide, turn on the lights, and wait calmly for the bat's exodus. Some slow movement may speed matters, but flailing arms and nets will only confuse the bat, exciting all concerned.

Some of us have different 'contact' with bats. Beginning about mid-May, little brownies will set up nursery colonies in which 50 - 200 will give birth and rear their young - returning night after night for the summer. And generally returning year after year to the same spot. Ideal locations - from their viewpoint - are warm, dry cavities with still air - like attics and hollow frame walls. Such colonies should be generally well welcomed, providing

Erosion control and manure storage assistance

For a number of years the Ontario Government has been offering some financial assistance to farmers in an effort to improve their soil conservation practices and to control environmental runoff from manure storages.

For erosion purposes, the program offers grants of up to 50 per cent of the eligible costs of work on approved projects to a maximum of $7,500 per farm operation.

Eligible projects include such things as grassed waterways, terraces, contours, grade control structures, catch basins, spillways, windbreaks, tile outlet protection and seeding and sodding ditch banks.

Recent changes in the program eliminate the need for a Consulting Engineer's report before proceeding with an erosion control project. Structural projects will still require advice from the OMAF Agricultural

Can caffeine be good for you?

By Barry Phillips, B. Sc. Phm. President, Ontario College of Pharmacists Community Pharmacist

For many of us, there's no better way to start the day than with a fresh, hot cup of tea.

It's just the right pick-me-up before heading down to work.

But responsible for the lift is caffeine, the most popular non-prescription stimulant today. Besides tea and coffee, caffeine is found in colas, chocolate and most prescription 'stay-awake' aids.

Used moderately, caffeine can improve mental alertness. However, it's no substitute for a good night's sleep because all it does is make you ignore your tiredness. As much as you might like to think, caffeine does not replenish energy.

Caffeine works by stimulating the central nervous system, improving mental activity muscle tone. It can also help relieve the feeling of boredom that comes with many monotonous tasks.

Aware of the myth that caffeine can 'super-up' someone who has had too much of it, it merely counteracts the depressant effect so the person does not feel sleepy.

If you want to enjoy the desirable effects of caffeine, stick to small doses like the amount in a cup of coffee. It takes your body a few hours just to process that little.

Larger doses taken at one time or in drinking more than four cups during the day cause unwanted effects like insomnia, irritability and headaches.

Studies also show that people who regularly take more than five cups a day build up tolerance and may not suffer from insomnia in a cup at bedtime, but a moderate or heavy drinker might end up tossing and turning all night. Heavy users can become addicted to caffeine and experience headaches and become irritable after withdrawal.

Children's smaller bodies are very susceptible to the effects of caffeine, so all medications containing it should be kept out of reach.

Caffeine can also interact with other drugs such a way that its effects are considerably magnified. Your pharmacist can tell you about interactions between caffeine and prescription or non-prescription medications or use.

Beware of canvassers offering 'today only' prices

Home repair swindlers ranked among the top ten scams in Ontario last year and the crooked contractors are likely to resurface during the coming season, experts predict.

'Dozens of people were taken for thousands of dollars by home renovation swindlers in each of the past several years,' says Dave Mitchell of the Ontario Ministry of Consumer and Commercial Relations (MCCR). 'There's no reason to believe they won't be hanging out their shingles again this year.'

In one of the most common renovation scams, unethical contractors inflate prices far above normal market levels. Other traditional rip offs include running off with customers' downpayments or convincing homeowners to have unnecessary repairs done. Some contractors simply disappear without finishing the work required.

Following an investigation by MCCR, four men were fined and ordered to make restitution for their part in a home repair scam last year.

The ministry has had equal success with prosecutions of other renovation swindlers in the past, but Mitchell says enforcement must be backed up by public awareness of the problem if the scams are to be stopped.

In many instances, if the homeowners had shopped around with a few different companies and done a bit of investigation, they wouldn't have lost money, says Mitchell, head of the ministry's Investigation and Enforcement Branch.

'It becomes obvious whether a price is exorbitant or not when you have other quotes to compare it with,' he explains. 'And if someone's lied to you about the condition of your roof, you'll find out about the deception in a hurry when an honest contractor looks the house over.'

Many of the consumers swindled in the past would normally have shopped around for the best deal, but the conartists used high pressure tactics to push them into signing contracts on the spot.

'Be wary of contractors canvassing door-to-door offering 'today only' prices' or claiming they can give you a great deal just because they're 'working in the neighborhood,' Mitchell advises.

'And don't fall for the old line, 'We can fix your roof for $500 today, but if you wait much longer, it'll need $1,000 worth of repairs', he says. 'Maybe it's true, but get a second opinion. It's just possible your roof doesn't need repairs at all.'

Unfortunately, comparison shopping won't help you avoid all the pitfalls. Some unethical contractors may quote the best prices on legitimate work. But once they get the job, the swindlers grab the deposit money and are never seen again.

The best way to guard against this and similar rip offs is to get friends or neighbors to recommend a company they've hired in the past.

Consumers should also be sure to confirm that the contractor is registered and bonded under the Consumer Protection Act. Before signing a contract, ask the seller for his registration number and verify it by calling the nearest Consumer Services Bureau of the ministry.

For further security, keep deposits to a maximum of about 10 per cent.

Contracts for large jobs may involve progress payments-installments to be made as each stage of work is completed. This provides protection in the event the company goes bankrupt before finishing the job. It also helps ensure a crooked contractor can't run off with full payment for a job that was never even started.

Under the Consumer Lien Act, you are required to hold back 10 per cent of each progress payment until 45 days after the job is finished. This ensures you cannot be held liable if the company doesn't pay suppliers for materials.

Consumers who feel they have been unfairly or dishonestly treated by a company should contact the nearest Consumer Services Bureau of MCCR.

The ministry has published a booklet on handling home renovations. For copies, contact the tural Engineer.

Farmers interested in the program are required to submit a 'Project Proposal' and get approval before proceeding. This should be submitted three to four weeks before the project is undertaken.

The manure storage part of the program continues as in the past with farmers eligible for 1/3 of the work on approved manure storages up to a maximum of $5,000.

The program is designed to control potential pollution from manure storage and thus a requirement is that the storage constructed contain all liquids.

A different perspective

By James Alfred
Once again the issue of capital punishment has become a topic of debate.

A private members bill, picked by the luck of the draw from a hat, as is the custom, will be presented to the House of Commons. Strange as it may seem not one major political leader in Canada agrees with hanging. Execution was outlawed by the federal U.S. government but has since been re-enacted by some 38 individual states. Every country in Europe has banned execution. Likewise in Latin America most countries have banned the death penalty. Australia joined the abolitionist just last year.

The majority of state execution today takes place in Russia, China, South Africa and Arab countries. Why is it that crusaders in Canada want the death penalty as do the Communists and Arabs while the rest of the civilized world does not have it.

Certainly it is not to reduce the rate of murder because areas which have the death penalty have the highest murder rate. For example, the murder rate in the U.S. is about 5 times higher than Canada. Three quarters of the U.S. has the death penalty. Strangely those states without the death penalty have the lowest murder rate.

Many people feel that if one takes a life they must pay with their own life. The principle of an eye for an eye prevails. No other crime has that principle. If I break a man's jaw I am not punished by having my jaw broken. If I run over someone in my car I am not punished by being run over. Why do we revert to an eye for an eye in murder?

I have the distinct feeling that capital punishment is so popular because people are angry at criminals. I suspect that many people would like to see the death penalty for more crimes. It is over 100 years ago or so that England had the death penalty for 240 crimes. Public executions were weekly events. Why people even bet on how long the hanged criminal would keep on kicking. It seems that there is a certain brutishness in us all.

It's been said to me that 25 years in jail is worse than hanging so that we actually do people a favor by killing them.

Some people explain that it would save a lot of money. I must agree. Hanging is cheaper than feeding someone for 25 years. So this argument has convinced me. To save money we should hang murderers. To save more money we could shorten prison sentences for other criminals or else hang them. Instead of trying to reform criminals and spending money on psychologists, just lock them up in small cells. Even better, the cops could just shoot criminals and save the expense of a trial. And that's just the beginning. Think of how we could save money on the insane and retarded and poor, and sickly. Why we could balance the budget in no time.

So if you believe in saving money support capital punishment. I am against murder don't support it. At least the different perspective on the pros and cons of punishment.

To hang or not to hang

Managing our money

The key to achieving a decent living standard during your retirement is to undertake some personal financial planning.

You cannot afford to look after you adequately. Government pension and income-supplement programs will only keep you from falling catastrophically below the poverty line.

There's considerable public discussion on the need for government pensions to be more generous. However, it's unlikely that any major increases will be forthcoming in the near future.

So, individual Canadians should retirement years solely through their own savings and investment efforts, beyond the basic income they'll get from government plans.

One problem these people encounter is deciding how much retirement income they should aim to achieve.

There's a simple and workable solution to this problem. Whether you're single or married, ask yourself: 'If I retired tomorrow, what income would I need?'

Perhaps you are 45 years old, or 50, or 55. The question is just as pertinent.

It's true that if you are, say, 10 years from retirement your income will continue to increase during those years, and the scale of government retirement benefits will rise. But that 10-year cost of living very likely in at about the rate.

Before you answer the question posed to you it is essential to establish present financial situation. means listing amounts of assets and liabilities. Under assets accept the fact they have to do a lot for themselves if they want to enjoy a comfortable retirement.

Many will be helped by belonging to company pension plans. But they are in the minority as only about 40 per cent of the workforce are covered by company plans. These plans vary greatly but generally they are based on an employee's average income over the five years just prior to retirement, to a maximum of about 70 per cent of pre-retirement income.

The majority of Canadians have to provide for their list today's value of any real estate you own, including your home, the cash surrender value of any life insurance you have; cash you have in your savings and chequing accounts; personal property such as household furnishings, car and jewelry; and investments such as bonds, stocks, investment funds, Registered Retirement Savings Plans, term deposits, and so on.

On a separate sheet of paper list the amount of all your liabilities, or obligations. The obvious ones are mortgages on any property you own, including your home; outstanding loans you have for such items as a car, personal needs and investments; charge accounts and current unpaid bills; and any other similar debts.

Your total assets minus your total liabilities will give you what professional financial planners term your Net Worth.

This figure will change from year to year but once you have established it, keeping the figure updated is a fairly simple task.

Once you know your net worth, you should draw up two further sets of figures. They should show your pre-retirement (using today's figures) monthly income and expenditures; and anticipated post-retirement monthly income and expenditures. We'll deal with these lists next week.

(Mr. Mardon is manager of corporate communications for The Investors Group, the Winnipeg-based financial planning services company.)

Liver-leaves and starbursts

Like elfin fireworks, tiny rockets are skyward trailing sensuous curves in green. Suddenly, they explode into colour by the thousand - starbursts of blue, white, mauve and red - each a dramatic contrast to the pallid grey-brown of the forest floor. Each, commanding attention. And each, proclaiming Spring!

Hepaticas are among the earliest, and most beautiful of spring wildflowers. They're opening now, and will peak over the next 2-3 weeks. On sunny days, literally thousands of these dime-sized flowers will sparkle atop 4 stems - usually in groups of 5 or 10 above bedraggled mounds of last year's vegetation.

The epitome of grace and beauty, hepaticas exhibit also a fascinating array of adaptations to those who'll pause for a close look. Their distribution in woodlands, for example, is no coincidence.

Hepaticas are confined to deciduous forests by their needs for rich organic soil, for the forest's winter-long insulating blankets of leaves and snow, and by the absence of a dense growth of grasses - which would shade or choke out such low growing vegetation.

Like all woodland wildflowers, hepaticas are - right now - in a race for survival. They must flower, set seed and complete nearly all of their life cycle in the brief 'window' between melt and opening of the forest canopy. It's a brief window, indeed - generally, about 6 weeks - for forests are generally the last place for snow to melt. And, by mid-May, when the forest canopy becomes solid, light reaching the forest floor will plummet by 95%.

Hepaticas - like most of their woodland brethren - have been held back from premature growth by the slow woodland thaw. By the time the forest floor is warmed to about 5 risk of late snow is pretty well passed. Immediately the hepatica sends up - not its leaves like most plants, but its flowers! Using food energy stored in its heavy root last summer, each plant sends up 5-15 flowers, to give the whole

DRNSBY - In loving memory of a dear mother and grandmother, Vera, who passed away April 30, 1981. Million times I've needed you.

Million times I've cried, how could have saved you from never would have died. I'm missed by daughter, son-in-law Gord, grandchildren, Tina and son.

DRNSBY - In loving memory of our dear mother, Vera, who passed away April 30, 1981.

A golden heart stopped beating, no willing hands are still, no one who did so much for me.

Resting at God's will, someday we know we'll meet her.

Someday we know we'll meet her.

clasp her hand in that other land.

never to part again, kindly missed and lovingly remembered, by daughter, son-in-law Elwood, and grandchildren, Heather, Lisa and Ernie.

DRNSBY - In loving memory of a dear wife, Vera, who passed away April 30, 1981.

It is sad to walk the road alone.

instead of side by side.

at all there comes a moment.

When the ways of life divide, you gave me years of happiness.

When I came sorrow and tears.

will treasure through the years, kindly missed and lovingly remembered by husband, Ed.

CULLY - In loving memory of a dear wife and mother, Ann, who passed away April 30, 1984.

Wonderful memories woven in gold.

This is a picture I tenderly hold.

Keep in my heart, a memory I'll keep.

to love, to cherish, never to forget.

Always remembered by husband Robert, and family.

YOUR FUTURE

Challenge '86

OTTAWA - April 17, 1986 - Over 275 students will be employed this summer through CHALLENGE '86 - Student Employment/Experience Development (SEED) projects in Hastings - Frontenac - Lennox and Addington. Bill Vankoughnet, MP, announced today that over 160 separate SEED projects within the riding received approval. "This represents a total federal contribution of $464,240 for summer jobs in Hastings - Frontenac - Lennox & Addington," noted the MP.

This is the second year of the Challenge SEED Program. 'Last year students, employers and communities all benefitted from the SEED program. We can look forward to continued success this summer," said Bill Vankoughnet, MP.

Challenge '86 uses a wage subsidy method to encourage employers in the private, municipal and non-profit sectors to create student summer employment opportunities that would otherwise not be available. Priority is given to career-related jobs for students but the program also offers incentive to employers who will provide students with practical work experience.

But what of the plant? It will just sit there, all summer long, its leaves adding beauty to the forest floor, patiently awaiting fall's tree-leaf drop. Then, in another brief flurry of activity, it will race to fix more sunlight, as root-energy to start next year's blooms.

Have a close look - you'll see much more than a starburst!

Molson's big fish contest

The Molson Big Fish Contest is the only competition of its kind in Ontario. It is conducted entirely by mail, giving every sportsman fishing in the province a chance to enter. To participate, anglers photograph their catch, record its measurements, and mail the official entry form to the Ontario Federation of Anglers and Hunters. There is no limit to the number of times a person can enter, and no entry fee is required.

Entry forms are available at resorts, lodges, bait and tackle shops, sporting goods stores, and directly from the Ontario Federation of Anglers and Hunters, Box 28, Peterborough, Ontario, K9J 6Y5.

Liver-leaves

seed-producing routine a head-start.

And what a flower it is! Each is borne atop a 4' stem, capable of rocketing up through the leaf litter yet to be eaten by this year's earthworms. The flower.

The flower opens by day and closes by night, protecting the sensitive parts from damage by frost. By closing up, the flower sharply reduces its surface area: volume ratio, making it less prone to freezing.

Equally important, the hepatica's outer flower structure is cloaked in 'fur' - a remarkable cover of long hairs which, like fiberglass, trap air to provide insulation.

Using its dramatic, bright coloration and faint perfume, the hepatica attracts a host of flies and other early insects, which act as pollinators.

Head start thus established, each plant produces, in a single great rush, a set of 3-lobed, liver-shaped leaves.

(Hence the name hepatica, which is Greek for 'liver'.)

The large, flattened surfaces splay outwards to become the photosynthetic factory which will fix sunlight into food energy.

Rapidly the seeds will grow, like miniature batteries being charged.

Within weeks, they'll be mature and on their own, rolled by wind or carried on furred legs, 'in search' of an ideal germination location.

Ontario's one of a kind fishing competition

The introduction of two new classes and a new sponsor are giving Ontario's one-of-a-kind fishing competition, the Molson Big Fish Contest, a fresh look for spring.

Classes for brown trout are a first for 1986, as is the sponsorship of Berkley Canada, manufacturer of superior quality fishing tackle. Prizes and cash awards to be won this year are valued at over $45,000.

Operated by the Ontario Federation of Anglers and Hunters, the Molson Big Fish Contest runs from April 15 to November 30 each year. The Live Release Category of competition is for anglers who want to release their catch so it can swim and spawn again, ensuring more great fishing opportunities in the future. The Catch and Keep Category is for anglers who want to make a meal of their fish or have it mounted for display. Within these categories ten species of Ontario's most popular sport fish are eligible for competition. They are: brown trout, smallmouth bass, northern pike, muskellunge, walleye (pickere), largemouth bass, lake trout, rainbow trout, speckled trout and salmon.

Every angler whose entry meets the minimum size requirement for its species wins a Michael Dumas print, and a personalized award certificate. Three hundred skillful competitors will take home a Berkley rod and reel combination, sixty will receive cash prizes, and the winner in each class will be awarded an Evinrude electric fishing motor. In addition, one angler entering the 1986 Molson Big Fish Contest will be named Ontario Angler of the Year and presented with a 9.9 horse power Evinrude outboard motor.

The qualifying entry standards are:

Fish Species Catch and Keep Weight

Fork Length All Entries

Brown Trout 5 lbs. (2.3 kg) or over

Largemouth Bass 20" (51 cm) or over

Smallmouth Bass 19" (48 cm) or over

Northern Pike 39" (99 cm) or over

Muskellunge 45" (114 cm) or over

Walleye (Pickerel) 28" (71 cm) or over

Lake Trout 32" (81 cm) or over

Rainbow trout 24" (61 cm) or over
